Track team places fifth at Alma Invitational

Smith takes two firsts, relay team sets school record

Matt Smith placed first in the 1600 and 3200 meter runs and joined Jason Frabis, Mike Sevinski and Luke LaBlance in setting a new school record in the 800 meter relay at Saturday's Alma Invitational track meet. The Charlevoix boys' team placed fifth among 17 schools in the meet. Remus-Chippewa Hills won the meet with 66 points. Charlevoix totaled 48 points, finishing behind Chip-Hills, Corunna, Greenville and Mount Pleasant. The Rayders were the only Class C school in the field. The others were all Class A and B schools.

Smith won the 1600 meter run in 4:25.55 and the 3200 in 9:41.79. The times were his best this season. The 800 meter relay team set the new school mark at 8:02.6.

Other Charlevoix runners to place were:

Luke LaBlance, third in the 400 meter run in a time of 50.57, his best of the season;

Brian Coolman, Lance Emig, Jason VanLo and LaBlance, third in the 400 meter relay with a time of 45.15;

Travis Wood, fourth in the pole vault at 12 feet.

The Charlevoix girls' team placed fifth in three relay races and totaled 11 points.

Michelle Keem, Elsa Conlan, Becky Bragg and Greichen Scott ran the 3200 meter relay in 10:15.

Aimee Livingston, Nicole Moore, Keem and Bragg ran the 800 meter relay in 4:53.

Livingston, Moore, Bragg and Conlan ran the 1600 meter relay in 4:22.

Softball team takes two games from East Jordan

Season record now 13-2-1

Charlevoix's softball team goes by the name of the Rayders. These days the Rayder opponents are simply victims going by a variety of names.

The East Jordan Red Devils became the latest victims Monday as the Rayders took the first game 16-1 and the second game 13-3.

Tammy Holm threw a five-hitter in game one, a game which was stopped after five innings. Liz Grunch, Melissa Cox and Waja Wujcik each had three hits in the game. Grunch had a triple and two singles. Cox and Wujcik each had a double and two singles. Holm and Stacey Tilton each had two hits while Angelina Doan and Melissa Eaton contributed doubles.

In the second game Mary Jane Grunch got the pitching win with her sister Liz Grunch mopping up in relief.

Wujcik, Holm, Mary Jane Grunch, Tilton, Eaton and Melissa Murray all had hits for the Rayders. Charlevoix will be in Bellaire, Thursday, May 14.

Baseball team drops two games

Last inning rally falls short

When the tying run was shot down at the plate to end game one, Charlevoix's baseball team might well have considered that a bad omen for the second game.

Charlevoix lost the first game 3-2.

David Skeel, who was the tying run, was thrown out at the plate for the final out of the seventh inning. Ken Olinger had tripled on the play to bring Skeel around.

The game was a tight defensive struggle with East Jordan scoring two runs to win the game in the last inning.

Tom Zipp got the pitching win, striking out 11 batters while walking two and allowing five hits. Wayne Joy took the pitching loss.

In addition to Olinger's triple, Luke Porath had a home run while Jody McGlinch had two singles.

The second game wasn't nearly so close as East Jordan won 8-1.

Winning pitcher Scott Chanda was just one strike out shy of Zipp's game one performance. Chanda struck out 10, walked one and gave up only two hits. Olinger and Don Jess singled for the Rayders.

Olinger took the pitching loss for Charlevoix.

This Thursday, May 14 Charlevoix will travel to Bellaire. The Rayders currently have a league record of 6-8 and an overall record of 6-10.

Tennis team second in conference

Charlevoix's tennis team tied for second with Harbor Springs, behind Traverse City St. Francis. The conference meet took place May 8 at Boyne Mountain.

Jeff Joy was Charlevoix's only flight winner. He took number three singles, winning his first match 6-3, 2-6, 6-4 and his second match 6-7, 6-2, 6-0.

Charlevoix's number one and two doubles team each won their first match before losing in the finals.

The number one team of Cory Crain and Mike Dobulis won 6-0, 6-2 before losing 6-2, 6-2.

The number two team of Dan Avery and David Dobulis won 6-0, 6-0 before losing 6-4, 6-2.

A Kalkaska runner was able to stay close to Charlevoix's Elsa Conlan in the early laps of a distance race last week, but by the end of the race Conlan won with plenty of room between herself and the rest of the field.

New harbormaster welcomes boaters

A new name can be added to the list of Charlevoix citizens who have served as Charlevoix's Harbormaster. Neil Suomela, a retired teacher, will be greeting Charlevoix's boaters this summer as the new Harbormaster. Suomela recently retired from his position as industrial arts teacher at Grosse Pointe High School, where he taught for 32 years.

Suomela became a Charlevoix resident when he was ten years old, and has considered Charlevoix his home town ever since. He couldn't be happier with his new position. "If you sit at home and fantasize about what you want to do in retirement, well, this is it for me."

While the job of Harbormaster fits Suomela like a well-worn boating cap, he has additional reasons for wanting to serve as Harbormaster. Suomela explained that he feels his upbringing in Charlevoix played an integral part in getting him started on the right path in life. "I want to pay back my hometown for getting me started," he said.

Suomela described the job of Harbormaster as being "90% public relations, and 10% bean counter," adding that public relations is his forte. Suomela plans to see to it that any visiting boaters will find dock slippage in Charlevoix, even if the city docks are full. As part of his service to the community and area businesses, he will work with other marinas that offer transient dock slips, so that boaters will be able to stay in the area.

Suomela can be found in the crisp, freshly decorated Harbormaster's office beneath the Chamber of Commerce office. Assisting Suomela this season as dock attendants will be Ed Knight, Chad DeYoung, and Fred Almonrode.

The boating season officially started May 1, and will continue through September 30.

Kite flyers advised to be cautious of wires

With Spring weather finally here and youngsters turning their thoughts toward the fun of kite flying, Consumers Power Company reminds that kites and electric power lines don't mix.

Carl L. English, Consumers Power's vice president of energy distribution services, says young people should be warned by parents and school officials to remember to fly their kites only in an open area well removed from trees and the potential hazard of overhead power lines.

"Each year the majority of kite flying accidents occur when a child tries to untangle a kite from a tree or power line. To avoid an accident, children and parents should be aware of these basic safety rules," English says.

1. Fly your kite in an open area, away from electrical lines, trees and busy streets.

2. Never climb utility poles, trees or broadcasting towers in pursuit of a snagged kite. Electric current from power lines can travel through metallic materials or moisture and cause severe burns.

3. Use wood, paper or plastic in making your kite, not wire or metal. Avoid using any materials that could conduct electricity.

4. Don't try to repeat Benjamin

Franklin's experiment by flying your kite in the rain. Lightning can cause injury much more severe than the minor shock Franklin experienced.

5. If a kite gets caught on an electric line, call the utility company for help. Never pull on an electric line.

6. If a power line falls, stand clear. Never touch downed power lines. Instead call the utility Consumers Power offers films on electrical safety for use by local schools. The 16 millimeter films "Overhead Lines — a Matter of Respect," and "Electrical Safety from A to Z" may be ordered by contacting Consumers Power's Educational Services Program at 212 West Michigan Avenue, Jackson, Michigan 49201, or by calling (517) 788-1667. They are also available in video format.

Health Dept. receives dental grant

A major grant has been awarded to the new District Health Department No. 3 Dental Health Services Clinic in East Jordan by Delta Dental Plan of Michigan, the state's largest administrator of group dental benefit programs.

A total of $15,000 has been given by Delta to the clinic to help defray its development costs. This action was taken with the support of the Vacationland District Dental Society. The clinic, which opened in January, is operated by District Health Department No. 3 and provides dental treatment to young people aged three to 21 covered by Medicaid in Charlevoix, Emmet, Antrim and Oshtemo counties. This is the first such dental clinic in northern lower Michigan and its is expected to serve more than 1,000 people per year.

According to Gerry Chase, Administrator of District Health Department No. 3, "This support from Delta Dental has been greatly appreciated. It has assisted us in the ability to serve many children with Medicaid who were not being served. Families have been very appreciative of the care."

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

1) That Section 4.3 License-Required, of the City's Streets and Sidewalks Ordinance (Chapter 40 of the City Code) be amended by deleting the existing wording of Section 4.3 and in its place inserting the following:

4.3 License-Required

It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to erect, place, maintain or operate, on any public street or sidewalks or in any other public way or place, within the City limits, except in the areas designated as the "CBD", Central Business District in Chapter 51, Zoning and Planning of this Code, any article, object or any other obstruction except under the conditions and in the manner presented in this chapter. Provided, however, the City Manager or his designee may grant, pursuant to the terms of this chapter, licenses for the erection, placement, maintenance or operation of newsracks, tables, chairs and planters on sidewalks within the area mapped as the "CBD" Central Business District in Chapter 51 of this Code.

2) That Section 4.5 Same conditions (b) Issuance, annual fee of the City's Streets and Sidewalks Ordinance be amended by deleting the words "annual fee" from the heading and by deleting the last sentence from this section which requires a fee such that Section 4.5(b) reads as follows:

(b) Issuance. Licenses shall be issued for the installation of newsracks, planters, tables and chairs with prior inspection of the location but such newsracks, planters, tables and chairs, and the installation, use or maintenance thereof shall be conditioned upon observance of the provisions of this chapter and upon such reasonable rules and regulations as may be established by the city council, from time to time, by resolution. Licenses shall be issued within two (2) working days after the application has been filed.

3) That Section 4.5 Same-Conditions (c) Validity, renewal of the City's Streets and Sidewalks Ordinance be amended by omitting reference to the payment of an annual license fee such that Section 4.5(c) will read as follows:

(c) Validity, renewal. Such licenses shall be valid for one (1) year and shall be renewable pursuant to the procedure for the original applications referred to in Section 4.4 of this chapter.

ORDINANCE #597

AN ORDINANCE TO PROVIDE A LICENSING PROCEDURE FOR MASS GATHERINGS TO INSURE THE PUBLIC HEALTH, SAFETY AND WELFARE BY PROPER PLANNING FOR AND USE OF CITY SERVICES AND PERSONNEL.

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

Section 1. Definitions

The following terms, as used in this Ordinance, are hereby defined to mean:

- "City" shall mean the City of Charlevoix.
- "City Manager" shall mean the person appointed by the City pursuant to Article III, Section 3.3 of the City Charter for the City of Charlevoix or his or her designee.
- "Licensee" shall mean any person to whom a license is issued pursuant to this Ordinance.
- "Mass gathering" shall mean an organized outdoor event of two thousand (2,000) people or more held on either public or private property within the City, except an event conducted or sponsored by a governmental unit or agency held on public property and except an event conducted or sponsored by any entity qualifying for tax exempt status under Section 501 (c) (3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, being 26 U.S.C. 501(c) (3), as incorporated by reference in Section 201 of the Michigan Income Tax Act of 1967, Act 281 of the Public Acts of 1967, being Sec. 206.201 ~~et seq.~~, of the Compiled Laws of 1948.
- "Person" shall mean any natural person, partnership, corporation, association or organization.

1. "Sponsor" shall mean any person who organizes, promotes, conducts, or causes to be organized, promoted or conducted a mass gathering.

Section 2. License Requirements

2.1 Necessity of License

A person shall not sponsor, maintain, conduct, promote or permit a mass gathering in the City of Charlevoix without first obtaining a license from the City for each mass gathering.

2.2 Application for License

No later than twenty (20) days before the proposed mass gathering, the sponsor(s) of the mass gathering shall submit in writing an application for a mass gathering license to the City Manager on such forms and in such manner as the City Manager prescribes. The application shall contain (1) the name(s), (2) the date(s) and telephone number(s) of the proposed mass gathering sponsor(s), (3) the date(s) and estimated hours of the proposed mass gathering, (4) a description of the kind, character and type of mass gathering proposed, (5) the address of location of the site at which the proposed mass gathering will be held, including a written statement from the property owner consenting to the use of his or her property for the proposed mass gathering, and (5) an estimate of the maximum number of people expected to attend the proposed mass gathering.

2.3 Application Fee

Each application for a mass gathering license shall be accompanied by a non-refundable fee in an amount established from time to time by the City Council by resolution.

2.4 Action on Application

After receiving an application for a mass gathering license and the appropriate fee, the City Manager shall consider the information contained in the application and shall, if necessary, investigate or cause to be investigated the circumstances surrounding the proposed mass gathering, the number of people anticipated to attend, whether there is a conflict with other uses of the site, the increased demands on the City's police and fire department resources, and the sponsor's plans to provide adequate food and water facilities, bathroom facilities, disposal of solid waste and garbage and vehicle parking and access to the site. Within fifteen (15) days after receiving an application for a mass gathering license, the City Manager shall approve the application and issue the mass gathering license, unless after considering the above factors, he or she finds by a preponderance of the evidence that holding the mass gathering as proposed in the application would be detrimental to the public health, safety and welfare of the City. If the City Manager denies a mass gathering license, he or she shall send written notice of the denial, including the reasons for the denial, to the sponsor(s) by certified mail within five (5) days of the denial decision.

Section 3. Exemption from County Mass Gathering Ordinance

It is the express intent of the City of Charlevoix that all mass gatherings held within the City shall be governed by this Ordinance and shall therefore be exempt from the provisions of the Charlevoix County Mass Gathering Ordinance.

Section 4. Violations

4.1 Criminal Penalties

Any person who knowingly violates Section 2.1 of this Ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars ($500) or by imprisonment in the County jail for not more than ninety (90) days or both such fine and imprisonment.

4.2 Civil Remedies

Notwithstanding the penalties provided in Section 4.1, a violation of Section 2.1 of this Ordinance is hereby declared to be a nuisance per se and any action in violation thereof may be immediately enjoined in the Charlevoix County Circuit Court.

Section 5. Severability

If any portion of this ordinance or the application thereof to any person or circumstances shall be found to be invalid by any court of competent jurisdiction, such invalidity shall not affect the remaining portions or applications of this Ordinance which can be given effect without the invalid portion or application, provided such remaining portions are not determined by the court to be inoperable, and, to this end, this Ordinance is declared to be severable.

Police ask cyclists to be safe

(The following information is provided by the Charlevoix City Police Department in the interest of making Charlevoix a safer place to work, live and play.)

Good riding weather is upon us. With this warm weather, many will be getting their two wheel vehicles out of winter storage. Please remember when driving to watch for bicycles, motorcycles, and mopeds. These vehicles are small, and sometimes hard to see. So use extra caution when entering the roadway, or making lane changes. There may be a cycle in your blind spot. By taking an extra second to check, you may avoid a tragic situation.

And for all you cycle enthusiasts, please observe the rules of the road. You will be less likely to be injured if you are riding responsibly.

Parents, go over the rules of bicycle riding with your children before sending them out on their own. Below are a few Bicycle and Moped laws to remember.

*Moped riders MUST have a license. See the Secretary of State for more information.

*One person on a moped or bicycle unless the bicycle is built for two persons.

*Ride as near the right side of the road as possible. Must use bike path if one is provided.

*Can't carry items in hands while riding.

*Clinging to other vehicles is prohibited.

*Pedestrians have the right of way on walks.

*Obey all traffic signals and signs.

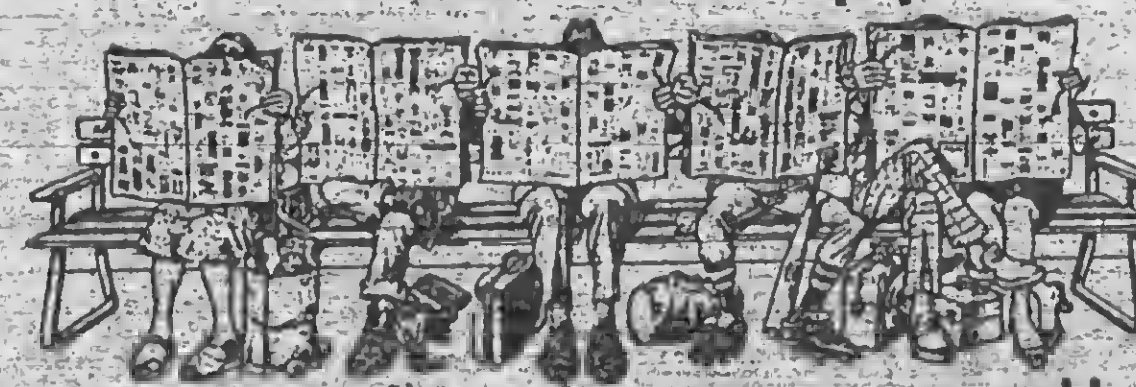

*And NO cycles on the sidewalks downtown.

*Have fun cycling and live LIVE by the rules!

Congratulations First State Bank

We are proud to have been chosen to build another cornerstone in the Charlevoix Business Community.

New building keeps focus on people

By L. Scott Swanson

A business can grow and be innovative, yet retain a sense of warmth and stability.

As of May 2, First State Bank moved into their new $1.5 million building at the southwest corner of State and Clinton Streets. The public is invited to officially celebrate the grand opening of the 15,000 square-foot building from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. May 20. Reading numbers such as $1.5 million and 15,000 square-feet and considering that the bank has just moved into a new building and is in the process of coming under new ownership might leave a person with the impression that the bank is growing large, frantic and impersonal. But as a customer walking into the lobby of the new bank, that's not the feeling you get at all.

The first thing you notice is that even though the location has changed, the people are still the same. Bank president Lou Hollow might be in his office, but then again he's no stranger to the lobby. It's not at all uncommon to see him out and about chatting with customers. As you enter the bank and look to your left, you will find tellers Mary Keem, Cookie Borths, Joyce Boss, Bonnie Fochman and Nicole Drenth. Out in the center of the office area you will see Chris Schwenke, Marilyn Joy, Tim LaBlance and Sharon Hoffman. Hollow, John Kurtz, Helen Emmons and Phil Kluczynski occupy (or at least are based in) glass-fronted offices beginning to the right of the bank's front entrance.

A commitment to a continuation of friendly and personalized service was designed into the new bank building. When the bank was still on the drawing boards, one of the things Hollow was adamant about was having bank officers visible and readily accessible. There would be no faceless titles and names hidden away in some obscure room. In Charlevoix, banking is a people-oriented endeavor.

In addition to the placement of offices, materials used in the construction of the new bank also provide a warm and stable atmosphere. Two of the most striking characteristics inside the bank are the extensive use of cherry wood and the granite counter tops at the teller windows. The exterior features stone walls with green-shuttered windows, a cedar shingled roof and decorative lamps atop a stone entryway.

Bank board member Tom Duke Jr. was one of the people who worked with Farmington Hills architect Lonnie Zimmerman to utilize some of the aforementioned materials in the new bank.

"I just like good, quality materials," Duke said in explaining why he favored things such as the cherry wood and granite. He said he and Zimmerman derived some ideas from the Earl Young architecture which is prevalent in the community and added their own ideas in an effort to design a building which would not only be attractive new, but would stand the test of time.

"I think it's common sense to use timeless materials," Duke said. Continued on next page

...bank continues to emphasize service

One facet of the new bank which isn't in place yet, but will be soon, is a marble check table which will have bronze light fixtures designed by a Farmington Hills artist.

The new building is First State Bank's third location in the history of the bank which was founded 1905. From 1905 until 1969 the bank was located on Bridge Street, in the building currently occupied by Village Inn Pizza. Up until 1967, First State Bank was known as Charlevoix State Savings Bank. The name was changed to avoid confusion with the bank's main competitor, Charlevoix County State Bank.

In 1969, First State Bank moved into a new building at the northwest corner of State and Clinton Streets where the old Carnegie Library was previously located. That new bank building has 7,000 square feet of space, ample space at the time, but space which the bank now has simply outgrown. In 1969, First State Bank had approximately $5 million in total assets. It now has approximately nine times that, or $45 million in total assets.

For a smalltown, community bank, First State Bank has done some very progressive things through the years. Hollow said the bank installed the county's first drive up window in 1969. First State Bank was also the first bank north of Clare to offer simple interest loans in place of the old add-on interest loans. In 1982, First State Bank became one of the first northern Michigan banks to have its own computer system.

The bank's leadership, both in terms of management and ownership, has been very stable. Hollow, who has been with the bank since 1973, is only the bank's fourth president in 87 years. Tom Duke, the current majority share holder, and a group of investors bought majority interest in the bank in 1967. They purchased stock from Archie Livingston, one of the bank's founders and a long-time bank president.

The May 20 open house will provide an ideal opportunity to see the new building for those members of the public who haven't already stopped in. Coffee, punch and cake will be served and there will be gifts and a grand prize drawing.

The bank's teller counter features a granite top and cherry wood front.

Helen Emmons occupies one of the bank offices which are purposely near the customer area.

Bank suit argued in circuit court

$9.7 million sale at issue

By L. Scott Swanson

It was a tailor's dream as several bankers and lawyers sharply dressed in conservative blue and gray suits gathered in the Charlevoix County Circuit Court room Monday morning for opening arguments in Charlevoix Investment Company's (CIC) suit against First State Bank of Charlevoix. The suit is centered around the proposed sale of First State Bank to CB Financial Corporation for $9.7 million. CB Financial is a Jackson based holding company which earlier this year purchased Charlevoix County State Bank.

CIC contends that they were wrongfully excluded from the sale process, yet made the highest bid. First State Bank counters that what was sought was not necessarily the highest bid, but the highest "responsible" bid and that majority shareholder Thomas Duke may sell, or not sell, his shares to whomever he chooses.

The case is being heard before Judge Thomas J. Foley, a retired judge from the Detroit area who still hears select cases. Attorneys Roy C. Hayes and Joseph L. Hardig, III argued on behalf of the plaintiffs while attorney Lloyd Fel argued the case for the defense.

Key individuals in the suit are Duke and Donald Parsons. Duke owns 60 percent of the stock in First of Charlevoix Corporation, the corporation which owns First State Bank. Duke and a group of partners purchased controlling interest in the bank in 1967.

Parsons also has a lengthy background in banking. According to court records, in 1964, he headed a group of people who acquired the Detroit Bank of the Commonwealth. Between 1964 and 1972, that banking empire grew to include 22 banks, 16 of which were in Michigan. But the empire collapsed.

Documents filed by First State Bank attorneys list a series of setbacks suffered by Parsons' and the banks he was associated with. Those setbacks include: Federal Reserve Board (FRB) denial of applications for branch banks; FRB criticism of the Bank of the Commonwealth's management; refusal of outside auditors to certify a bank's financial statements; public criticism of Parsons' group of banks by U.S. Treasury Secretary Kennedy; multimillion dollar lawsuits; bankruptcies by Parsons' firms; an FDIC assisted takeover of a bank; disagreements with financial backers; conflict of interest accusations.

In late December of 1991, Duke announced that he would be selling his interest in the bank. He said his decision to sell was motivated by his age, 63, and a feeling that it is time for the bank to have new ownership.

An information packet about First State Bank was put together and distributed to several possible buyers. About a dozen prospective buyers took a close look at the bank. The most interested, among them CB Financial, toured the bank.

In February, Parsons, on behalf of Resources Planning Corporation (which later formed CIC), inquired about purchasing the bank and asked for an information packet. He made an additional inquiry in March. Neither inquiry resulted in the acquisition of an information packet and the plaintiffs allege that Duke "clamped a lid of secrecy over the offering procedure."

Town over-run by track teams

Seventeen high school track teams from throughout northern Michigan were in Charlevoix Saturday for the Class C Regional Meet. Charlevoix's boys' team outran and outclassed the rest of the field. The Rayder boys took first place, more than doubling the point total of the second place team. The girls team finished third, missing second place by a point. Aimee Livingston (center) was part of the Rayders' winning 1600 meter relay team.

Council and school board seats sought by several

There will be competition in two local political races this summer.

Dennis Kusina, Mary Lee Campbell, Steve Czerkes and incumbent Larry Levengood will be competing for two seats on the Charlevoix

Board of education in the June 8 school election.

Meanwhile, at the city council incumbent first ward council member Bill Haggard is being challenged by former county commissioner

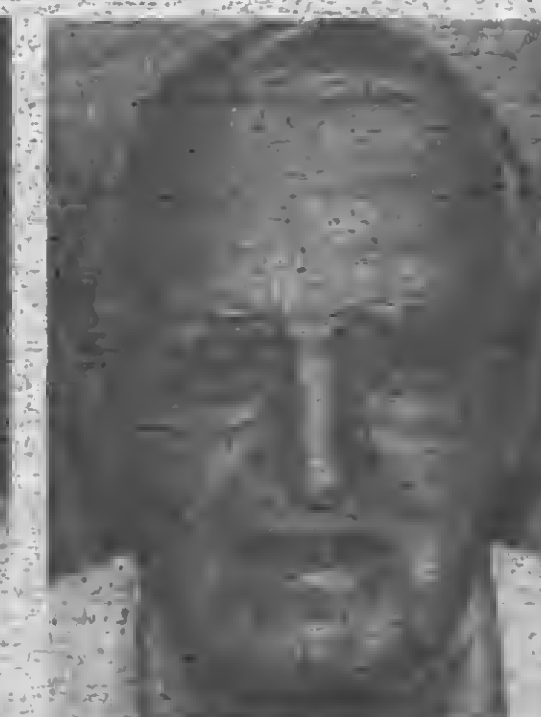

Don Meggison and former council member and mayor Ralph McRae.

The four school board candidates will be seeking four-year terms. The two available seats are currently held by Levengood and Ken Boss. Levengood is seeking to serve his second term. Boss, a long-

AIDS prevention to be discussed

Parents of students are invited to attend a "From All Walks of Life" parent workshop May 21 at Charlevoix High School.
During May Charlevoix freshman students will learn all about AIDS and how they can resist pressure to become sexually involved as well as other peer pressures. At the workshop, parents will learn how to reinforce the information and skills their children have learned.
The "From All Walks of Life" project is being presented throughout the area by Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood (NMPP) through a grant from the Michigan Department of Education and the U.S. Centers for Disease Control. Additional funding has been provided by Rotary Charities of Traverse City, Charlevoix Zonta and other community organizations.
"From All Walks of Life" uses trained teen peer educators to get the program's message across and involves parents in the workshops. These components of the program which have been duplicated from NMPP's "How to Say No" project, now in its ninth year. Much of the information in the program also builds upon the "Say No" abstinence education.
Peer educator presenters from area high schools present the series and role model the idea that teens don't have to be embarrassed to talk with their partners about their concerns about sex. In "From All Walks of Life," teens learn to stand up for their rights and resist the pressure of unsafe sexual involvement. In addition to the "Say No" skills, teens learn the facts about HIV/AIDS and their risk of contracting the disease.
Project coordinator Carleen Hubbell explained the reason teen presenters are used in the classroom is that studies have shown teens are most influenced by their peers. Parents, however, are second, Hubbell said.
For that reason, the parent workshops are designed to help parents get their values across and reinforce the skills their teens are learning. The parents are taught the same assertive skills and receive communication tips. They also learn the facts about AIDS so they can be a source of accurate information for their families.
"We developed the "From All Walks of Life" program because we feel area teens are at serious risk of contracting AIDS," explained Hubbell. "Local studies show that up to 70% of area high school students are sexually active. Although the number of AIDS cases is still relatively low in Northern Michigan, it is just a matter of time before many people are infected."
The upcoming "From All Walks of Life" parent's workshop will be held at the Charlevoix High School Study Hall from 6:30 p.m. until 8:30 p.m. May 21. Parents with children of all ages are encouraged to attend.
Donations to the "From All walks of Life" program can be made through NMPP in Petoskey. For more information about the program, call 347-9692.

time board member, is not seeking re-election.
In addition to Haggard, two other council members, Jackie Cross from the third ward and Ted Felter from the second ward, along with mayor Dave Novotny are up for re-election. Cross, Felter and Novotny are all seeking a second term. None of the three is being challenged in the Aug. 4 primary election.
The top two first ward candidates from the Aug. 4 primary will compete against each other in the Nov. 3 general election.
In a change from the past, the winner of the election will take office at the next council meeting following the election, rather than at the first meeting of the new year.
In addition to the two board positions, school district voters will also decide two property tax renewal requests. One is for 17.05 mills for school operations. The other is for half a mill for three years to fund the Charlevoix Public Library. (A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of a home's assessed value with assessed value being half of a home's theoretical market value.)
The school is currently in the second year of a three-year .59 mill levy which voters approved to fund technological improvements (primarily new and additional computers for school classrooms).
This year the state took $94,397 from the Charlevoix School District through the Tax Base Sharing plan. Tax Base Sharing is being challenged in court elsewhere in Michigan. School business manager Rich Kelly said that if Tax Base Sharing is not overturned, he estimates it will cost Charlevoix schools approximately $128,000 next year.

This barge is doing repairs on the water intake for the water treatment plant. The work involves replacing the existing filter bed on the buried intake with a larger filter bed. For several years, the city has had problems keeping up with the water demands because of the effects of high winds and shifting silt on the small filter. At times, the maximum amount of water available with the old filter was 1.5 million gallons a day, when the demand would often be as high as 2 million gallons a day. The EPA is funding 90 percent of the cost of repairs, with the State paying the remaining 10 percent.

Since I've spent the entire winter researching the field of fine dining through the ages — covering 500 years over three continents — it seems timely and fitting to shrink this subject into manageable proportions for today's column and report on the eating establishments in our own city on three lakes.

Susan Van Wieren has counted 32 places to eat in Charlevoix, but for today's purposes we will omit the fast food places and taverns and focus only on the reliable old and interesting new places to savor local delicacies.

It might even be a good idea to post this list on the refrigerator for your summer visitors.

WITH A VIEW OF THE WATER:

1) Numero uno, watching the boats go through the channel at Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant.

2) A new close second is the Back Room at 218 Bridge Street. ALL tables overlooking Round Lake. Delicious Detroit imported deli menu. An informal outdoor cafe upstairs.

3) If you're lucky, a table overlooking the city docks at the popular Parkside Restaurant.

4) The just opened, long awaited, bistro-style cafe, Pete and Mickey's in the Edgewater Inn next to the bridge, a spin-off by the owners of the renowned Tapawingo Restaurant in Ellsworth.

5) The porch at Nanny's overlooking Lake Charlevoix, especially during the Wednesday sailboat races.

6) Boaters and landlubbers both enjoy watching the Ironton Ferry cross at The Landing near the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

WITH A VIEW OF THE GOLF COURSES: The porch at Alexander's Restaurant and bar.

A PASTORAL COUNTRY SCENE: The Inn at Dunmags. This year a simplified menu to complement the golfers. Available transportation from the nearby Lake Club for boaters. Open in June.

RELIABLE RESTAURANT: Terry's Place, always delicious and dependable with good service — a Five Star Reputation.

WITH DANCING AND

LIVE MUSIC:

1) Grey Gables, a perennial favorite with "Tink" Kauffman at the singalong piano bar.

2) The Argonne has booked a popular, vibrant, energetic vocalist and electric piano duo, Maggie and Murray five nights a week.

OLD TIME FAVORITES: Juillerette's Restaurant for cinnamon bread and breakfast and lunch.

THE BEANERY: Cute new coffee, tea, chocolate place that serves only pies and donuts on Park Ave.

COMING SOON: Chee Peng, an attractive Chinese restaurant in a pagoda-like building with just a touch of green and red trim on the south side of the bridge. (Formerly the Fireside Inn.)

JUST OPENED: Rosa's, a new Italian Bakery, also on the south side on Bridge Street. A winner.

Sheriff warns of phone scams

The Sheriff's office receives approximately one call a week from a citizen in Charlevoix County who has been contacted by someone over the phone who indicates they are soliciting for advertisement in a law enforcement publication. They state that proceeds will benefit local law enforcement and many times they use the name of the local departments and name of the Sheriff.

Your local law enforcement in Charlevoix County appreciates the fact that citizens want to support their police agencies, but these telephone solicitations are, on the whole, of no benefit to your local law enforcement agency.

According to the Sheriff, a good policy to follow is not to get involved with law enforcement telephone solicitation and if you have a question contact the Sheriff's office or your city police department.

Two county tax increases proposed

By Laurie Lounsbury

Calling all voters. It's time to decide if you want 911 service in Charlevoix County. The Charlevoix County Commissioners voted to put the 911 resolution on the August ballot for the voters' decision. The 911 resolution will call for an increase of one mill (a mill is $1 per for every $1,000 of assessed value) a year for two years, which will cover the cost of the 911 start up and equipment, as well as a central dispatch system. After the first two years, the cost will be taken off the tax roll and will become a user fee, placed on people's phone bills.

Commissioner Walt Hufford expressed concern about putting two separate aspects of the 911 system together on the ballot. The two separate issues are the start up costs for 911, which include radio equipment and operating expenses, and the central dispatch system. Commissioner Phil Johnson responded by saying that having a 911 system without central dispatch isn't worth it, so it's an all or nothing situation. The monthly cost for 911 will be $2.25 per phone line.

In other business, the commissioners decided to put a .25 operating mill for the county transit system on the August ballot. Chairman Don Smith followed Johnson's recommendation for the .25 mill, but said, "I think they have too much of an operation, and I'll vote no when it's on the ballot."

Commissioners appointed an ad hoc committee to come up with a job description for a county coordinator. Committee members will be: Commissioners Jim Behling and Hufford, along with Ken Staley, Tom Gartock, Karl Waldner, Sue Erber, and Joan Blanchard.

The resolution eliminating retired county employees dependent benefits was rescinded by the commissioners. A vote was taken to reconsider the retired employee benefit plan, which passed unanimously. A new resolution was passed by the commissioners, which will leave the employee benefit plan as it is until Sept. 1, when an actuarial study will be completed.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

by Pastor Merlin R. Wellhausen

Jesus said, "Greater love has no one than this, that he lay down his life for his friends. Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you." John 14:13 and 14:27

In 1868, General John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic issued an order setting aside May 30 as a day to decorate the graves of the men who fell in battle during the Civil War. At first, the people called it Decoration Day. Gradually the observance was expanded to include all our war dead and we started calling it Memorial Day. In recent years, we have used it as an occasion to remember all our loved ones who have died and we have changed the date to the last Monday in May so we can have another three-day weekend.

Days like this are important for us, because often we forget those who have gone before us and paved the way for the kind of life-style we are presently enjoying. Today we as Americans are enjoying a time of peace — this peace did not come cheap — peace has its cost; peace has its sacrifice. Our relatives, neighbors or friends bore the cost and sacrifice when they gave their lives to bring us the peace we are enjoying today. We can be thankful for the peace they brought us.

National peace is nice, but there is a different peace which Jesus is referring to. Jesus has offered peace between man and God. Like national peace, the peace that Jesus offers also had its cost and sacrifice. Like national peace, blood was also shed as a cost and sacrifice. Like national peace, there was an enemy. The enemy was not a foreign country, the enemy was invisible, the devil. Like national peace, there was a battle and a casualty: One person, Jesus, fought the battle over sin, death and the devil's power, and gave up His life as a sacrifice for many.

Jesus knew that He was the only one who could offer this peace, because this peace could not be secured by going to war against another nation. This peace could not be earned by our merits. This peace could not be deserved by our good behavior. This peace had its cost and sacrifice, but to Jesus we were worth it.

On this Memorial Day, take some time to consider the cost and sacrifice your loved one paid to grant you the national peace you now enjoy. Also, remember the real peace brought forth by the cost and sacrifice of Jesus!

School science fair challenges students' creativity

How do students come up with ideas for the school science fair? They look around. Some look up and some look down.

At the top is Christopher Tille, with his blimp for the science fair. Charts show the difference between helium and hydrogen blimps. They also describe the Hindenburg explosion and Goodyear blimp.

At the right, Taya Drost answers the question, "How does dirty water come clean?" Her project shows household plumbing, both indoors and outdoors.

A hot tip from the police

Rollerbladers, skateboarders, and users of any other toy devices. This article is for you. With the rollerblading fad in full swing, we thought it would be appropriate to make people aware of the laws that pertain to their use. Before you shell out big money for a pair of blades, be sure that you have a place available to use them. The following laws are for all devices listed above.

City Ordinance section 9.202 prohibits the use of these devices on the sidewalk adjacent to Bridge St. between the bridge to the North and Hurbut Street to the South.

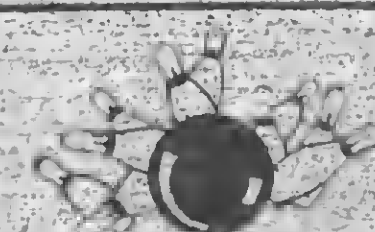

Uniform-traffic code for cities, townships, and villages section R 28.1204 (3.4) states that a person using these devices shall not go on any roadway, except while crossing at a crosswalk. When crossing at a crosswalk the person has the same rights, and shall be subject to all the duties applicable to pedestrians. In section R 28.1201 (3.1) the law makes parents responsible for knowingly allowing their children to break this law.

If you know somebody that uses one of these devices, and may not know these laws, please have them read this article. Our objective is your safety. Please do your part to help us.

Charlevoix runs away from the field

Ten boys and seven girls qualify for state meet

Other teams? They came. They ran.

None of the other 16 schools even came close to Charlevoix's boys' team in the Class C track Regional meet Saturday.

The Rayders set a school record in the 400 meter relay, qualified 10 runners for state and accumulated a team total of 127 points, more than twice as many as runner up Lake City's 60.5.

Senior sprinter Lance Emig qualified for state in four events, winning the 100 meter relay and running legs on the first place 400, 800 and 1600 meter relay teams.

Luke LaBlance won 400 meter race, placed second in the 800 meter and ran legs of the 400 and 1600 meter relays.

Baseball team wins twice

Pitching is the key and Charlevoix's baseball team got good pitching Monday in taking two games from Central Lake.

Wayne Joy and Don Jess combined to pitch a two-hit shut out in the opening game. Jody McGlinch and Ken Olinger struck out a total of seven Central Lake batters on the way to a win in game two.

Charlevoix won the first game 5-0. Joy pitched the first four innings and Jess closed out the final two. Joy struck out three and walked one while Jess struck out three.

Offensively, Joy had two singles.

David Skeel doubled, Brandon Webb, Randy Williams and Ed Johnson each singled in the game.

The Rayder bats really came to life in the second game, a 14-3 win. Webb had two doubles, McGlinch singled and tripled, Olinger had two singles, Jess singled and doubled, Travis Blissett doubled and Joy and Luke Porath each singled. Central Lake picked up three runs on three hits.

The two wins send Charlevoix into Thursday's pre-district game with a 10-10 season record. The Rayders got off to a slow start this spring, but have improved their record in recent weeks.

The pre-district game is at East Jordan and will begin at 4:30 p.m.

Softball team splits games

Charlevoix's girls' softball team won their seventeenth game of their season and then lost their third game of the season against Central Lake Monday.

Both games were close with the Rayders winning the first game 11-10 and losing game two 10-7.

Tammy Holm was the winning pitcher in the first game, allowing nine hits and eight walks while striking out one.

Charlevoix hit well in the game. Waja Wujcik had three singles, Stacy Tilton tripled and singled, Holm doubled and singled, Liz Grunch tripled, Melissa Murray doubled and Angelina Doan singled.

In the second game, four was an unlucky number for the Rayders as the Trojans scored four runs in the fourth inning to break a 4-4 tie.

Gina Webster

The U.S.A. team traveling to Europe will be coached by former Ludington coach Tom Kudwa and Alma College coach, Charlie Goffnet.

People who would like to help Webster make the trip may phone 547-2697.

Mary Jane Grunch was the losing pitcher, giving up nine hits, walking five and striking out two.

Doan had two doubles and a single, Mary Jane Grunch and Melissa Eaton both doubled.

Charlevoix will play a pre-district game Thursday at East Jordan.

Charlevoix's Michelle Keem, center, was one of seven Rayder girls to qualify for the May 30 Class C State track meet at Byron Center. Charlevoix's girls' team placed third in the Regional meet Saturday.

Commemorative run to honor retiring coach

Runners and the families of runners who ran for retiring cross country coach Pete Spieles between 1976 and 1992 are invited to a commemorative run and picnic in honor of the coach.

The run will begin at 5 p.m. at the high school. It will be followed by a potluck picnic at 6 p.m. at Ferry Beach.

The run will be nothing too brutal. The picnic will feature volleyball, reminiscing and fun. People attending are asked to bring their own table service and a dish to pass.

Runners are asked to RSVP by June 1 by phoning either 547-5476 or 547-5154.

Some key arguments

Listed below are some of the main arguments in the Charlevoix Investment Company versus First State Bank of Charlevoix suit

Plaintiff
Charlevoix Investment Company (CIC)

Defendant
First State Bank of Charlevoix

1. The bank was sold under a secretive process which excluded CIC from bidding.

2. Despite a lack of cooperation from the bank, CIC made an offer to purchase the bank for $100,000 more than the CB Financial offer which the bank board accepted. In looking after shareholder interests, the bank board has a fiduciary responsibility to look favorably upon the highest bid.

3. Don Parsons' wife, Louise, who according to the plaintiffs is the party interested in purchasing the bank, has a net worth of $47 million. Given that net worth, the financial resources are obviously available to support the CIC bid.

4. CIC has standing (a legal term for the right to bring suit) in this matter because it has purchased an option to buy 301 shares of bank stock.

5. The acquisition of the bank by CB Financial, which already owns Charlevoix County State Bank, will eliminate a competitive banking atmosphere in Charlevoix.

6. Louise Parsons is a local person who would like to purchase First State Bank so that it can be kept under local ownership. Don and Louise Parsons are members of the Chicago Club in Charlevoix.

7. Don Parsons' background in banking should not affect the offer made by his wife to buy the bank. Don Parsons' involvement in this matter has been very limited.

1. The bank made an exceptional effort to see that the sale was above board. Tom Duke, the bank's majority stock holder is under no obligation to sell, or not sell, to any particular party. Duke chose to exclude Don Parsons and organizations and people associated with him because of Parsons' previous problems with banking regulatory agencies.

2. The CIC offer was only received after the bank board accepted the CB offer. Bank board members are not required to accept the highest bid, but are obligated to use their best business judgment in making the best deal for shareholders. Given Parsons' past difficulties with regulatory agencies, any proposed transaction with Parsons would be subject to a greater level of regulatory scrutiny and quite possibly disapproved. That scrutiny would at the very least result in a costly delay. In addition, the CIC bid was contingent upon being able to secure financing. The CB bid was a cash offer.

3. If that kind of money is available, why was the bid contingent upon being able to secure financing?

4. CIC does not actually own stock and therefore lacks standing. CIC merely owns an option on 301 shares of stock which amounts to less than one percent of the bank's total outstanding shares.

5. There are other banks serving the Charlevoix area. There are also regulatory agencies which enforce antitrust statutes. The parties involved in the proposed merger are already working with the regulatory agencies to make sure they don't violate any statutes.

6. Neither Don nor Louise Parsons are local, nor are their companies. All are generally based elsewhere.

7. As bank attorney Lloyd Fel put it, to say Mr. Parsons is not involved with this issue is like saying Lee Iacocca isn't involved with the Chrysler Corporation. The language of banking laws is broad enough to cover Mr. Parsons regardless of whether his wife's name or corporate names are used in an effort to purchase the bank.

...bank case gets its day in court

Briefs filed by bank attorneys indicate that, "Mr. Duke, who was acquainted Mr. Parsons' history in Michigan banking declined to return Mr. Parsons' call because of Mr. Duke's conclusion that Mr. Parsons would not be a responsible bidder." The brief also says that Parsons' overtures were rebuffed because of the risk of either regulatory disapproval or at least delays due to increased regulatory scrutiny.

The bank received nine cash offers. The bank board met April 11 and agreed to accept the highest of those offers, an offer made by CB Financial. Earlier this year, CB Financial, a Jackson based holding company, acquired Charlevoix County State Bank.

April 13, CIC made an offer to purchase all outstanding shares of First State Bank for $100,000 more than the highest bid being considered, up to two times the bank's current book value.

Bank president Lou Hollow has compared that to two people agreeing on the purchase of a house for $50,000 and then having a third party rush in at the closing and offer $50,001.

CIC filed suit in Circuit Court April 23. Judge Richard Pajtas denied the plaintiff's request for a temporary restraining order. Pajtas has subsequently turned the case over to Foley.

Since April 23, several pieces of information have been added to the court file. In fact, Monday morning Foley noted the volume of material being filed right up until the court date. He joked that when he heard a plane fly over his home this weekend, he considered having his wife go outside to see if it had dropped additional information about the case.

In an amendment to the original suit, the plaintiffs indicate that it is not Parsons, but is Parsons' wife, Louise, who wishes to purchase the bank. The amended suit claims, "It is Louise P. Parsons' intent, if successful with her bid to purchase The Bank, to offer a majority of the Bank shares to other Charlevoix residents in order to maintain the local ownership and integrity of The Bank."

A point of contention interwoven throughout the suit is the issue of local ownership. CIC contends that CB Financial is a "gigantic" holding company and that the acquisition of First State Bank by such a holding company will "injure small businesses who rely on their relationship with their local bank for their borrowing and other banking needs by eliminating competition for business banking services."

The defense argument on that point is that CB Financial is not a "gigantic" holding company, but ranks fifteenth in size among Michigan bank holding companies; that CB will be sensitive to the needs of bank officials and employees and has had an opportunity to develop a preliminary understanding of how the two banks can best be consolidated to utilize the banks' human resources; and that RPC, CIC and the Parsons are no more local than CB Financial.

Another key issue of contention has been a stipulation in the CIC offer making it "contingent upon obtaining appropriate financing." Attorneys for the bank point out that the CB offer was cash and not contingent upon financing. CIC attorneys further contend that even though the offer is contingent upon financing, Louise Parsons has a net worth of approximately $47 million; therefore financing should not be a drawback. To which the bank attorneys argue, if the plaintiffs have that kind of money available, why is the offer contingent upon financing.

As of press time, Foley had taken a defense motion for summary judgment under advisement, but was hearing initial testimony.

Peace Corps worker returns from Botswana

Botswana, Africa, is a long way from East Jordan. Yet Christopher Anderson, who just returned from Botswana, said that living in Africa made him realize one fundamental fact. "People are quite similar all over the world," he said.

Anderson, a native of East Jordan, spent the last two and a half years in the Peace Corps, as a science teacher in the remote village of Mabutsane, Botswana. He reports that Botswana is doing quite well as an independent, third world

Industrial arts students win several state awards

Several Charlevoix Industrial Arts students won state awards for projects and drawings at the State Industrial Arts Awards Competition hosted by the Grand Traverse Resort last week. Winners of ribbons and plaques from Charlevoix Middle School include:

Gary Leitner, 2nd on copper tooled ducks and 4th on a turned walnut and oak bowl.

Carolyn Campbell, 2nd on a set of five cherry bowls and 5th on a turned mahogany bowl.

Robby Bunting, 3rd on a set of two walnut bowls and 10th on a copper tooled picture.

Mike White, 9th on a copper tooled picture and honorable mention on a Michigan clock.

Cam Carr, honorable mentions on a turned wooden bowl, a copper tooled goalie picture and a nautical pulley lamp.

Shay Arnold, Brad Eaton and Ryan Pittman each received honorable mentions on Michigan clocks.

Michael Post, honorable mention on a drawing of a rocket.

Eric Rowell, honorable mention on a nautical pulley lamp.

Jessica Van Guilder, honorable mention on a drawing of a stencil pattern.

Charlevoix High School students with their projects and awards are: Robby Stradtner, 3rd on a bread box and cutting board.

Scott Campbell, honorable mention on a breadbox and cutting board.

Dan Spang, honorable mention on a set of house plans.

Industrial Arts teachers Jim Jinsky in the Middle School and Richard McLenon and Brian Cota in the high school complimented these students for their awards. Hundreds of exceptional projects made this year's state competition very competitive.

country. The Botswanans have developed a progressive, multi-party democracy while maintaining the traditional rituals of informal tribal law. Anderson says that the two interact well.

Anderson made a swift decision to join the Peace Corps while he was attending Michigan Technical University. A Peace Corps recruiter addressed the students, and as soon as he finished, Anderson started to fill out his application. "I decided right then I wanted to do it," Anderson said.

Anderson found it interesting to travel to the other side of the world and view the United States as others see it from a distance. "It (the U.S.) seems a lot more hurried and concerned, always worrying about the little things, not the big things," said Anderson.

While Botswana is progressing well in some aspects, it remains traditional and primitive in other ways. Extended families live together in compounds, with homes called roundevalls, made of dung and mud with a thatched roof. Water is a luxury in the arid land, so townspeople get their water from a centrally located water pipe in the center of the village.

If a person becomes ill in Mabutsane, the bushmen will perform a ritualistic healing dance for the sick person, collapsing at the end of their all night dance in a trance, which they believe allows them to spiritually travel into the soul of the sick person and heal them.

New Italian bakery bakes fine foods

By Laurie Lounsbury

Claudio Tripicchio is no stranger to the wee hours of the morning. He's up every morning at 2 a.m., baking breads and pastries for his new business, Rosa's Italian Bakery. Tripicchio isn't complaining, however. The long nights of baking are a result of the heavy demands for their baked goods that they've experienced during their first week of business.

Tripicchio, along with his wife Maria and his father-in-law Carmine Russo, are launching their new deli and bakery store in Charlevoix after eight years in the bakery business in Sterling Heights. Tripicchio was ready to take his wife and two children, aged seven and twelve, out of the city. Crime, pollution, and other problems that plague large cities prompted his decision. "Down there, I had a gun under the cash register. Here, I've got nothing," Tripicchio said, gesturing to the empty shelf under his cash register.

Tripicchio and his family have vacationed in Charlevoix for six years, having been introduced to the area by Dee Maurer. Maurer now works for them, and credits the popular, Danish style coffee cakes to her Danish influence on Tripicchio.

Tripicchio, who is originally from Calabria, Italy, went to Chef school in Italy for four years before coming to the United States in 1977. He met his wife in Italy, when she was on vacation from her home town of Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Rosa's Italian Bakery, which is named for Tripicchio's mother-in-law, features Italian breads and pastries, cookies, and an Italian deli counter. The store is also well stocked with imported Italian pastas and canned goods. Tripicchio says his specialty item is his own, home made canoli. "The canoli, I do myself. Even if I have to crawl in here, I do it myself. It's a secret recipe, even my wife doesn't know," Tripicchio said. It takes Tripicchio two and a half hours to make enough cream to fill 100 canolis. Excluding the canolis, Tripicchio is happy to teach others the art of bread and pastry cooking. He's looking for more help in the store. "If they want to work, if they want to learn something, we can teach them," Tripicchio said of any potential employees.

Until Tripicchio finds more employees, he and his wife and father-in-law will continue to work long hours. Tripicchio doesn't want to disappoint any new customers who come back and ask for a cookie or doughnut that they took a fancy to the day before. "I haven't had time to get ahead on my baking, but I don't want a customer to be disappointed if I'm out of something," Tripicchio said.

Hundreds of people turned out for the second annual Street Fair held Saturday in Boyne City to benefit Camp Quality.

Approximately $5,000 was raised at this year's event for the camp for children with cancer. An auction was part of the festivities and according to Connie Shaler, an organizer for the event, the auction raised approximately $3,000 of the proceeds. Auction items were donated by several area businesses.

Bands, clowns and jugglers entertained during the day-long event at The Station House in Boyne City.

Organizers plan to make the street party an annual fund-raising event.

Bank decision expected Friday

Visiting Circuit Court Judge Thomas Foley is expected to issue a decision Friday morning in a lawsuit seeking to stop the sale of First State Bank of Charlevoix.

Early in April the bank board agreed in principle to sell the bank to CB Financial, a Jackson based holding company which earlier this year purchased Charlevoix County State Bank. Shortly after that agreement was announced, Charlevoix Investment Co., a business interest of Donald and Louise Parsons, filed suit to stop the sale.

During four and a-half days in court last week, Foley heard testimony from more than a dozen witnesses, among them, a former Michigan Banking Commissioner and a Federal Reserve Board Governor.

The plaintiffs' attorneys contend that the bank's majority shareholder, Thomas Duke, and the bank board acted improperly in not providing them with financial information about the bank and not accepting their bid, which they maintain is $100,000 higher than the CB Financial bid of approximately $9.7 million.

Bank attorneys argue that the plaintiffs lack legal standing to bring suit in the case because they don't own any bank stock, but rather only an option on a few shares of stock; that because of Donald Parsons' past problems with bank regulatory agencies any sale to Parsons or people affiliated with him would be subject to intense regulatory scrutiny which would at the very least delay the sale; that the bank board took great pains to see that the sale was handled properly; and that the plaintiff's bid was made after an agreement was made with CB Financial and was contingent upon financing.

Foley is scheduled to issue his ruling at 8:30 a.m. Friday.

It's been a while since they've had to do this regularly, but local veterans kept in step during Monday's Memorial Day Parade. Despite brisk temperatures, a good crowd turned out to honor those who gave their lives in combat.

Youth center to open May 30

By Laurie Lounsbury

The old Maxbauer Dairy Building is just a week away from becoming the new Club 77, a youth center for Charlevoix's teens. The youth center will officially open Saturday, May 30 at 1 p.m. Parents and teens are invited to attend, and refreshments will be served.

Earl Weir, president of the Board of Directors for the youth center, is taking care of all the last minute details to get the center ready for its opening day. Light fixtures still need to be hung, and carpet needs to be laid. With Weir's enthusiasm, these tasks should be completed by opening day. Weir's vigor stems from his determination to provide kids with a safe, alcohol and drug free environment.

Club 77 will always have one paid supervisor on the premises, who will be responsible for the building and equipment. It will be up to the parents to provide additional supervision. "The response from parents has been good so far," Weir said. Weir knows what he wants from the adults who volunteer to act as supervisors. He wants them to listen, not to give advice. "Kids don't necessarily want advice, they want to talk and have someone listen. I'll instruct supervisors to listen, not to counsel," said Weir.

Club 77 will be a place for teenagers to go, but Weir has plans. Continued on page 17

A closer look at one segment of the school

(The following story was written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a former council member and mayor and continues to be active in a number of civic matters.)

By Ralph McRae

Throughout our nation thousands of school systems are undergoing intense scrutiny. Michigan schools, including the Charlevoix school system, are among the schools being scrutinized. In Charlevoix, a strategic planning committee has been meeting for several months to evaluate the local school system. The thrust of the evaluation of schools is not to say that present educational methods are bad, but it is more a matter of acknowledging that there is room for improvement.

This story will focus on a very small segment of the educational system - the third grade level of Charlevoix Elementary School. Charlevoix's third grade has 92 students who are divided into four classrooms. Pat Carland, Erik Lundteigen, Karen Pierce and Cathy Silberhorn teach the four classes.

For the purposes of this story, each of the four teachers was given a list of 30 questions. In addition, Silberhorn was interviewed to elaborate on the opinions expressed in response to the written questions.

Of the four teachers, two have been teaching for more than 20 years, the other two less than half that long. Two of the teachers were assigned to the third grade, the other two chose third grade because they like to work with children in that age group. All four of the teachers said they are proud of their profession and dedicated to it.

Most of the teachers are now using cooperative methods of education, separating students into small groups. The teachers indicated that there are times when things outside of the classroom, such as the recent divorce of parents, make it difficult for children to concentrate on their studies. They don't see other matters such as family income or whether or not the child is an only child as having an effect on a child's ability to learn. School counselor Gayle Gennett works with the children on some of the distressful situations.

Some of the things outside the classroom which concern teachers are the lack of more latch key programs (places where children can go after school until their parents arrive home from work) and too many children coming to school without having eaten breakfast.

In job related matters, the word tenure was never mentioned by the question of teacher recertification was discussed. All of the third grade teachers keep their educational qualifications up to date and feel teachers should be held accountable and required to maintain high educational standards. Continuing to take educational courses and in-service training seminars are utilized to keep teachers updated in their knowledge and teaching methods. Teachers are evaluated by the school's principal.

Each of the third grade teachers teach five hours per day. Additional time is spent preparing lessons and correcting papers. The teachers are also on various school committees which address problems and develop methods of improving the school system.

The biggest event of the year for third grade students just took place this past week. Each year the entire third grade class takes a two-day field trip to Beaver Island. The Beaver Island trip is in its tenth year. It is a cooperative effort between the teaching staff and several parents and volunteers. The trip is divided into two groups; two classes and a flock of chaperones (one for every three children) in each group.

THE LONG AND SHORT OF MAKING MORE ON YOUR MONEY, WHATEVER YOUR ECONOMIC OUTLOOK.

RISE RATE CD FOR THE LONG TERM

FIRST RATE FUND FOR THE SHORT TERM

The economy is recovering. But even the experts can't agree on what interest rates will do.

So First of America has two shrewd ways for you to invest. No matter what your strategy.

The long view.

If you think rates will drop or stay flat, you should go with a longer-term investment and get a rate guaranteed to rise every six months over the next two years. The Rising Rate CD.

It starts at a bonus rate of 5 percent per annum. And you'll end up earning 6 1/2 percent for the final term. You can withdraw part or all of your money in the first ten days of every six-month interval without penalty. All it takes to get started is a $1000 deposit.

The short view.

If you predict rates will keep going up beyond this election year, invest short term with the First Rate Fund.

You'll make a bonus return of 5 1/4 percent per annum from the day you sign up through July 31.

So the sooner you invest the more you'll make. After July 31, the per annum rate is based on the 91-day Treasury Bill. So if the T-Bill goes up quickly, you'll continue to benefit from it.

A new deposit of $10,000 is required, and you can get your money seven days after notifying us.

It's a respectable rate of return plus liquidity in these uncertain times.

Of course, your investments are FDIC insured up to $100,000 per depositor. And bonus offers are good through July 31.

Call or visit the office nearest you. Because no matter what your point of view, you can't go wrong investing with us.

ONE OF THE MIDWEST'S BIGGEST BANKS, BUT ONLY WHEN YOU WANT US TO BE. FIRST OF AMERICA

Substantial penalty for early withdrawal. Minimum $10,000 balance required on First Rate Fund. This offer is available to individuals and sole proprietors only, and the bank reserves the right to limit the amount deposited. For information call us at 547-4031. Member FDIC. Equal Housing Lender.

Davis 50th anniversary

Clint and Mildred Davis recently celebrated their 50th Wedding Anniversary at a party hosted by their children and spouses. Richard and Karen Davis and Glen and Pat (Davis) Crawford. The party took place at the Davis Second Chance Pavilion, near Central Lake and was attended by 150 guests.

The couple received a beautiful and unusual patchwork quilt made by the employees of Second Chance Body Armor. Each employee contributed a section of the quilt and it included pictures of the anniversary couple. They were also presented a collage of pictures, assembled by their children, depicting the last 50 years of their lives.

Historical Society to discuss ghost towns

Ghost towns and settlements that formerly had a Post Office in Charlevoix County will be the subject of the program at the Charlevoix Historical Society beginning at 7 p.m., Tuesday, June 2. The program will be at the Harsha House Museum at 103 State Street. The event is open to the public and there is no admission charge. Featured speaker will be Charles F. Johnson. Johnson is an authority on ghost towns and settlements that formerly had Post Offices in Charlevoix County and has identified and located about 80 of them. A native of Michigan, Johnson now lives in Grand Rapids. He is a veteran stamp dealer, now retired and will tell about the first settlers of these long-ago towns, their first Postmasters, the dates these Post Offices were active, and other pertinent information about them. Johnson has an interesting background. He has a degree from Central Michigan University with majors in Languages, Business and Social Science and a minor in History. He did post graduate work at the University of Michigan. He served in the 1st Marine Division during the Korean War. He worked for the Grand Rapids Press for 15 years and as a columnist for the Lake County Star.

Today Ellsworth enters a new era in phone service. Ellsworth customers whose phone numbers begin with 588 will find dialing faster. Conversations clearer. And their phones, a lot smarter—because GTE has installed a new, state-of-the-art electronic switching system.

Expect a few changes in the way you make calls. You'll need to begin dialing within 15 seconds after lifting the receiver. And if you wait more than 15 seconds between digits, you'll need to hang up and dial again.

A few of you may be experiencing interrupted service on your push-button-tone telephones. If you are, please call GTE for Touch Calling service.

Listen for a different dial tone when you pick up the phone today. Then start talking, Ellsworth. The future's here.

Charlevoix people prepare to place their bloomers at the roadside

We've been patient and waited on spring as long as we can. Warm weather or not, 50,000 petunias are going in the ground between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m., Thursday, June 4.

The captains are in place and foot soldiers are being marshalled for the annual Operation Petunia. People interested in helping plant petunias need only to show up and report to the block captains who will

Block captains will validate each planter's ticket which allows the planter to enjoy the Petunia Picnic beginning in East Park at 6 p.m.

The picnic's main course will be hot dogs contributed by Oleson's and cooked by local Rotarians. Potato chips, ice cream and Coca Cola will accompany the dogs.

Operation Petunia is sponsored by Keep Charlevoix Beautiful Inc. The major fundraiser for the project is a dinner and auction party which is scheduled for July 28 this year.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

by REV. BENTON HEISLER

Dorothy, after a long and event-filled journey, is finally able to leave the land of Oz and return home. She simply closes her eyes and clicks together her ruby slippers, while all the time repeating, "There's no place like home..."

A home is safe, secure, steadfast and stable unless it's shattered by dysfunction or tragedy. It's meant to be a place where routine and order offer some sense of peace in the midst of circumstances and demands that alter and interrupt.

The child among us and within us can sometimes be heard crying out, "I just wanna go home!"

For some there is no "home". Circumstances beyond their control have affected their existence. For others the consequences of poor choice or dysfunctional addictive behavior have led to the loss of nearly all they possess. They wander aimlessly searching for a "home" and hope.

A true sense of "home" is often more spiritual and experiential than a physical abode. A true "spiritual home" has its very being in God and the presence of the Divine Spirit.

To be spiritually homeless is to be eternally alone, separated from God, cut off from love.

That is not God's vision or desire for you and me. God sent His son Jesus to teach us of the depth of God's love.

God has given us God's vision in the words of the Scriptures and extends to us the invitation to "come home". Indeed there is "no place like home." I invite you seek out a congregation in which to worship God and experience God's love and grace.

(Rev. Benton Heisler is pastor of the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Heisler and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

Congressional candidate Ruppe to visit May 28

Republican primary congressional candidate Phil Ruppe will be in Charlevoix at 8 a.m. Thursday, May 28 at Nanny's Restaurant. Ruppe will be hosting a town meeting and news conference. Ruppe was the featured speaker at the Charlevoix County Republican Party Lincoln Day Dinner May 2. A short time later he announced his candidacy for the congressional seat currently being held by Bob Davis. Davis has decided not to seek re-election.

Art Fair preparations have already started

A summer art fair that has managed to remain true to its origins as a fine arts exhibit is increasingly a rarity.

Charlevoix's annual Waterfront Art Fair, (Saturday, August 8), is one of the rare breed, filling the mid-town park, overlooking Round Lake Harbor, with the works of some of the country's finest contemporary artists.

For its focus, the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair is receiving kudos from fair goers and artists alike.

From 9 a.m. to sunset, Charlevoix's waterfront park is turned into an open air gallery. A panoply of colors, a range of fine arts, from paintings to jewelry, sculptures to fiber work, photography to ceramics, are exhibited by artists carefully selected during spring juries sessions.

"The result is," says art fair organizer Suzi Reis, "we attract really exciting artists, and the people who come to the show can focus on the art."

"This is our thirty fourth year of bringing some of the best artists in the country to Charlevoix," Reis continues. "We've found that the artists appreciate the totally art atmosphere of the day, and we know buyers and collectors take this fair very seriously."

"And we know people have fun. Where else can you see a collection of the best of contemporary art in such a fantastic setting," Reis asks rhetorically.

"The Charlevoix show is a good marriage of knowledgeable art patrons and fine art," states Michigan sculptor David McCarthy, a five-year exhibitor at the fair. "Charlevoix's fair has the best reputation in the state for quality and consistency of art."

"As an artist, atmosphere is important because I want to meet the people for whom I am doing my life's work," McCarthy continues. "Festivals with clowns and food discourage serious art collectors," he added.

Internationally known expressionist, Manfred Heine-Baux, of Ontario, Canada, exhibited at Charlevoix's show for the first time last year.

"What impressed me was the quality of the audience," Heine-Baux says. "They came to see art. They asked questions. The audience was incredible. I don't think you get that in a mixed event. Of course, I am a little bit of an old-fashioned European," notes the artist who was born in Munich and trained throughout Europe.

Thirty four years ago a small group of Charlevoixians, determined to bring fine art into northern Michigan, held the first Waterfront Art Fair. Collaborating with artists affiliated with art departments in major Michigan universities, the Detroit Institute of Art, and Detroit's Center for Creative Studies, the art fair's founders established the tone for the Charlevoix fair.

Randall Higdon, a watercolorist from Coloma, Michigan, first exhibited in Charlevoix in 1978. As a young aspiring full-time painter, he participated in up to 15 outdoor shows a year, now he limits his shows to three, and concentrates on galleries.

"Charlevoix has been very good for me," he reflects. "That's why I continue to show there. I appreciate that the people who come are coming to see art."

Watercolorist Pam Kessler from Clarkston, Michigan, echoes Higdon.

"Charlevoix is one of the few where the focus is on art and not on all the side shows. I've been involved with Charlevoix for a long time and it is one of my best shows. I hope it stays the way it is," says Kessler whose newest works in her floral series revolve around orchids.

Almost 100 third grade students took a two-day trip to Beaver Island. The annual excursion is something the third graders have come to look upon as the highlight of their school year. Parents are brought along to chaperone the trip at a ratio of one adult for every three children.

A bowling showdown

Charlevoix and East Jordan senior bowlers from senior citizen centers in the two squared off in a bowling challenge May 8 at Paul Bunyan Lanes in Charlevoix. The Charlevoix seniors made good use of the home lane advantage and won the challenge by more than 200 pins. The trophy is on display at the Charlevoix Senior Center.

"We are delighted to get the trophy back again this year," said Charlevoix Senior Center Director Sherry Black. "We have the perfect spot for it."

After bowling, the senior citizens got together for lunch at the Charlevoix Center where awards were distributed to the top bowlers.

Rayders win boys' and girls' 1992 division track titles

Boys' team wins by 71 points while girls set three school records

It wasn't so much a question of which team was going to win the Lake Michigan Division track meet. It was more a question of how they were going to go about doing it and what records they were going to set in the process.

Charlevoix won both the boys' and girls' meets. Rayder boys' coach Hal Evans juggled his lineup while Rayder girls' coach Ken Plude saw his team break three school records.

The Rayder boys' team totaled 153 points, 71 points better than second-place Boyne City with 82. Traverse City St. Francis was third with 63 points while Kalkaska, Mancelona, Harbor Springs, Elk Rapids and East Jordan completed the field.

Charlevoix's girls' team compiled 126 points. Kalkaska was second with 100 points and East Jordan third with 79 points. Elk Rapids, Traverse City St. Francis, Boyne City, Harbor Springs and Mancelona completed the field.

In the boys' race, Luke LaBlance ran the 200 meter race for the only second time this year. Normally he runs the 800 meter race in addition to the 400 meter race and two relays. The switch to the 200 meter didn't seem to do him any harm. He won.

Keith Carey and Chris LeButt ran legs on the winning 1600 meter relay team. Carey is normally a hurdler while LeButt is a distance runner from the cross country team. Mike Sevanski, another hurdler, also ran on two relay teams.

The girls' team had an excellent day in the distance races. Michelle Keem set a new school record in the 800 meter race with a time of 2:30.014. Keem then joined with Gina Webster, Elsa Conlan and Becky Bragg to set a record in the 3200 meter relay in a time of 10:12.095. Webster broke her own school record in the 1600 meter run although she placed second in the division race behind Tina Richards of East Jordan.

Softball team wins handily

Charlevoix's softball team got its postseason quest off on the right foot with a fairly casual 10-5 pre-district win over East Jordan. The Rayders built a 7-0 lead through the first five innings before giving up two runs in the sixth inning and three in the seventh.

Tammy Holm got the pitching win for the Rayders. Although she wasn't overpowering, she had good control. She walked only two batters while striking out one and allowing six hits.

Offensively, Charlevoix had nine hits. Liz Grunch had a double and single. Melissa Murray and Mary Jane Grunch each had two singles. Stacy Tilton tripled, Waja Wujcik doubled and Angelina Doan singled.

The win improved Charlevoix's season record to 18-3-1.

Baseball team squeaks by 6-5

Charlevoix's baseball team won its Class C pre-district game with East Jordan last Thursday, but it certainly wasn't easy. The Red Devils provided the Rayders with all the fun they could stand before Charlevoix pulled out a 6-5 win in the final inning.

Charlevoix fell behind early in the game, trailing 3-1 after two innings. The Rayders picked up two runs to tie the game in the third and then both teams scored a run to tie the game at 4-4 going into the seventh and final inning.

In the top half of the inning, Charlevoix opened with a single by David Skeel. Skeel took second on a passed ball and then scored on Ken Olinger's double. Olinger stole third and then scored on a second passed ball.

East Jordan promptly got one of the two runs back on singles by Chris Ciszewski, Steve Poole and Scott Chanda.

The two runners on base then advanced and with one out, the Red Devils had the tying run at third and the winning run at second.

Rayder pitcher, Jody McGlinch, who had been brought in to relieve Wayne Joy in the third inning then scuttled down. He struck out the next East Jordan batter and got the final out on a ground-out to shortstop.

McGlinch got the pitching win, striking out six, walking two and allowing five hits. Losing pitcher Tom Zipp went the distance allowing five hits, walking one and striking out eight.

Joy, Brandon Webb and Ed Johnson had singles for Charlevoix to go along with Skeel and Olinger's seventh inning hits.

The win brought Charlevoix's season record to 11-10. The Rayders will play Elk Rapids this Saturday in the Class C District at East Jordan.

Ken Olinger swings at a pitch early in Thursday's pre-district game. Olinger later scored the winning run.

Restaurant opens to talk on the street

By Laurie Lounsbury
Folks say that word of mouth is the best form of advertising. If that's the case, then Pete and Mickey's is getting a heck of a lot of good advertising. Pete and Mickey's, the new restaurant at the Edgewater Inn, has been the talk of the town since they gave away 412 free meals in an opening promotion for their business.

"It was good advertising, and it was good for us, so we'll know what to expect," said Mickey Bakst. Bakst, along with Pete Peterson, are the successful proprietors of Tapawingo in Ellsworth. The decision to open another restaurant in Charlevoix was not made in haste. "We looked at this location for years and thought, 'what a shame.' We envisioned what we could do with it," Bakst said.

What they did with it is an exciting blend of New York chic with Charlevoix casual. Salmon colored walls are cleverly shadowed with hints of yellow and red, giving the illusion of warmth and sunlight. Flying asparagus festoon the walls, and art deco lighting fixtures and chairs give the place a cheerful, upbeat atmosphere.

The food at Pete and Mickey's is an eclectic array of modern American cuisine, all reasonably priced.

Appetizers range from an Italian peasant soup to a spicy chicken quesadilla. Local whitefish is featured on both lunch and dinner menus, varying creatively in the form it's presented. There is a smoked whitefish salad, whitefish cakes served with corn relish for an appetizer, and hometown whitefish sauté served with roasted potatoes on the dinner menu. Peppered Pork Tenderloin and Smoked Beef Tenderloin are also appetite pleasers on the dinner menu, along with Pete's Wicked Shrimp, a spicy dish served with black beans and salsa.

While Chief Peterson gives his unique flare with food to Pete and Mickey's, Bakst gives it the ambience to complete the picture. Dining at Pete and Mickey's is just plain fun, thanks to Mickey Bakst. Bakst, who is by nature very outgoing and friendly in an offbeat sort of way, has passed his infectious cheerfulness on to his employees. "I told them, throw away everything you learned somewhere else. We're here to have fun," Bakst said.

It was because Bakst puts a high priority on a person's attitude that he chose Matt Sutherland to run the dining room at Pete and Mickey's. He interviewed many highly qualified individuals for the job, but chose Sutherland because of his kind and gentle nature.

Care facility schedules open house

By Laurie Lounsbury

One person from the media asked Deb Saur, Director of Boulder Park Terrace, if Boulder Park Terrace was a nursing home of the '90s.

"We're way beyond that," she replied.

Boulder Park Terrace is the new skilled care and assisted care facility jointly owned and operated by Charlevoix Area Hospital and Northern Michigan Hospital. This facility has taken the first step in banishing forever the negative image of nursing homes. With its plush decor and pleasant accommodations, it resembles a gracious hotel more than anything else.

Saur has worked hard to avoid the stereotypical image of a nursing care facility. In a press conference, she recalled her own youth when she went to visit an older relative in a nursing home. "She recalls her childlike discomfort with the visits, and a desire to get away from the place. At Boulder Park Terrace, Saur wanted to create a place that's not only pleasing for the residents, but warm and welcoming for friends and family to visit.

"Residents need more than anything, not to feel abandoned," Saur said.

Boulder Park Terrace has an ample number of places where anyone to open the club up on special occasions for younger children. He wants to invite middle school children to visit, and also plans to extend the club to the elementary school aged children from the Sunshine Club. Weir reasoned that if younger children visit the club, they will get familiar with the place and will continue to go there when they are older. "I admit, I have ulterior motives," said Weir of inviting younger children to the club. "I want to get the parents in here when they pick up their kids. I'm not going to let the parents get away without seeing what we're doing here." Weir said. Weir feels that the success of the club depends on long term planning, and for that he needs to involve parents of children at a younger age.

Club 77 will have two pool tables for the teens, a video game room, and a main room with a kitchen area and booths. Eventually, the club will also have a large dance room for parties and special events.

Ginnie Beer, President of the Charlevoix County Chapter of the American Cancer Society, and her daughter Jennifer, place a copy of the book, "My ABC Book of Cancer" on the shelf at the Charlevoix Middle School Library. The book was written by a child, 10-year-old Shannin Chamberlain, and describes her battle against cancer. The local Cancer Society has donated copies of the book to the middle school and Charlevoix Public Library.

would feel comfortable visiting their loved ones. The ice cream parlor will be a delight for grandchildren, and the Salty Dog Tavern will provide happy hour visitors with a place to relax. An aviary with hanging plants and wicker furniture provides a nice setting for reading the Sunday paper. If residents want to spruce up before their visitors arrive, they can go to the beauty parlor on the premises.

While tasteful surroundings are certainly desirable, they can only provide the backdrop to the key feature of Boulder Park Terrace, which is quality care. There will be one nurse's aide for every eight residents, compared to a ratio of one aide for every 14 residents found at other care facilities.

"We're not heavy on management staff, we put the emphasis directly on patient care," explained Saur.

The type of care available at Boulder Park Terrace breaks down into three different categories: Skilled care, basic care, and assisted living care. The cost for residents ranges from $95 a day for skilled care to $80 a day for assisted living care. Because a lot of amenities are included with the cost, Saur said that the cost is comparable with all of the other nursing homes in the area.

The idea for Boulder Park Terrace originated with Ralph McRae, who first discovered the need for a quality nursing home in Charlevoix. Because of McRae's promotional efforts, a library at the facility will be dedicated to him.

Having Boulder Park Terrace in Charlevoix does more than provide elderly people with a fine nursing facility. It will provide 60 jobs for area residents. There are already 50 people on staff, and ten more will be hired in the near future.

An open house for the public is scheduled May 30, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Boulder Park Terrace will start receiving residents June 1.

Rooms such as the dining room at the Boulder Park Terrace medical care facility are designed to be warm and inviting, rather than institutional. The facility will host an open house from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. this Saturday.

A hot tip from the city police

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE CHARLEVOIX HIGH SCHOOL CLASS OF 1992. You have made it, and we are proud of you. And congratulations also to those that have thought about quitting, but are still struggling to get that diploma. Hang in there your future depends on it.

Well Mom and Dad you got them through it. It seems like yesterday you were watching them get on the bus for the first time. Now they join the ranks of responsible adults. This is a time for celebration. It is also a time to remind your young adult to celebrate responsibly. Remember your son or daughter still depends on you, and this is no time to relax your rules. Let them know how you feel about alcohol, and other drugs. Ask them how they feel also. Many parents get together each year and provide alcohol free parties for the graduating class. Suggest to your young adult that they attend one of these events. Let them know you care, and that you are there for them. Too many young people die each year as a result of alcohol related accidents. Please do your part to make sure that our young adults will have a safe graduation, and a long and fulfilling life.

vided to the Courier by the Charlevoix City Police Department in an effort to keep Charlevoix a safe place to live and work.)

False alarms burden sheriff's department

By Laurie Lounsbury

When a burglar alarm cries "wolf" in Charlevoix County, the Sheriff's Department doesn't take it lightly. "We treat every false alarm as if it was a felony in progress," said Sheriff Lasater. There were 96 false alarms last year that sent Charlevoix County Sheriff's deputies on wild goose chases. The number of false alarms has doubled since 1989.

As the number of residential and commercial burglar alarm systems increased, so did the number of false alarms, prompting the county to adopt an ordinance for false alarms several years ago. The ordinance allows a business or residence to have one false alarm at no cost, but any further false alarms are billed to the individual at a cost of $50.

Lasater said that if it's an act of nature that sets off the alarm, such as high winds or a storm, they will not bill the individual. "We try to be reasonable," Lasater said. He explained that the department is also understanding in situations where a new employee might accidentally set off a commercial alarm. "It's when there is a flagrant violation that we bill," he said.

Most of the false alarms come from resort home owners who are not on the premises. The alarm system might have been sloppily installed, resulting in frequent false alarms. Another major cause is when home owners let friends or relatives stay at their vacation home without telling the visitors how to deactivate the alarm system.

Some false alarms are more flagrant violations. Lasater spoke of one person who deliberately set off his alarm system, then sat back and waited for the sheriff to arrive. When the sheriff got there, the homeowner explained, "I set it off just to see how long it would take you to get here, if I had a real emergency."

Billing individuals for false alarms helps offset the loss of time and money when the sheriff responds to false alarms. In 1989, the county received $1,425 in revenue from false alarm billings. In 1991, the county received $3,975. Lasater said the goal is to reduce the number of false alarms, not necessarily to increase the amount of revenue. He noted that his hope is that by enforcing the billing procedure, homeowners and business owners will be more careful with their alarm systems.

OPINIONS

Local opinions

Question: If an out of townner were to ask you for a good place to eat, what would you recommend?

Pam Swenor: "I like the Argonne real well, and the Weatheryane. I also like Nanny's. It depends on the price range you're looking for."

Debbi Shaw: "The Parkside. I'd recommend the whitefish there. It's a fun place, there are so many tables you almost feel like you're with a big family. I'd also recommend the Whangside Deli for unique foods that are good. They have outstanding cheesecake."

Holly LaVanway: "Nanny's. They have nice atmosphere, and good food. I usually go there with my friends."

EDITH

by EDITH GILBERT

Anyone who knows their way around Washington D.C. will always have a list of places to go and things to see. That is until you visit your children and offer to babysit, which is what I did last week. And let me tell you, the pictures at the National Gallery of Art pale in comparison to the picture of a happy one-year-old boy splashing in the bathtub!

The poshest restaurant loses its charm when instead one may enjoy watching a bright-eyed three-year-old sharing her peanut butter and jelly sandwich with her baby brother. Never mind that he has already dropped spoonfuls of yogurt, apple sauce, and crackers under the high chair. The cat will lick it up.

All those neat television stations with live programs emanating from the halls of Congress are, of course, off limits. What one is allowed to watch is Disney's 1001 Dalmatians, over and over and over again — sometimes with the sound turned off because the baby is sleeping — which can be a novel and mesmerizing experience.

In fact, I passed the whole week in a trance-like state, unaware of worldly affairs. An immediate crisis between four walls meant only that the frayed baby blanket couldn't be found anywhere. Naturally, this results in murderous screaming, which makes any self-respecting relative admire the healthy lung capacity of the little screamer.

Students of behavioral science may be interested in the unexplained alternating behavior between the little brother and sister. Is he going to get a shove or a pat? A blow on the head with a plastic bottle or a wet kiss?

Then there's the business of the telephone. These multinational companies should offer us a special long distance Grandparents' Reachout Plan. Heaven forbid you'd like to know when the kids are coming to visit for the summer, chances are the conversation will go something like this:

"Is this a good time to call? Who's crying? ... Yes, I'll wait 'til you put her on the potty ... Carl's throwing Dads' socks down the toilet? ... Shall I call back later? Sure, I'd love to talk to Helen ... mmhmm, mmhmm, mmhmm. Tell me what she said."

Having our children visit with their youngsters during the summer is something many of us look forward to every year. After borrowing high chairs, stroller, and cribs, counting towels, and looking for last year's sand toys, we are finally prepared to welcome the little darlings under our roof. We expect to spend long hours reading them stories and playing house. We dream of sitting on the beach with them or chasing fireflies. We will bond our relationship with nice grandparently activities.

The truth of the matter is we'll see more of our grocer than our little guests! We'll decry the fact that time went too fast, the summer was just a blur. We didn't take enough pictures and we didn't have any meaningful one-on-one conversations. We vow to do things differently next year.

When the visit is over and we roam through the house picking up forgotten shoes and socks, we find a childish crayon drawing of stick-like figures of a family. There are the grandparents, parents, aunts, uncles, cousins, children and cat with an "I love you" heart signature. This treasured picture is put on the refrigerator door as a reminder that, God willing, next summer everything will be exactly the same!

Letters to the editor

Cancer crusade successful

Editor,

To: The volunteers and residents of Charlevoix County

We would like to thank the many volunteers in Charlevoix County for your time, commitment and dedication in helping us during our 1992 American Cancer Society Crusade. We would also like to thank the many residents who graciously received our message and those who made a donation during our crusade. Without all of you working together, we would be unable to provide the many services we have available in our communities.

The work you did, along with others throughout America, provides the valuable service of education in the prevention of cancer and the funding to continue with research for a cure.

A thank you too to our director, Greta Mackler, for her guidance and commitment to our board in our efforts to inform others on risk reduction, cancer prevention, and its early detection.

Operation Petunia is a go for Thursday

With the threat of frost past, and quickly now before the geese begin migrating south, Operation Petunia will take place from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m., Thursday, June 4. Hostile weather conditions have delayed the planting twice this spring, but this time it's a go. Thousands of petunias will be planted along Bridge Street from the north end of town to the south end of town.

Block captains will validate each planter's ticket for the Petunia Picnic which will begin at 6 p.m. in East Park. The picnic's main course will be hot dogs contributed by the north side IGA store. The hot dogs will be cooked by local Rotarians. Accompanying the hot dogs will be potato chips, ice cream and Coca Cola.

Operation Petunia is sponsored by Keep Charlevoix Beautiful. Funding for the project is generated by an annual Petunia Party which takes place in conjunction with a Pool Auction. This year's Petunia Party is scheduled for July 28 at Dunmaglas. The party will feature dinner and entertainment by the 50-piece Northwood Symphony Orchestra. Tickets cost $50 per person and seating is limited to 150 couples.

People who order tickets prior to the Petunia Picnic will be eligible for an Early Bird Drawing. Winners of the drawing will receive two free tickets to the Petunia Party and Pool Auction and limousine service to and from the party. To reserve tickets, phone the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful office at 547-1991.

THE LONG AND SHORT OF MAKING MORE ON YOUR MONEY, WHATEVER YOUR ECONOMIC OUTLOOK.

RISE RATE CD FOR THE LONG TERM

FIRST RATE FUND FOR THE SHORT TERM

The economy is recovering. But even the experts can't agree on what interest rates will do. So First of America has two shrewd ways for you to invest. No matter what your strategy.

The long view. If you think rates will drop or stay flat, you should go with a longer-term investment and get a rate guaranteed to rise every six months over the next two years. The Rising Rate CD.

It starts at a bonus rate of 5 percent per annum. And you'll end up earning 6 1/2 percent for the final term. You can withdraw part or all of your money in the first ten days of every six-month interval without penalty. All it takes to get started is a $1000 deposit.

The short view. If you predict rates will keep going up beyond this election year, invest short term with the First Rate Fund. You'll make a bonus return of 5 1/4 percent per annum from the day you sign up through July 31.

So the sooner you invest the more you'll make. After July 31, the per annum rate is based on the 91-day Treasury Bill. So if the T-Bill goes up quickly, you'll continue to benefit from it.

A new deposit of $10,000* is required, and you can get your money seven days after notifying us.

It's a respectable rate of return plus liquidity in these uncertain times.

Of course, your investments are FDIC insured up to $100,000 per depositor. And bonus offers are good through July 31.

Call or visit the office nearest you. Because no matter what your point of view, you can't go wrong investing with us.

ONE OF THE MIDWEST'S BIGGEST BANKS, BUT ONLY WHEN YOU WANT US TO BE FIRST OF AMERICA

Substantial penalty for early withdrawal. *Minimum $10,000 balance required on First Rate Fund. This offer is available to individuals and sole proprietors only, and the bank reserves the right to limit the amount deposited. For information call us at: 547-4031. Member FDIC. Equal Housing Lender.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

by Joe Johnston, Youth Pastor

Eight years ago on May 26 my wife and I were married. As we have looked back on many occasions, to see the steady growth process, we were amazed to see how our Heavenly Father has been our constant guide and companion. Through thick and thin, for better, for worse, for rich, for poor, were the statements we made as we pledged our lives to each other. Though we have had our share of trials and tests, our love has never been shaken. Eight years ago we determined that we were in for the duration. DIVORCE is not in our vocabulary and neither is adultery and unfaithfulness. We embarked on the marriage covenant with the understanding that it's not just a legal contract that can be broken, but it's a "holy matrimony" in the sight of God.

I wonder how many people these days still see marriage as "Holy Matrimony"? Statistics tell us that upwards of 50 percent of all marriages these days end in divorce. This is true of both Christian and non-Christian marriages. How could this be? How could any two people, saved by the shed blood of Jesus, being a part of the Bride of Christ, ever contemplate divorce?

The "Born Again" believer should be exempt from all such notions as we understand our relationship with our spiritual groom, Jesus Christ. The bible paints a beautiful picture for us. Christ loves His bride just as a groom loves his bride. There is a freshness and unending commitment there. The groom is enthralled with his bride. He's ready to care for her, love her and take care of her through whatever comes. The bride as well must have the same commitment to purity, faithfulness and love toward her groom.

Jesus said He will return for His spotless bride. Only those who are committed and looking for the groom will be a part of that great ceremony. Are you committed? Or have you applied for divorce or annulment? The groom is soon to come.

(Pastor Joe Johnston is youth pastor at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Johnston and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

Track team places fifth at Class C State Finals

3200 relay team takes first

Led by several strong relay teams Charlevoix's boys' track team ran to a fifth place finish in the Class C State Finals track meet in Byron Center this past Saturday. The Rayders' 3200 meter relay team consisting of sophomore Zach Pajtas, junior Jason Frabis, junior Matt Smith and senior Mike Sevanski took first place with a time of 8:06.8.

Softball team ends season with a tough 7-6 district loss

Season ends with record of 20-5-1

Back when the seniors on the 1992 Charlevoix girls' softball team were freshmen, losing was something the varsity softball team did so often that it could almost be taken for granted. But by the time the seniors reached the last game of their high school careers this past Saturday, losing had become something they did so rarely that when it happened it was heartbreaking.

The Rayders led for most of the district semifinal game against Elk Rapids Saturday, but lost in the final inning.

The district tournament was played at East Jordan. Charlevoix had beaten East Jordan in a pre-district game to qualify for district play. Charlevoix had beaten Elk Rapids twice earlier in the season and in the district game took a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Leadoff hitter Melissa Cox was safe on an error. Tammy Holm walked. Stacy Tilton doubled home one run and Liz Grunch hit a sacrifice fly to bring in the second run.

Elk Rapids scored one run in the second inning, but the Rayders scored three times in the fourth to open up a 5-1 lead. Angelina Doan got things started with a one-out base hit. She scored on Melissa Murray's triple. Melissa Eaton reached base on a fielder's choice and Cox walked to set the table for Holm who drove in two runs with a single.

But Elk Rapids scored two runs of their own in the bottom of the fourth on two singles, a passed ball and an error.

Charlevoix added a run in the sixth with the help of two errors and a run scoring single from

Smith ran the third leg of the race and moved up from tenth to first. Sevanski fell behind early on the anchor leg, but rallied down the stretch for the 3200 meter state title.

Charlevoix's 400 meter relay team just missed a state title of their own. They were edged at the wire by Constatine. Both teams were clocked in at 44.6 seconds. The Rayder team of Lance Emig, Brian Coolman, Jason VanLo and Luke LaBlance were a tenth of a second off the school record time they ran earlier this year.

In the 800 meter relay, a Rayder team made up of Emig, Frabis, VanLo and LaBlance placed eighth with a time of 1:33.5.

In addition to his work in the relay race, Smith placed fifth in the 1600 meter run with a personal best time of 4:24.4 and placed seventh in the 3200 meter run with a time of 9:54.

LaBlance placed fifth in the 400 meter run with a time of 50.05, his best time of the year, and took ninth in the 800 meter race with a time of 2:01.

Charlevoix also sent a girls' 3200 meter relay team to the state finals. The team of Michelle Keem, Becky Bragg, Elsa Conlan and Anne Scharbaum placed eighth breaking their own school record with a time of 10:04.4.

Elk Rapids tied the game in the sixth on a combination of a walk, two singles and a double steal. Charlevoix had a chance to regain the lead in the top of the seventh inning, but had one runner thrown out at second base and ended up leaving two other runners stranded.

Elk Rapids scored the winning run on a double followed by a single.

Holm took the pitching loss, going four innings, striking out three, walking three and allowing nine hits. Mary Jane Grunch pitched two innings of relief, striking out one, walking three and allowing four hits.

The Rayders finished the season with a record of 20-5-1, their second straight 20-win season.

Among the key players they lost to graduation are Holm, Murray, Tilton, Eaton and first baseman Tara Morrow. However, they are returning the majority of their team for 1993.

DSO

Phil Ohmer's shotgun blast at 1755 Wednesday, May 20, inaugurated the Spring Racing series of the Charlevoix Yacht Club's three season series. Twenty-two yachts positioned themselves for the westerly start and worked their crafts toward the "A" mark parked off the old CYC clubhouse at the Depot. (More on that later.) At the mark, the colorful spinnakers ballooned out for the first time and filled the lake with a rainbow as the crews bore in toward the most southerly mark off the Irish Boat Shop.

After five legs of racing, Phil shortened the course as the wind ebbed and gave the fleet gun to Miss Piggy who completed the course in 1 hour 26 1/2 minutes.

Fleet A: 1. Pygmalion, 2. Gotcha, 3. Mint Julip ('Gee, I thought it was a fixed prop!')

Fleet B: 1. Sandpiper, 2. Cygnus (new helmsperson, MacDuff Stewart), 3. Blasen III (old helmsperson, Karl!), 4. Lost Vermonter (added weight with a mother-to-be), 5. Cabaret, 6. Canusa (truly, a family affair, and nice to have on the water).

Fleet C: 1. Minors in Possession ("She can't still be a minor can she?"), 2. Bandit, 3. H.S. Moisture Missile, 4. Humdinger, 5. Newsense, 6. White Lightning, 7. Vantage "the newest fleet member, a Tartan 28 that sails with a full holding tank."

8. Mi-Joy. JAM Fleet: 1. Flash, 2. Bald Eagle "our hair produces wind resistance and drag on most of us, Lou", 3. Cheemaun — that beautiful Tripp canoe, 4. Stallworth, 5. Apothecary.

On the second race of the series, May 27, Piggy again took first but lost the fleet gun to both Newsense and the Kenfeek's Humdinger by a full minute.

Fleet A: 1. Pygmalion, 2. Mint Julip (who put that folding prop on my boat?), 3. Gotcha.

Fleet B: 1. Blasen III — pending re-protest hearing, 2. Vermonter — ditto (and you're not lost anymore...we've found you!), 3. Cygnus (Gleason's full batons are worth it!), 4. Cabaret (Aren't they, Jim.), 5. Canusa, 6. Sandpiper.

Sandpiper and Cheemaun had an unfortunate "T-Bone" collision and fortunately, no one was injured. Both skippers graciously retired and we hope to see both back in the race to come.

Fleet C: 1. Newsense, 2. Humdinger, 31 MIP, 4. White Lightning "movin' up", 5. Bandit "movin' down", 61 H-S Moisture, 7. Allons-Y, 8. Mi-Joy, 9. Vantage — learning the rig takes time and patience.

JAM: 1. Flash, 2. Bald Eagle, 3. Stallworth, 4. Apothecary, 5. Cheemaun — part of the T-Bone.

CYC has moved into the new digs, if you haven't noticed, across from the Foster Boat Works, situated between the Gleason sail loft and the Bingham/Sheridan building to the north. Totally owned by members, the package was put together by the commodore, Douglas Simpson, his Vice Commodore, John Gordon, and Past Commodore, Mark Pirie. Please come down and take a look around. Membership applications are still available for a limit of 150 members, so if you are interested, please come in soon. The Club is open to membership from the general public and since it's inception in 1971 has a history of non-discrimination.

Baseball team finishes season with 11-11 record

Charlevoix got runners on base, but wasn't able to get enough of them across the plate as they took a 4-2 district semifinal loss at the hands of Elk Rapids Saturday. The Rayders stranded nine runners in the game including the potential tying runs in the final inning.

The Rayders fell behind 3-0 early in the game, but rallied with two runs in the fourth inning.

David Skeel led off with a single, Ken Olinger walked and Jody McGlinch singled to fill the bases. Bill Dreyer reached base on an infield error to push across one run and Ed Johnson walked to force in another. The Elk Rapids pitcher then struck out the next two batters to close out the inning.

Elk Rapids added a run in the sixth inning. Charlevoix threatened in their half of the sixth, but the Elk Rapids pitcher again struck out to batters to strand three runners.

In the final inning, Skeel again started things off with a one-out single and Olinger followed with a walk. The Rayders next batter hit a shot, but it was snagged by the third baseman. The final out came on a ground ball.

McGlinch took the pitching loss for Charlevoix. He pitched a complete game, striking out three, walking six and allowing four hits.

Charlevoix started out slowly this year, but rounded into form in the middle and later portions of the year to raise their season record above .500 for a time and close right at .500.

Among the key losses to graduation will be Joy, Olinger, Travis Blissett and Randy Williams, but the majority of the team will be back. Skeel and starting infielders Don Jess and Brandon Webb were sophomores this season.

BUSINESS

Business notes

A brief look at accomplishments and changes related to local business and business people.

Lexalite International Corporation of Charlevoix has been selected as a finalist in the 10th Annual Michigan New Product Award competition. Lexalite has been nominated for a new product called a "Reflexor."

A total of 19 finalists were selected from throughout the state. Products were judged on their ingenuity of concept, improved function and savings in use, safety, environmental considerations and contribution to the economic development of the state in the form of sales and jobs created.

Winners of the competition will be announced June 12 at a press conference at the Michigan Library and Historical Center in Lansing. Winning entries will represent Michigan in the National Society of Professional Engineers annual competition. The new product award competition is sponsored by the Michigan Manufacturers Association, the Michigan Society of Professional Engineers, Michigan Chamber of Commerce, Michigan Department of Commerce and the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

The Little Traverse Conservancy has announced the addition of two new members to their Land Protection staff. Heidi L. Dexter and Sally J. Churchill are now working with the Conservancy. Dexter will be working with landowners around Walloon Lake, Lake Charlevoix and along the U.S. 31 corridor between Charlevoix and Petoskey. Churchill will be working with landowners along M-119, on Beaver Island, and the Upper Inland Waterway including Round Lake, Crooked and Pickeral Lakes and the Crooked River.

Prudential Insurance Agent William Brodin recently earned the LUTCF designation conferred jointly by the National Association of Life Underwriters and the Life Underwriters Training Council. Brodin is based out of the Prudential office in Petoskey and operates an office in Charlevoix. Brodin, his wife Barbara and their two children reside in Charlevoix.

Tim Moore and Associates is becoming The Moore-Curtis Group. The change reflects the growth of the radio programming consultation firm, and sets the tone for the expanded scope and services of partners Tim Moore and Bill Curtis. Curtis is joining Moore's Michigan-based firm, which expanded to a national, full-service radio consulting business in 1990. Curtis' background in programming includes work with companies such as Edens, Saga, and Coleman and Liggett. The Moore-Curtis group has also added a Dallas office in association with MPT Productions. The company serves radio stations coast to coast in large and intermediate size markets.

LuAnn Horton, R.N., has joined the staff of Charlevoix Area Hospital as Operating Room Supervisor. Horton was most recently a clinical nurse in the operating room at St. Joseph Hospital in Tawas City. She was employed at that hospital for 10 years serving also as Central Supply Supervisor. She received her registered nurse degree at Alpena Community College in 1989. Her husband Patrick is a sales representative of 3-M Company. They now reside in Charlevoix. One of her responsibilities in her new position will be to oversee the plans for the new surgical suite to be built this year. Horton replaces Audrey Lehman who is retiring after 22 years at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Jody Hill and Paul LeFevre have opened The Beanery Coffee House at 101 Park Avenue. The Beanery is right next to Hoffmann Park, one of nicest places anywhere to sip coffee and watch the boats glide past.

Coffee house opens on Park Avenue

By Laurie Lounsbury

If you'd like to take your nose on an olfactory odyssey, just walk into The Beanery Coffee House at 101 Park Avenue, where the aroma of fresh brewed cappuccino and espresso mingles enticingly with the scents of pastries and desserts. The Beanery Coffee House is the joint effort of Paul LeFevre and Jody Hill, both first time business owners.

LeFevre has had years of experience in the restaurant business, but this is his first venture as a business owner. "He was really scared enough for both of us. I wasn't nervous at all," said Hill of their new endeavor. If LeFevre still has any fears about launching a new business, he is compensating for it with customer service. LeFevre opens The Beanery seven days a week at 6:30 a.m., ready to serve freshly brewed coffee and Rosa's Italian pastries to his customers. He's staying open until 9 p.m. Sunday through Thursday, and 11 p.m. on the weekends, but may extend his hours to accommodate the customers. "If I have people in here, I'll stay open later - anything to keep them happy," LeFevre said.

In keeping with traditional coffee houses, The Beanery has a cheerful seating area for customers to linger with their coffee. There is also a gift shop, with coffee mugs, flavored teas, flavored hot chocolate, and accessories.

If beans are your bag, the Beanery has a variety of different coffee beans to tempt your taste buds. Flavors like chocolate-raspberry coffee and frangelica coffee are among the 41 types of flavored coffee beans available.

With the arrival of warmer weather, The Beanery will be serving coffee ice cream drinks and iced Italian sodas. Outside sidewalk cafe seating will be an added summer feature.

Local coffee drinkers are invited to join the Mug Club. With the purchase of a coffee mug, the club member gets the first mug of coffee free, and all mugs of coffee after that will be served at a 25 percent discount.

LeFevre and Hill plan to keep The Beanery open all year, seven days a week.

Boating stickers are still required

Boaters should keep in mind that they'll need more than a current registration and a full tank of gas before getting underway - they will also need a Recreational Vessel Fee sticker!

The Recreational Vessel Fee sticker, or RVF for short, is required for all pleasure boats longer than 16 feet, operating on the navigable waters of the United States. The stickers are only good for one year. So, if your present sticker is for 1991, it's time for a new one.

Despite reports that the RVF law may have been changed or repealed, the RVF law HAS NOT been repealed and IS being enforced by the U.S. Coast Guard.

The RVF stickers can be ordered, either by calling 1-800-848-2100 and using your Visa or Mastercard, or by calling 1-800-368-56747 for a mail-in application. The fees for vessels are as follows:

- Vessels longer than 16 feet but less than 20 feet - $25.
- Vessels longer than 20 feet but less than 27 feet - $35.
- Vessels longer than 27 feet but less than 40 feet - $50.
- Vessels 40 feet in length or greater - $100.

Around the Great Lakes, boaters must pay the RVF if: 1) They will boat on one of the Great Lakes or the Mississippi River at least once during the year, or 2) they will boat on a body of water from which a 16-foot vessel can get to one of the Great Lakes or the Mississippi River, or 3) they will boat on Lake of the Woods, Minn.

Waters that are landlocked, either naturally or by inoperable locks and dams, are not subject to the law. Boaters operating their vessels exclusively on these waters do not have to have the RVF sticker. However, when in doubt about the navigability of a particular waterway, boaters should contact their nearest U.S. Coast Guard unit, or the Ninth District Public Affairs office at (216) 522-3900.

Operators of vessels cited for not having the RVF sticker, may face a fine of up to $5000. So far this year, the Coast Guard has cited 13 boats on the Great Lakes for non-compliance of the RVF law - resulting in an average fine of $160 each.

So, boaters should know before they go and make sure they have their Recreational Vessel fee sticker if they need one.

With the addition of six new businesses, the Charlevoix County Construction Building will become the M-66 Plaza. Located at the intersection of M-66 and Loeb Road, the building will be housing the Secretary of State, Mike's Glass, Salon '66 Hair Design, Therapeutic Massage by Ginger Bischoff, Studio Bodyworks by Jane Sooy, and Permanent Hair Removal by Karen Ferber, registered electrologist.

All of the businesses are currently open to the public, but some are by appointment only. The M-66 Plaza is planning to host a Grand Opening open house June 12, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Refreshments will be served, and there will be drawings for prizes and merchant services.

Charlevoix Yacht Club moves into a new home

By Laurie Lounsbury

For the first time in 22 years, the Charlevoix Yacht Club will be gathering after their Wednesday night races in a brand-new location. The yacht club, which used to make its home at the old Charlevoix railroad depot, has moved to a new building on Ferry Avenue, across from Foster Boatworks Condominiums.

Doug Simpson, commodore of the yacht club, said the reasons for leaving the Depot were twofold. First, the depot location on the north side of town was too far away from the boating district. Simpson pointed out that most members keep their boats at one of the marinas along Ferry Ave. Second, Simpson said that the yacht club was unable to use the Depot facility to the degree that they would have liked to.

The new Charlevoix Yacht Club building brought more changes to the club members than just a new location. Because the yacht club bought the building, all club members became stockholders in the club, for a one time cost of $825 up front. New members will need to spend $1,200 to become stockholders in the club. The cost increase caused a loss of about 20 percent of the members, but new members have replaced 10 percent of the loss.

Yacht club member Jim Stewart was very enthusiastic about the club's new building. "We got this building due to Doug Simpson, John Gordon, and Mark Perry," Stewart said.

The yacht club plans to have longer hours and be open for members on a regular, daily basis.

The Charlevoix Yacht Club will be hosting an open house for the public June 12. "We're still seeking new members, and we also want the public to see what's available here," Simpson said.

The new building will allow the yacht club to offer classes and activities that have been unavailable to the community. "We'd like to start a junior program, offer boating safety classes, and navigation classes here," Simpson said.

“Heard about the phones in Ellsworth?” “They’re smarter
now.”

Ellsworth entered a new age in telephone service on May 27. Ellsworth customers whose phone numbers begin with 588 now find dialing faster. Conversations clearer. And their phones, a lot smarter—because GTE has installed a new, state-of-the-art electronic switching system.

Expect a few changes in the way you make calls. You'll need to begin dialing within 15 seconds after lifting the receiver. And if you wait more than 15 seconds between digits, you'll need to hang up and dial again.

A few of you may be experiencing interrupted service on your push-button-tone telephones. If you are, please call GTE for Touch Calling service.

Listen for a different dial tone when you pick up the phone from now on. Then start talking, Ellsworth. The future's here.

Annis captures Midwest scenes

By Ralph McRae

Many years ago in Chicago, Jim Annis was an expert craftsman using exotic woods to making customized furniture and cabinets. Like many creative people, Annis had dreams and aspirations of transferring his talents to canvas as a painter.

Returning to Charlevoix in 1960, Annis taught himself artistic painting. Despite his lack of formal training Annis now has his work shown in hundreds of galleries. Annis' work is not abstract or idealistic scenes of nature, but focuses on the realistic scenes from past memories. He brings to life again logging trains, steam locomotives, old depots, ships and light houses. Initially, Annis was hesitant to show his work. Only after six years of painting did he begin to exhibit his work publicly. He eventually exhibited his work in the East Jordan art fair and subsequently in the Charlevoix art fair.

Before beginning an outline or sketch of a painting, Annis spends weeks and sometimes months researching the main subject. In 1975, he began to feel confident enough in his paintings to begin to market them. Now, most of his prints and reproductions are sold through a sales representative in Chicago. Annis' fame for accurately portraying the past led to his receiving commissions to illustrate the fronts of some of the famous show palaces of Chicago. Showing the facade of the famous Uptown movie palace brought requests for thousands of reprints. Annis was also commissioned to paint the facades of four other famous Chicago show houses.

The overwhelming success of the theatre paintings generated additional commissions. Annis painted the old-time baseball frontages of Wrigley Field as it was in 1945 and Comiskey Park as it was in 1939. Annis also did a painting of the 1945 Navin Field in Detroit, the predecessor of Tiger Stadium.

Annis has also become acclaimed for his lifelike illustrations of many of the fish sought by midwestern sportsmen. One of Annis' paintings was used by the state of Illinois for its official trout stamp.

Annis excels in showing nostalgic scenes in fine detail. His paintings of old steam locomotives show billowing steam and give a feeling of motion. Annis paints in acrylics and quick drying oils. His backings are watercolor boards and canvas. He has kept most of his original paintings, selling their reprints throughout the world. To adequately display all of his originals would require a wall a block long.

Professional framing of his reprints is done locally by the Artvark Studio. Some of Annis art has been embedded in ceramic tiles.

Annis has his studio in his home at 207 Nettleton Street. Many of his paintings will be permanently displayed in the long corridors of the recently opened Boulder Park Terrace medical care facility.

Art classes offered at Castle Farms

Two local artists will be teaching art classes sponsored by the McCune Arts Center at Castle Farms this summer.

Jan Glass will be offering a three-day watercolor workshop for beginning and intermediate artists from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., June 15-17. The cost of the class is $75. Lesson topics will include color mixing techniques and composition. Class size is limited to 10 students. Interested students must register by June 12. For additional information, phone 547-2256.

Barbara Steele will offer a class for students in the third through fifth grades, Tuesdays and Thursdays, June 23 through July 2 from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. The cost is $35 per pupil with class size limited to 10 students. Steele will work with the children in creative expression, teaching basic techniques in drawing, watercolors and tempera, collage and printing. To reserve a space, phone 547-4324.

County prosecutor candidate to speak at MADD meeting

Richard May, a candidate for Charlevoix County Prosecutor, will be speaking at a meeting of Charlevoix chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers at 7:30 p.m., Monday, June 8 in the lower level of Village Inn Pizza. May is challenging incumbent county prosecutor Kraag Lieberman.

Carol Haven, president of the local MADD chapter said that MADD does not endorse political candidates, but the group does want to hear what May has to say. Particular areas of concern to the group are plea bargaining and sentencing.

Local artist Jim Annis is self-taught and has become renowned for realistically capturing and preserving historically significant scenes with his paintings.

"I am seeking re-election to the Charlevoix School Board because I would like to continue to support the students in their efforts to get an education and to be part of the process of achieving this. I believe that Charlevoix, as an exceptionally fine community, has a good school system and I would like to continue to work toward providing the best possible education for our children."

Vocational education programs which give students job skills, curriculum improvements including computer training, and programs bolstering students' self-esteem are areas of the school system Levensgood would like to see improved. The availability and success of extra-curricular programs, involvement of parents and the community in school activities, and the preparation of Charlevoix students for later attendance and colleges are areas where Levensgood feels the Charlevoix school system is functioning well.

In regard to state funding cuts and diversion and tightening local finances, Levensgood said, "I believe that we should utilize whatever political means exist to resist the efforts of the State of Michigan to divert tax dollars away from the local out-of-formula districts such as Charlevoix to in-formula school districts. At some point in time we may wish to take action to separate ourselves as much as possible from the controls of the State Department of Education if funding is not available, including eliminating some programs that exist specifically to meet State requirements."

Neither Levensgood nor his wife belong to any unions the school board negotiates with.

In conclusion, Levensgood said, "I believe that the Charlevoix School District needs to participate in long term planning and goal setting and work toward achieving certain goals both on a long term and short term basis. I believe that we need to complete a building facility assessment and set plans which will meet our building facility needs for the future."

Stephen M. Czerkes

Stephen Czerkes and his wife, Cathy, have two children, Kristin and Michael, in the Charlevoix school system. Czerkes is employed as a registered pharmacist and pharmacy manager.

"I believe that our children are our most important resources for the future," Czerkes said. "Developing our children to have strong work ethics and knowledge, to lead them into becoming contributing members of a diverse multi-cultural society is a very big job. Our schools should provide the basic need for our children. I believe that my past experiences in middle management positions in my career, have given me the skills to work on policy making, understanding and working with budget matters; planning and trying to focus on a plan of action and developing future plan setting. I have been involved with Cub Scouts (4 years) and Little League (3 years). Through these I have learned the importance of guiding our children for the future."

Full-time career counseling for both college bound and non-college bound students and offering up-to-date programs that challenge and develop all levels of students are two areas of the school system Czerkes wants to see emphasized and improved. He feels that overall the school system is doing a good job educating students, but feels the community has to keep working everyday to make sure we can remain proud of our system.

In regard to funding, Czerkes said, "Everyone is looking at ways of tightening their budgets to get the most out of every dollar. I believe we have a community that supports our schools and if needed would come through to help out our schools. But Michigan needs to look how other states are handling school funding without always looking at property owners for increased property taxes."

Neither Czerkes or his wife are affiliated with any union which the school negotiates with.

In conclusion, Czerkes said, "We need to look at all sources available to keep in date and up-to-date with the world around us and to keep looking at new ways to handle our educational responsibility to our children."

Mary Lee Campbell

Mary Lee Campbell and her husband, John, have five children, Katherine, Elizabeth, Carolyn, Annie and Jonathan. Currently she is a homemaker. In the past she has been a speech pathologist with Lansing Public Schools and Charlevoix Emmet Intermediate School District.

"I am seeking election to the Charlevoix School Board because I care very much about education in Charlevoix, and I see it as a way to contribute to the community. With a background in education, I feel I could offer some expertise. Currently my children attend all three public schools. I am a member of, and was first president of, the Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation. I have the time, energy and desire to be a contributing member of the Charlevoix Educational System."

Campbell said she feels Charlevoix is fortunate to have talented students, a supportive community and dedicated teachers. However she said that in order for any school system to experience continued success constant evaluations and adjustments need to occur and plans need to be laid out for the future. Presently, the school system has a Strategic Planning Team looking at the school's direction for the future. Campbell is a member of that group and says she is very excited about its work and objectives.

In regard to state actions and local funding, Campbell said, "I do not favor taking money from some school districts and dispersing it to others. At this time it is difficult to predict which course of action Charlevoix may take, but certainly the school board will want to carefully evaluate the district's financial future."

Neither Campbell nor her husband belong to any union the school board negotiates with.

A hot tip from the police

Are you a parent of a teenage driver? If so then this is for you. Here is a question that you can ask yourself, "Would I be comfortable if my teen drove as I do?" I hope you all answered that "Yes I would." But for those of you who didn't try asking yourself these basic questions. What signals do I send my teen when I drive? Do I obey the speed laws? Do I coast past stop signs? Do I drink and drive? Do I let my emotions control my driving? How do I treat other drivers? Do I always wear my seat belts? Get the picture? If you expect your teen to drive responsibly, you have to drive responsibly yourself. Take your teen out for practice sessions. Check their driving skills, and the way they handle their emotions while driving. Take them out in all types of weather conditions, let them prove to you that they can be a responsible driver. Give them advice, and praise them when they do well. Do this with older teens also. They too can use these refresher courses. Make sure your teen is ready before letting them drive with other teens in the car. Make rules for the use of the car, and enforce them. Remember that by helping your teen, you also help yourself be a better driver. BUCKLE UP.

Levengood and Czerkes win school seats

Millage renewals both pass

Incumbent Larry Levengood and Stephen Czerkes won the two school board seats up for election June 8. Czerkes received the most votes, 512, among the four candidates. Levengood received 510 votes. The other two candidates, Mary Lee Campbell and Dennis Kusina, received 450 and 173 votes respectively.

Two millage renewals were also passed by the 884 voters who cast ballots: A 17.05 mill renewal passed by a vote of 589 to 271 and a .5 mill renewal for the public library passed by a vote of 589 to 262.

A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of a property's assessed value. A property's assessed value is half of its theoretical market value.

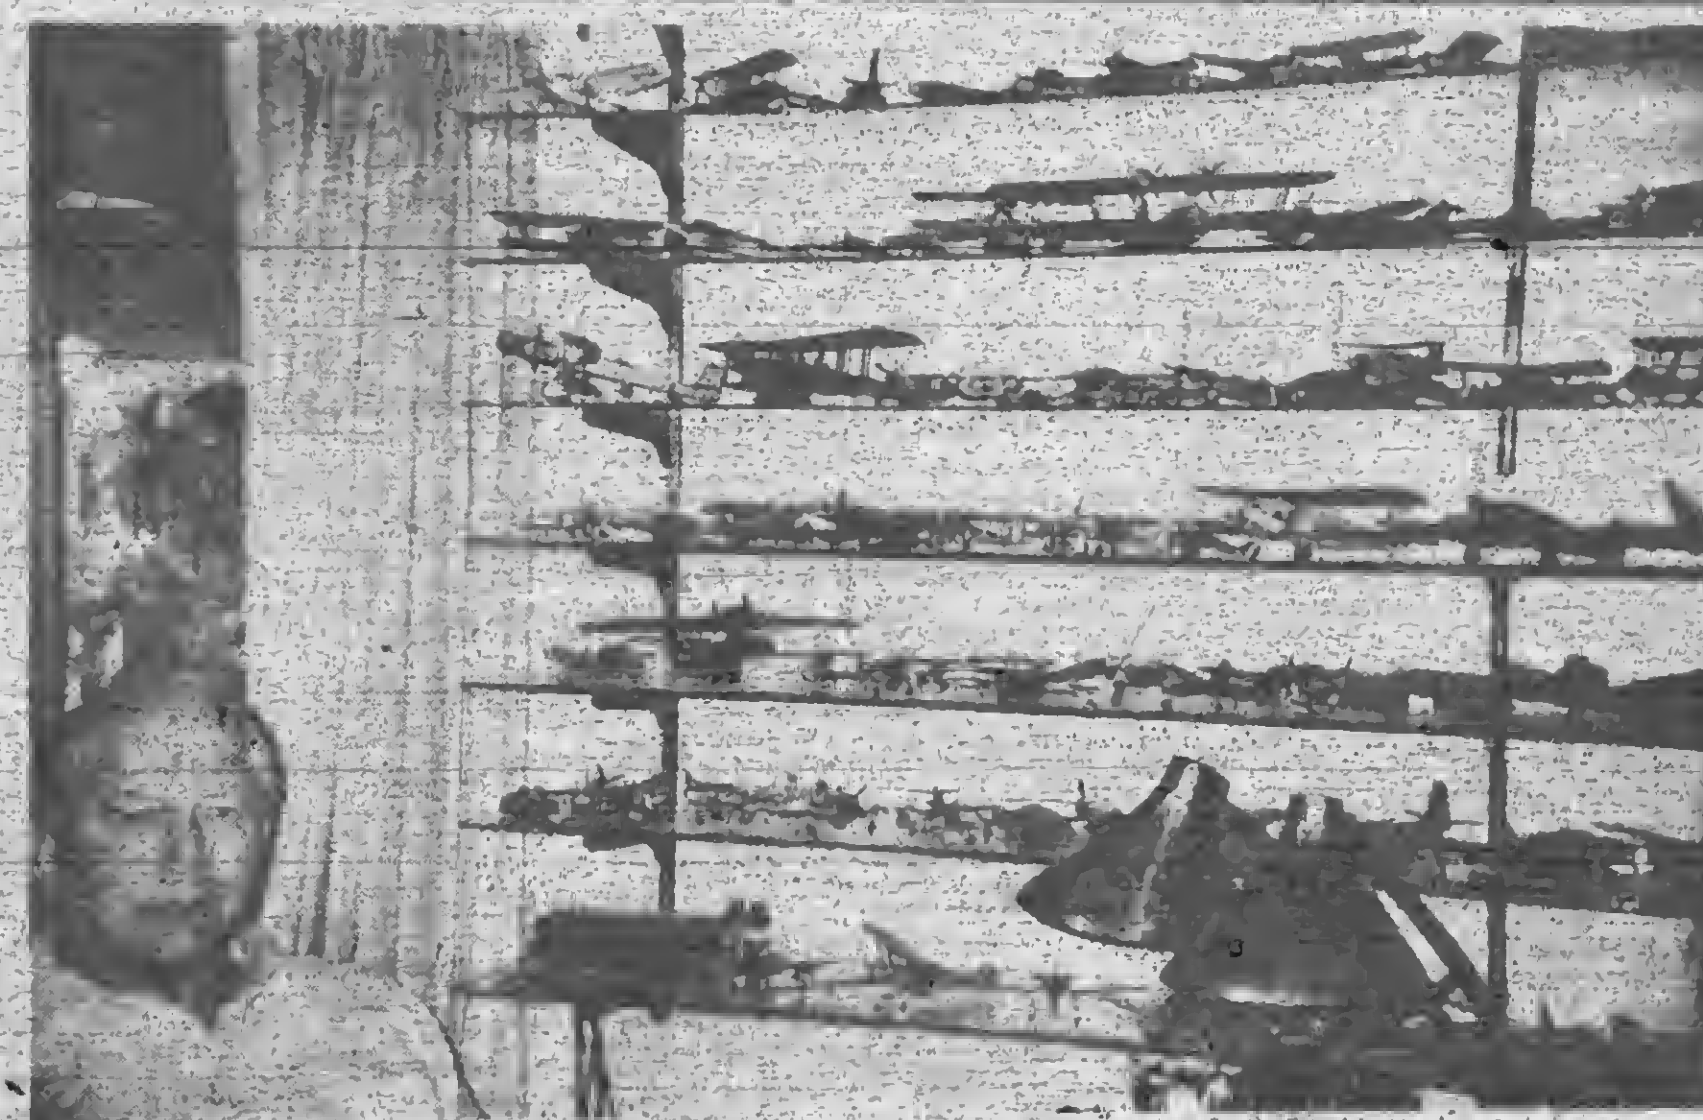

"I'm pleased and happy to be re-elected. I'm looking forward to the next four years," Levengood said Monday evening. He said there are several new and exciting things, such as the strategic improvement plan happening in the school system. He also noted that with state actions diverting funds from Charlevoix and other out of formula school districts, financing will continue to be a challenge.

Czerkes, who has only lived in Charlevoix for about two years, said he was pleased to receive the community's support.

"I'm willing to learn and grow with the position," he said.

Fighter pilot still enjoys planes

(Editor's note: The following story was written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a longtime resident of Charlevoix, a former mayor and city council member who continues to be active in a number of local matters.)

By Ralph McRae

Robert A. Barnum was born in the final year of World War I and was destined to become a participant in World War II. Barnum's mother was born in Ironton. He was raised in Lake City, but often visited this area. He and his wife Christine moved to Charlevoix permanently in 1970, making their home at 107 Chicago Avenue.

After graduating from Lake City High School, Barnum attended Michigan State University. While there, he took 30 hours of flight instruction. Long before that, as a young boy, he began his life's hobby, making balsa wood model airplanes, mostly fighter planes. While growing up, some people get into fast cars and race tracks and other things, but Barnum became captivated by the exciting life of a fighter pilot. It was a passion that would remain with him for the rest of his life.

In 1940, Barnum became a flying cadet. After undergoing training at three different Army air centers and accumulating 200 hours of actual flight time, he received his Second Lieutenant wings at Kelly Field in Texas, June 1941.

Barnum went on active duty as a member of 64th Fighter Squadron, based at Mitchell Field in New York. The 65th and 66th squadrons joined the 64th to form the Army's 57th Fighter Group. After training at a Long Island base, the group de-

Elvis lives

Elvis lives. But he's not "the king" as some people call him. He's even more powerful than the king. He's the assistant principal at Charlevoix High School. These days he's known as Dick Swenor and he recently dazzled the crowd at the 1992 senior all-night graduation party.

Graduates go their separate ways

(The following class profile for the Charlevoix High School 1992 Graduating Class was prepared and submitted to the Courier by Charlie Bentley, Counselor at the Charlevoix High School Student Services Office.)

The Charlevoix High School class of 1992 numbers 142. Of this number, two are exchange students, four are graduating with Charlevoix from other programs and five are graduating through the adult education program. These students are not included in this survey. The remaining 101 (51 males and 50 females) were asked of their plans upon graduation.

Results of the survey indicate that: 15 percent of the class has a job and will continue working; two percent are seeking a job; seven percent will enter the military; 66 percent will be attending college.

Of the 15 percent who will be working, nine percent are females and six percent are males. Nine of these students will continue with an existing job, six percent have a job, but will seek a different job and two are seeking a job. Those who are seeking a job have met with a counselor and have received information and possible leads for employment. Seven students, all males, have already entered the armed services or plan to do so in the near future. Of the entire group of 34, sixteen indicate that they plan to continue with some kind of schooling on a part-time basis or sometime in the future.

There are 64 students currently focusing on post-secondary education. Of those, thirty are males and thirty-four are females. Forty-five of these students intend to enroll in a four-year college.

Young and old plant petunias

People who were both young and old and people who came from both near and far joined to plant petunias in Charlevoix this past Thursday, June 4. Approximately 1,000 people participated in the 11th Annual Operation Petunia. Approximately 50,000 petunias were planted in less than an hour.
Two-year-old Shelby Goss was the youngest petunia planter this year. The oldest was 93-year-old Escher Ringler. Dan Tucker of Melbourne, Australia traveled the farthest. The Paul Keehm family, all nine of them, was the largest family helping plant the flowers.

Following the planting, most of the planters went to the dogs...the hot dogs at the Petunia Picnic in East Park. Hot dogs were roasted by Charlevoix Rotarians under the direction of hot dog committee chairman Dave Strawbridge. More than 800 hot dogs were sacrificed for the cause.

Bill and Sue Klingbeil won the two free tickets to the July 28 Petunia Party and Pool Auction. Included with the tickets is a free limousine ride to Dunmaglas where the Klingbeils and their guests will join 148 other couples in listening to the Northwoods Symphony Orchestra. More than 50 percent of the tickets to the party have been sold.

Dale and Marilyn Boss have been watering the petunias and the flowers are doing well despite the lack of rainfall and the cool weather the Charlevoix area has been enduring thus far this summer.

OPINIONS

Editorial

It's not a normal program

It's not normal. Between 40 and 50 people took off running through downtown Charlevoix Friday afternoon. They were zig-zagging back and forth, laughing and joking and splashing each other when they came to mud puddles. Rather than enduring and suffering through a three-mile run as it seems any normal person would, these people were horsing around and enjoying themselves. That's not normal. Just how is it that so many people in our little community came to be this way?

Go back to 1976. In 1976, distance running, as a sport and as a way of keeping fit, had yet to blossom in popularity. In 1976, when someone in Charlevoix took up running it wasn't uncommon on the first few training runs to have people in cars stop and ask them if they needed a ride somewhere.

In 1976 Charlevoix High School had a cross country team and had even produced a few pretty good runners, but the team wasn't really anything to brag about. In fact in August of 1976, the team was in jeopardy of folding for lack of a coach.

Walt Drenth was one of the few serious runners on the team. He'd taken up cross country because he was at least a few pounds shy of playing football. In the fall of 1976, Drenth was a senior and had the potential to have a good year, if only he could find a coach, so the school could have a team. He looked around the school to see who he might be able to talk into coaching cross country and his eye landed upon biology teacher, Pete Spieles. In 1976, as a prospective cross country coach, Spieles had his pluses and his minuses. On the plus side he was a nice guy and a good teacher. He was also a good athlete himself and knew what makes athletes tick and how to motivate them. On the minus side, he didn't want to coach cross country. He tried to explain that to Drenth, Drenth, though not a member of the high school debate team, responded with a masterful debate technique. It's called pleading.

So Spieles agreed to take the cross country coaching job. The Charlevoix Cross Country team in 1976 drove to meets in two school station wagons, one driven by Spieles and one driven by gym teacher Norm Probert. In addition to driving, Probert also brought a bag of lemon drops which he distributed to the runners following the race. The team had three quality runners in Walt Drenth, Jeff Drenth and Mark Russell. The rest of the team... well, it depended on what day you caught them. As far as a following of spectators: Bob and Maxine Drenth came to most of the races. Bob was kind of quiet, Maxine used to stand near the finish line and yell, "Come on Rayder! Come on Rayder!" whenever one happened to run by.

Team practices consisted of running either out to Mount McSaubo or Bells Bay or out Marion Center Road and back. In the locker room, prior to practice runs, Jeff Drenth used to debate whether to wear sweat pants or just shorts. Jeff was one of the faster runners. Slower runners debated whether or not they should take a pup tent and a sleeping bag. For a light workout on days before races the team played touch football.

By 1977, the program was beginning to take shape. Spieles hadn't had much of a cross country background when he took the job, but he did have a background in athletics. He was smart enough to learn about the sport and had an ability to teach and inspire. Rogers City had an excellent cross country tradition. They hadn't lost a dual meet in years. In 1977 Charlevoix beat them, and went on to win the conference championship.

By 1982 the Rayders were not only making a habit of winning the conference championship, they had also brought home their first Class C State Championship. For the next several years Charlevoix and Benzie Central were consistently among the best cross country teams in northern Michigan and in the state. Both teams would fight it out for the regional title and then renew the rivalry at the state finals.

Charlevoix followed up its 1982 state title with another title in 1983.

In 1984 and 1985 Charlevoix placed third and second at the State Class C meet. In 1986, Charlevoix was back in the winner's circle, winning the first of six consecutive state championships. In the process of winning the six state titles, the Rayders have often made the high school rating system look silly. More than once a downstate team, or teams, has been ranked ahead of Charlevoix, entering the state finals meet. But when it got to be show-time, Spieles had his troops primed and the other Class C teams found they just couldn't match the Rayders' pace.

The Rayder cross country team now extends to the community. Now, at the state finals meet, the Charlevoix team isn't just a few kids looking around happy to be there, but not really knowing what to expect. The Charlevoix contingent is a team which expects to perform well and which has an active group of supporters. As one school board member who attended a state meet pointed out, when you're at the state finals meet it becomes very obvious that the Charlevoix cross country program is the one which other schools hope to emulate.

There aren't any more touch football games for pre race practices. Charlevoix's cross country program had advanced beyond that. Now the team has post race meetings to analyze races and determine where improvements can be made.

But that doesn't mean the element of fun has left the program. Friday afternoon runners who have run for Pete Spieles during the past 16 years gathered for a commemorative run in honor of the retiring coach. It was more of a commemorative romp.

After the run, the runners and their families gathered at Ferry Beach for a picnic. It was a wonderful event with a family reunion atmosphere. A cross country program which was on the brink of extinction for lack of a coach in 1976 had become the focal point of a warm and joyous community event.

That's not normal. It's far above and beyond that.

Volunteers praised

Editor,

As Director of an organization funded by area United Way agencies, I would like to publicly acknowledge and commend those who dedicate their time and efforts to the continuation of United Way financial assistance to the non-profit agencies throughout our area. If it were not for the financial help that is provided by the generosity of you people in the community, our organization, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) of Charlevoix/Emmet Counties could not survive, nor could it grow.

RSVP coordinates senior volunteers, who give freely of their time and talents, with area agencies who have no where else to turn for help. United Way funding provides volunteers with assistance in getting to and from assignments, excess automobile liability insurance coverage, training for various projects, and recognition for volunteer service.

I, for one, would hate to see this kind of public service end, because of the dishonesty of one individual. With the adverse publicity that United Way has received recently, I feel that our community should know how much United Way funding means to this agency.

I sing their praise!

Most Sincerely,
Linda A. Behringer, Director

The Charlevoix graduating class of 1992 was looking pretty formal in the afternoon, May 31. But later on at the all-night graduation party on the Beaver Islander and at Paul Bunyan Lanes and the Flight Deck they had limbered up and adopted a more casual posture.

He seems to fascinate us so--
Without so much as a word revealing
Just how he'd change the status quo.

FAMILY

Gagnon - Drapeau

Michelle T. Gagnon & Edward Drapeau

Michelle T. Gagnon and Edward Drapeau of Kalamazoo are announcing their engagement to be married. The bride to be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gagnon of Charlevoix. Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Armand Drapeau of East Jordan.

The bride elect is a graduate of North Central Michigan College, and is currently a student at University of Michigan, due to graduate in December of this year. She is employed at Bronson Methodist Hospital in Kalamazoo as a registered nurse.

The groom to be is a student at Western Michigan University in the engineering program, and is employed in sales at Wolohan Lumber in Kalamazoo.

An August 29 wedding is scheduled to take place at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix.

Ova Lyons of Ellsworth does some "water walking" exercises during a water therapy session conducted by Charlevoix Area Hospital's physical therapy department at the East Jordan community pool.

Harry and Lottie Mason, originally of Charlevoix, will celebrate 50 years of marriage June 13 at the Custer Baptist Church near their retirement home at Wallahalla Shores of Long Lake. During a reaffirmation ceremony, the Masons will renew their wedding vows in the presence of their family, gathered for the reunion.

Harry and Lottie Mason were both born and raised in the Charlevoix area. Harry Mason was raised at the old Hill View Dairy to the northeast of town. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1939 and was enlisted in the U.S. Air Force for the United States participation in World War II. Lottie (McAllister) Mason is the daughter of Dan and Grace McAllister (both deceased) and was raised on their farm south of town on Barnard Road. The two of them were married in Charlevoix, June 5, 1942.

The Masons' first child, Harry Daniel was born in Charlevoix and Hospital adds water therapy

Charlevoix Area Hospital's physical therapy patients now have a new dimension of therapy. Patients are taking part in "water therapy" at the East Jordan pool.

The hospital has contracted with physical therapist Linda DeGrow to conduct twice weekly sessions for patients with such conditions as back pain, arthritis, stroke, or multiple sclerosis.

raised at the McAllister farm until the end of the war. The couple relocated to Grand Haven for employment where they raised six more children: Jack, Robert, Diana, Shirley, Tim and Steven.

Harry Mason worked at the Story & Clark Piano Company in Grand Haven as a carpenter for 36 years before retiring in 1984.

Family and relatives will be traveling from around the country for the celebration, from as far away as Arizona, California and Pennsylvania.

parted an East Coast port with 85 planes on the aircraft carrier Ranger, bound for the Gold Coast of Africa.

While 75 miles offshore the planes took off from the carrier and landed at Accra, Ghana. After a brief layover, the group flew off for Palestine, a 3,000 mile flight which entailed numerous stops. For Barnum, one particular stop was unanticipated. Barnum's plane malfunctioned during one leg of the flight and he was forced to make an emergency landing in a desert clearing near a small lake. Upon landing, he was soon surrounded by a group of desert tribesmen who lived in a village of small bee-hive shaped huts. During the two days Barnum spent in the village, he saw only the men of the village. The women stayed out of sight. Well-fed and unharmed, Barnum was picked up by a military transport plane.

After arriving at Haifa, Palestine the three squadrons had two specific missions, escorting high flying medium bombers and assisting advancing infantrymen. In these land fights the fighter planes would attack tanks, moving vehicles and gun emplacements. The most dangerous flights were protecting in-flight bombers. The Germans had faster and more maneuverable fighter planes. Many of Barnum's close friends and fellow pilots were lost in combat.

Barnum's group was part of the South Africa fighting force which was under the command of the British. The commanding officer was the English general, Montgomery. The headquarters for this area of the war was in Cairo, Egypt. The battle lasted for several months.

After flying 89 missions, Barnum was sent back to the States and for eight months was stationed in Albuquerque, New Mexico. There he became a test pilot for planes which had been repaired after being badly damaged.

Because of their expertise in aircraft repair, the men of the Albuquerque unit were transferred en masse to Italy. Barnum requested that he be included.

The unit landed in Italy at the end of February, 1944. Within eight days Barnum found out that his former squadron was located just a few miles away. Barnum, then a major, sought and was quickly granted a transfer back to his old outfit. A few months later he became the leader of the 64th squadron.

The battles of Africa were completed and Italy had been over-run by the allies. Barnum led his fighters on various missions in Italy, Sicily, Malta and Southern France. During one mission he became caught in a violent thunderstorm in the Italian mountains. His plane's instruments became useless and he had to bail out. The parachute dropped him just in front of an American infantry line. A U.S. soldier challenged Barnum to prove that he was an American. Barnum quickly shouted to the soldier that Navin Field was where the Detroit Tigers played baseball.

By the time the fighting ended in Europe, Barnum had flown 44 more missions. He volunteered for additional action in the Pacific, but the fighting ended there as he was passing through the Panama Canal.

Barnum remained with the Army Air Force following the war. He had several tours overseas, including stints in Japan and Thailand. He rose to the rank of Lt. Colonel. After 23 years of military service, Barnum retired in 1963.

Though no longer on active duty, Barnum's heart and thoughts remain with his fellow pilots and flying friends. They have annual reunions and visit each other frequently.

Since his retirement, one way he keeps in touch with his past is by building plastic models of fighter planes. The planes almost fill his work shop, resting on 12 plate glass shelves. The models are replicas of planes from both friendly and unfriendly nations. In their peaceful surroundings, they are reminders of destructive eras.

Barnum has compiled four large volumes filled with photographs of his military adventures. He has also kept a diary, recording his day to day life in the military services. He also has an extensive library of books, most of them are about planes, flight theory and what the future may hold for space travel.

tion, flexibility, and retain a sense of balance," says DeGrow. "One-half hour of water walking equals two hours of land walking."

In addition, the water exercise offers the benefit of stress reduction and relaxation, as well as being a social support group for individuals, DeGrow says.

The buoyancy of the water makes it easier for those in pain to move and have more freedom of movement, she explains. At the same time, the resistance of the water helps them to build muscle strength.

Proper equipment gives those with no swimming ability a sense of security. "With the assistance of the therapist working one on one and the equipment, people who never could float, lose their fear and are able to be comfortable in the water," DeGrow says. DeGrow has attended classes in water therapy for the past three years. The benefits of water therapy have been known for many years, but have been increasingly prescribed over the past five years.

Average treatment time is six to 10 weeks. The type of water exercise and speed with which the patient progresses to the next level of exercise is based on individual needs and motivation. "We coordinate the water therapy with the other therapy the patient is receiving at the hospital," DeGrow says. She emphasizes that the skills learned in these sessions allow the individual to continue on their own to help them remain pain-free the rest of their lives.

Obituaries

David M. Weil

David M. Weil, 80, retired Chicago industrialist and long time Charlevoix summer resident died May 27.

Weil vacationed in Charlevoix since early childhood, and often visited his aunt, Rena Weil, who formerly owned one of the historic homes at 431 Michigan Avenue. Through the years, Weil continued to bring his wife and children to Charlevoix every summer.

He wrote a feature article for the August, 1975 issue of "Town and Country Magazine" called, "The Serene Summers of Little Traverse Bay." He mentions many prominent resort families by name. In the article he writes "To own a summer house or to rent one for the season is now a luxury. The resorts are divided between those who come for two weeks and those who provide themselves with the luxury permanently. Thus many things have changed — but many things have not." He describes summer life in the cottages of the Chicago Club where the older set still dons jackets and eat in the clubroom and on Sunday night most join for hymns after the buffet supper. He describes something new. Condominiums have been built on Lake Michigan and Round Lake and "developers are spying on the homeowners and resorters are spying on developers."

In addition to the above article, Weil wrote many insightful articles on foreign affairs for serious publications. He graduated magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa from Harvard University in 1933.

During World War II, he served in U.S. counter intelligence and was sent to Australia to learn how military information was being leaked to the Germans. He was able to help establish that it was the Pro-Vichy French. He later did similar work in Iran.

He is survived by his wife, Aase; three daughters, Lise, Greta and Kari and a grandchild. Memorial services are pending in Chicago.

Albert L. (Bud) Fox

Albert L. (Bud) Fox, 62, died Feb. 14 at Flint Osteopathic Hospital. Funeral services were Feb. 17 at the Sharp Funeral Home in Swartz Creek with burial at Flint Memorial Park.

Mr. Fox was born in Charlevoix, July 16, 1929, the son of Charles and Bessie (Murphy) Fox. He moved to Flint in 1962.

Mr. Fox married Vina McCormick in Charlevoix, July 31, 1953. He retired from the Michigan State Police as Detective Sergeant in 1981 with 26 years of service. He was a life member of the VFW Flushing Post, veteran of the Korean War, serving in the U.S. Marine Corp.

Survivors include: his wife, Vina; three children, Georgia Hubbard of Flint, Michael and wife Cathy Fox of Mt. Morris; Terry Fox of Swartz Creek; four grandchildren; two sisters, Peggy Strauch of Marion and Katherine Fox of Detroit; a brother, Steve Ellis of Mio; and many nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents and brother, Kenneth.

RISE RATE CD FOR THE LONG TERM

FIRST RATE FUND FOR THE SHORT TERM

The economy is recovering. But even the experts can't agree on what interest rates will do.

So First of America has two straight ways for you to invest. No matter what your strategy.

The long view.

If you think rates will drop, or stay flat, you should go with a longer-term investment and get a rate guaranteed to rise every six months over the next two years. The Rising Rate CD.

It starts at a bonus rate of 5 percent per annum. And you'll end up earning 6.5 percent for the final term. You can withdraw part or all of your money in the first ten days of every six-month interval without penalty. All it takes to get started is a $10,000 deposit.

The short view.

If you predict rates will be keeping up beyond this election year, invest short term with the First Rate Fund.

You'll make a bonus return of 5.75 percent per annum from the day you sign up through July 31.

So the sooner you invest the more you'll make. After July 31, the per annum rate is based on the 91-day Treasury Bill. So if the T-Bill goes up quickly, you'll continue to benefit from it.

A new deposit of $10,000 is required, and you can get your money seven days after notifying us.

It's a respectable rate of return plus liquidity in these uncertain times.

Of course, your investments are FDIC insured up to $100,000 per depositor. And bonus offers are good through July 31.

Call or visit the office nearest you. Because no matter what your point of view, you can't go wrong investing with us.

For some, fishing is in their blood

By Laurie Lounsbury

Some people regard sport fishing as a fun thing to do on a nice day. It's a hobby for them, a recreational activity to be pursued when time and energy permit. For others, the call to fish comes from deep within them, and they're driven to the waters by a centuries old, ancestral urge that cannot be disregarded. This is the case for the Halverson clan, a Norwegian fishing family that's been fishing the Charlevoix waters for several generations.

"It's in our blood," explained Paris Halverson, captain of the family's fishing boat "Fisker", which is Norwegian for fisherman. "Our grandfather, Samuel Halverson, was a commercial fisherman. Halverson's crew is made up of his Norwegian cousins, Paul Belding and his son Drew, Warren Belding, Roger Knutson, and close friend Annie Mosher.

Halverson and Belding have been fishing for as long as they can remember, starting as children fishing off the city docks on Round Lake. Halverson and his crew now fish every weekend, getting up at 5 a.m. to pursue the elusive lake trout and salmon. They fish all summer, and spend the winters planning how they'll catch more fish next summer. "The strategy meetings are quite lively," said Paul Belding. "They go on all winter."

A highlight of the season for the Norwegian fishermen is the Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament.

"Planning for the tournament is a year round operation," said Halverson. "We argue all winter about what we did wrong the year before."

Captain Halverson prefers to stalk his prey with the latest technology available to sport fishermen. The boat is equipped with fishfinders, depth finders, and thermal gauges. "We've got just about everything you can put on a fishing boat except radar," said Halverson. He and his crew rely on finding lake trout by tracking the thermals and looking for fish patterns on the fishfinder screen. Halverson groans at the thought of his cousins from Gloucester, Mass., who come to fish in Charlevoix every summer. "They hum and chant to draw the fish," explained Belding, chuckling. "Norwegians will do ANYTHING for fish."

Even with the latest technology and equipment, the fishing for the Norwegian crew has been poor so far this year. "This tournament is going to be interesting," Halverson said. "The cold spring has really affected the fish."

Halverson isn't discouraged, however. "Nothing in the world would stop me from fishing in this tournament," he said. "It's the hunt, and the challenge. That's what keeps you going back."

Belding is not thrilled with the fishing so far this season, but he's pinning his hopes for the tournament on a new, secret weapon. "We have a secret lure," he said. "We'll show you, but don't write about it." With that admonishment, Halverson and Belding display a large, gaudy lure that resembles an earring or pendant. Although the captain and crew of Fisker are well equipped and heavily armed with secret fishing devices, Halverson admits, "We're in our annual quandary right now. How to find them, and how to catch them."

Paul Belding and Annie Mosher serve as "mannskap"- Norwegian for captain's man or crew, for Paris Halverson, captain of "Fisker".

Tournament emphasizes quality

The 8th Annual Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament will begin June 12 and run through June 14. The tournament, which consistently offers fishermen a well run, fun tournament, will also be offering more water to fish in this year. This year, the northern boundary on Lake Michigan fishing will extend all the way to seven mile point, allowing fishermen to fish all of Little Traverse Bay. In past years, the northern boundary has been drawn at the Penn Dixie Cement Plant.

Jim Withers, an organizer of the tournament, reports that the tournament is doing all they can to cooperate with the Charlevoix Fishery

Station. "The Trout Tournament is all about the fishery," Withers said. "We want to sustain and promote our fishery."

Four years ago, the trout tournament raised the standard size on fish entries from ten inches to 18 inches, and encouraged fishermen to catch and release fish that wouldn't be large enough to make it onto the tournament board. Tournament organizers also eliminated the practice of allowing participants one chance in the grand prize drawing for every fish they caught. The current policy is that anyone entered in the contest earns one chance in the drawing. "This isn't a meat tournament. It's a quality tournament," Withers said.

Withers added for anyone who has doubts about catching large fish in Lake Charlevoix, "Two days before the tournament began last year, a 21-pound Steelhead and a 21-pound Brown Trout were caught in Lake Charlevoix by Holy Island, and by Camp Seagull. Those are monster fish."

After the catching, there's the cooking

The new, 24" size limit on lake trout, which will go into effect after the trout tournament, doesn't concern the captain and crew of Fisker. "We never keep anything smaller than two feet, so the size limit won't bother us at all," said Halverson. "We get so many fish each year, we don't need to bother keeping the small ones." Halverson and the Beldings caught 75 salmon last year. Annie Mosher cans the salmon, so they have fish to eat all year. "The deep, dark secret to canning salmon is to put in a teaspoon of ketchup," Mosher said. "It gives it color, and a little zing."

Halverson has his own secret recipe for cooking fish on the grill. He salts the fish with kosher salt and coarse pepper, adds lemon juice, and brown sugar, then wraps it in foil and throws it on the grill. "The brown sugar melts and runs off, but it candies the fish," Halverson said.

BUSINESS

New business helps people rent property

Year after year, John Yaroch found himself in the position of having to turn away business, a task that no businessman enjoys. Yaroch was an associate real estate broker at Vacation Properties Network, where customers would frequently wander in to inquire about rental property. Yaroch saw a need for rental property management that wasn't being filled.

"I thought the time was right to handle rentals for private cottage owners and home owners," Yaroch said. In January, he started Vacation Property Rental and Management Company, a business that provides long term rental services, seasonal and weekly rentals, and a reservation referral service for hotel/condominiums. Yaroch's new business is not affiliated with Vacation Properties Network, although it is located next door to V.P.N. on Park Avenue. Yaroch resigned from Vacation Properties Network so that he wouldn't be in a position of having a conflict of interest. Yaroch explained that his rental business relies heavily on getting referrals from other real estate brokers in the area, and he doesn't want to jeopardize his relationship with those brokers. "Real estate brokers work hard to get a client, and I want the brokers to know I would never take a client away from them," Yaroch said.

The biggest surprise for Yaroch in his new business was the demand for long term rental units. He has a waiting list of 40 people needing year round rental space. "The rental market is increasing," Yaroch said. "It's been lagging behind sales (real estate) for years, and it's starting to catch up."

Yaroch is also enthusiastic about the condominium reservation and referral business, which he says will function like a travel agency. Vacationers can call him and he will match them up with a condominium hotel that best suits their needs, based on availability.

First they have Camp McSaubia Daycamp. The fee this year is $30 per camper. There are all sorts of fun-filled activities for children of all ages. Make sure you sign your child up quick because the sessions are filling up fast.

Next, there are Tennis Lessons. The first session starts June 22 and runs until July 17. The second session starts July 20 and runs until August 14. The fee this year will be $25 per child.

Golf Lessons will be offered again this summer. The first session starts July and the second session starts July 20. On Friday, July 24, there will be a Junior Golf Week Tournament for all children who participate in either week.

Swimming Lessons are another thing to keep in mind as it starts to warm up outside. The first session will begin June 22 and run until July 17. The second session will begin July 20 and run until Aug. 14. Children swim Monday, Thursday and Fridays are make-up days.

Yachting Notes

by a. nony mouse

The third race of the so far "wimpy" Spring Racing Series of CYC was concluded in a wisely shortened race Wednesday, June 3. Most racers remember past Springs in which we were forced to add crew to balance the boats against the western gusts but this Spring has been just the opposite. "I may not need you tonight," is the watchwork among skippers this year as they assemble their crew lists each Wednesday morn.

Fleet A: 1) Gotcha (took Miss Piggy by nearly six minutes), 2) Miss Piggy, 3) Mint Julip ("fifteen minutes behind!") Fleet B: 1) Blasen, 2) Cabaret (Nice work, Big Jim), 3) Sandpiper, 4) Cygnus, 5) Vermonter, 6) Canusa.

Fleet C: 1) Humdinger, 2) White Lightning, 3) Bandit, 4) HSM, 5) MIP, 6) Mi-Joy, 7) Newsense, 8) Vantage.

Jam Fleet: 1) Stalworth (nice piece of sailing Mitch), 2) Apothecary, 3) Flash, 4) Baldie.

The Grand Opening of the new Charlevoix Yacht club at 209 Ferry Avenue will be Friday, June 12, at 1800 hrs. (6 p.m.) The event is open to the public so please come down, look over the building, pick up an application and join us, watching the western skies, mouse

New president joins Lexalite

In an effort to return to a more traditional management structure, Lexalite International Corporation has hired a new president for their company. Tom Phillips is stepping into the position, replacing Ron Chapman as president.

Phillips will be acting as Chief Operations Officer, with Chapman serving as Chief Financial Officer, and Josh Barnes continuing to hold the position of Chief Executive Officer.

Phillips has 32 years experience in the automotive industry, working primarily as a corporate director of quality. His most recent position was at Signet Industries, where he was Chief Operations Officer. He resigned in April, wanting to get away from the high pressured automotive industry and hoping to leave the Detroit area.

Phillips believes that his experience in quality and international experience in automotive supplies will be an asset to Lexalite. He also added that he should be able to lend a new perspective on efficiencies in the company.

Phillips says that the restructuring of Lexalite's top management is simply a function of splitting up some duties and responsibilities as business increases. There are no plans for any major changes at Lexalite. "I'm here to help this company continue to follow the path that it's taking," Phillips said.

Tom Phillips

ny continue to follow the path that it's taking," Phillips said.

While Phillips has only been at Lexalite for a week, he is already impressed with the individuals and general attitudes within the company. When Barnes called him to set up an interview, Barnes said, "Why don't you bring your wife and daughter with you?" Phillips said it told him a lot about the company when they involved his family in the interview process. "You know the saying, 'People are known by the company they keep'? Well, there's another way to say that with companies. You could say 'companies are known by the people they keep,'" Phillips said.

A collection of praises and awards earned by Charlevoix people.

Amy Phillips of Charlevoix is among more than 200 Michigan high school juniors and seniors who will be attending the Michigan Farm Bureau Young People's Citizenship Seminar at Olivet College the week of June 15-19. Students attending the seminar will organize campaigns and run for mock political offices. They will also vote on three ballot issues: Should there be a mandatory drug testing program established for high school athletes? Should prayer be allowed in public schools? Should the State of Michigan increase the sales tax to provide funds for environmental research and clean-up?

Three Charlevoix people were among the University of Michigan's spring graduates: Rebecca Christensen received a Bachelor of Arts degree from the College of Art. Suzanne Leigh Parker received a Master of Arts degree from Rackham College. Linda Yaroeh received a Master of Public Health degree from the College of Public Health.

Pat Rajewski of Charlevoix graduated from Aquinas College with a Bachelor of Science degree May 9.

Patricia Spenceley of Charlevoix and Shellie La Breque of East Jordan were among the students named to the Dean's Honor List for the winter term at Northwestern Michigan College. To be named to the list, students must have a grade point average of 3.5 or better on a 4 point scale.

Diana Loder of Charlevoix was among the students named to the Western Michigan University Dean's List for the winter semester. To be named to the list a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 on a 4 point scale.

Eleonora Frey, daughter of John and Hilda Frey of Charlevoix, recently received a Coaches Award for her participation on the varsity basketball team of the Emma Willard School. "Ellie was very strong under the basket both offensively and defensively," said coach Ellen Sowa. "In addition to her excellent rebounding and defensive skills, Ellie developed a great shot and unyielding aggressiveness. I am looking forward to having a very experienced team next year with Ellie as a major force."

Maccabee Day in June was cause for great celebration in 1907. The Ladies of Maccabee were a local theater group, putting on plays at the old Charlevoix Opera House.

Veterans don't want park changed

Local military veterans don't want a new Chamber of Commerce building constructed in Veterans' Memorial Park. But according to Charlevoix Mayor Dave Novoiny there's no need for veterans to be up in arms about the issue at this time. Although moving the Chamber of Commerce and harbor master's building into the small park at the corner of Bridge Street and Belvedere Avenue is an idea which has been discussed, it is only one idea among several and no city board has taken any formal action on the matter.

At Monday evening's city council meeting, David Goldstick, Sr. Vice Commander of the Charlevoix American Legion Post read a letter objecting to any proposals to change the park. The letter was signed by officers of the local American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars posts. He also presented the council a petition signed by approximately 120 people.

Goldstick said he had heard there was a proposal to build a new chamber building in Veterans' Park. "This Veterans' Park is definitely not for that purpose," he said. He noted that trees planted in the park are dedicated to specific World War I veterans and the each Memorial Day local veterans place a wreath and raise and lower a flag in the park.

If the Chamber of Commerce building must be expanded, it should be done where the building is presently located, Goldstick said. The Chamber of Commerce office is currently short on space. The building it is in houses the harbor master and boater's restrooms on the bottom floor and public restrooms in half of the upper floor, leaving only about half of the upper floor for the Chamber office.

One possible solution which has been discussed would be putting up a new building in Veterans' Park in conjunction with a Veterans' Memorial. Currently, Veterans' Park is so shaded and out of the

Shindorf and Drost win Brown and Salmon divisions

Winners of the four divisions in the 1992 Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament were: (from left) Al Shindorf, brown trout; Joseph Kulisz, steelhead; Jeff Ferris, lake trout; and Larry Drost, salmon.

Nearly 800 fishermen, 793 to be precise, participated in this year's Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament. Trout tournament board member Jim Withers said fewer fish were caught this year, but many of the fish which were caught were nice fish.

"The number of fish was considerably lower than in years past, but the quality was considerably better," he explained. The fish were nice both in size and there were fewer lamprey marks.

Local fishermen took home the $1,000 first prize in two of the four fishing divisions. Al Shindorf won the Brown Trout division with an 11lb. 15 oz fish caught in Lake Charlevoix on Friday, the first day of the three-day tournament. Larry Drost won the salmon division with an 8 lb. 15 oz king salmon, one of only a handful of salmon entered in the tournament.

Winners of the other two divisions were also northern Michigan fishermen. Joseph Kulisz of Boyne City won the steelhead division with a beautiful 15lb. 1 oz fish. Some of the nicest fish caught in this year's tournament were steelheads. Jeff Ferris of Brutus won the Lake Trout division with a 15lb. 1 oz fish.

Once again there were several fishermen from Canada entered in Pest guide follows road kill book

Author writes of squashed animals and critters that live on people

By Laurie Lounsbury

An ordinary person wouldn't think of writing a book about squashed animals on the road, or a writing a book about the tiny little critters that live next to our skin and under our shirts. Roger Knutson is no ordinary person, however; that's why he's written two extraordinary books, entitled "Flattened Fauna" and most recently, "Furtive Fauna."

Becoming an author was not something that Knutson, an affable biology teacher at Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, planned. Knutson was happily minding his own business when circumstances beyond his control propelled him into writing a field guide to road kill. As a biology teacher, he frequently found himself taking long road trips with his students, whereupon the students would typically lounge in the back seats and take lengthy snoozes. The teacher in Knutson couldn't stand the idea that travel time was being wasted in sleep rather than learning, so he tried to perk their interest with discussions of roadside plants and wildlife. When that served only to increase the students' snoring, Knutson grasped at straws. "Look at that flattened animal on the road!" he would say to them, "I bet you can't tell what that animal was before it got squashed." Knutson discovered that with that sort of prompting, his students were suddenly wide awake and attentive. As Knutson and his proteges barreled down the highways, they continued to try to identify flattened road animals. On one such trip, Knutson jokingly said to his students, "There ought to be a guide book to identify dead animals on the road."

Roger Knutson has recently released his second book "Furtive Fauna," a book about critters which live on people. His first book, a field guide to road-killed animals, sold 100,000 copies.

That statement brought Knutson to where he is today. A reporter for the Dubuque Telegraph Herald heard a student rumor that Knutson was going to write a book about flattened fauna, and thought it would make a great feature story. From there, USA Today picked up the story, along with Omni Magazine and many others. Knutson still had no real plans for writing a book, but talking about it and the publicity that ensued was fun, so he this year's trout tournament. Withers said that some of the Canadians fishing in Charlevoix are organizers of a similar trout tournament in Ontario. Members of the local trout tournament board had a nice conversation with the Ontario tournament organizers and hope to get together with them again some time this winter to exchange ideas and information in the interest of improving both tournaments.

Once again this year there was a kids' fish pond in East Park. Withers said that was a big success with many children catching the first fish of their lives out of the little pond. There were 400 foot-long rainbow trout placed in the pond for the children to catch.

There were even some fishermen who didn't have much luck fishing, but still went home happy. Several drawings took place during the awards ceremony for prizes such as an outboard motor, an inflatable boat, shopping sprees and that always popular prize - cash.

The 793 registered fishermen in the tournament fell just short of last year's record registration of 825 fishermen.

OPINIONS

A small family outdoor wedding took place on Michigan Avenue in Charlevoix in August, 1922, at the home of Mrs. Mathew T. Scott, of Bloomington, Ill. Mildred Bromwell, Mrs. Scott's granddaughter, was married to Captain Sidney Baily of London.

Writer's note:
Some excerpts for this column were taken from an article that appeared in the Detroit Free Press magazine section in 1971, and subsequently was reprinted in a booklet edited by Edith Gilbert called "Summer Resort Life, Tango Teas and All" in 1976. This booklet is now out of print.

by EDITH GILBERT

Patricia Trenchard has never been to Charlevoix before, but her family roots are firmly planted here. Her great-grandmother was Julia Scott, first President General of the DAR (Daughters of the American Revolution) but better known locally for the public sidewalk confrontation in front of her summer place, "The Wilds" at 433

Michigan Avenue.

It seems during the summer of 1918, the City Council passed a resolution to provide a sidewalk extending clear to the end of Michigan Avenue. This decision threatened not only the graceful, tree-topped knoll that obscured Mrs. Scott's house from the street, but also the treasured privacy she had enjoyed since 1905. Thus she appealed to the then popular mayor, S.M. Rose, who owned the local barber shop, but he stood firmly by the Council's decision.

"Work on the sidewalk will proceed on schedule," he ordered firmly.

"Over my dead body!" answered Julia Scott.

So on the day the sidewalk crew arrived with their tools, cement mixers, crushed stone and sand, they proceeded to work their way up toward Julia Scott's precious knoll. Camped on her property line, she was ready for them. With her companion, Mary Hunter, the women were seated in two chairs, with their parasols, beside a table on which stood a pitcher of ice water and two glasses. Regrettably there were no TV trucks present to record the sidewalk confrontation and we don't know if harsh words or amiable smiles were exchanged that summer's day between the sidewalk superintendent and the formidable summer visitor — but we do know that there is no sidewalk on the last 200 feet of Michigan Avenue even today!

I asked Patricia Trenchard if she thought her great-grandmother was

Letters to the editor

Scrapbook photo brings back memories

Editor,

Your picture of the Maccabee Parade in last week's issue brought back memories of early Charlevoix. I was only three years old when this picture was taken. It must have been taken from the upper floor or roof of the old Noble Hotel that stood on the corner of Bridge and Clinton, where the Central Drug Store is now located. The horses must have been furnished by O'Leary's stable that stood on the corner of Bridge and Belvedere where Memorial Park is now located. No cars appear in the picture but I remember when I was very young, there were two cars in Charlevoix. One was owned by a summer resident and the other by Dr. Tholand (pronounced "Teeland"). It was a car that cranked on the side. The Charlevoix Hotel and Martha Ayres Building are prominent in the picture. All these were torn down, after the Charlevoix Hotel burned, to establish East Park.

Sincerely,

a feminist, and she replied that Julie Scott's views on women were certainly advanced and that she seemed to get her own way using a combination of great firmness and charm. The kind of charm that her sister, Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, used when she refused Ulysses S. Grant's request for a whiskey with a gentle, "We don't serve spirits in our home, but do have a lemonade."

"Is Charlevoix anything like you thought it would be?" I asked Lady Trenchard. (Her late husband was a member of the House of Lords and a minister to Margaret Thatcher's Government, hence the title.)

"It is even more beautiful than I thought it would be," she replied. "You have so many lovely trees and I am very impressed with the color of your blue water. It reminds me of the Mediterranean."

She loves to fish for salmon in Devon. One of her prize Charlevoix purchases at Harbor Hardware was a salmon lure called "little mepps." With this spoon she expects to have very good luck fishing for salmon later this summer in England.

Patricia Trenchard visited her cousin, Tim Ives, who summers at the Chicago Club. Ives and his wife Adrienne went sailing, shopping and sightseeing together. They also arranged for a nostalgic visit to Mrs. Scott's former cottage, which happens to be the site of Lady Trenchard's parents' outdoor wedding in August, 1922, just seventy years ago.

Lady Trenchard was born and raised in England except for the two years during World War II when she attended Foxcroft, a girls boarding school, in Middleburg, Va. (She will be attending the 50th reunion of her class on the 12th of June). On her return to England she joined the WRENS (Women's Royal Naval Service) where she served in the Signal Corps. She now lives in Hertfordshire near London and volunteers her time for the Red Cross, and the Old People's Club when she isn't lavishing her attention on her three sons and six small grandchildren.

Editorial

An international issue hits home

About a month ago there was a show on public television. It was based on the book "America: What Went Wrong?" The book is based on a nine-part series of stories by Philadelphia Inquirer reporters Donald L. Bartlett and James B. Steele. The series focused on how rule makers in Washington and on Wall Street have created situations which have harmed the American economy and are squeezing the middle class, causing many middle class people to lose their jobs.

One portion of the show discussed the shift of industry from the U.S. to Mexico. Thousands of U.S. jobs are being moved to Mexico where Mexican workers are paid $1.25 per hour or less. The end result is unemployed American workers and Mexican workers who live in slums.

Watching the show on TV last month was interesting, but it became more interesting this past week when Ralph McRae came into the Courier office and told of a local manufacturing firm which had been approached by a Mexican agency and encouraged to relocate in Mexico. (See related story page 19) The CEO of the manufacturer received a letter from a marketing person with a Mexican agency informing him of a "great opportunity for your company to reduce operating costs." The letter said, "As a world class manufacturer you have the advantage of access to the lowest cost labor market in North America! Mexico!"

The letter continued, "Consider that the fully fringed labor cost along the border in Northern Mexico averages $1.25 per hour. Just compare that to your real cost of wages. This equates to almost $20,000 in savings per employee."

Much to his credit, the local manufacturer was not impressed by the offer. In fact, he was offended and wrote a letter of protest which he sent to Michigan's U.S. Senators, among other people.

Curiously, President George Bush is pushing for increased open trade with Mexico. While the trend toward a global economy is something which probably is inevitable, care has to be taken to see that this change occurs in a beneficial manner. As one of the world's economic leaders the United States must work to protect U.S. citizens and at the same time oppose what is for all practical intents and purposes virtual slave labor in other countries. Whenever this point is raised, Mr. Bush and his cohorts claim that the opinion is born of "protectionism." And they use the word "protectionism" as if it is some type of dirty word.

But if what Mr. Bush refers to as "protectionism" means keeping jobs in the United States or at the very least demanding that other countries pay workers decent wages, then we'll take it. Compare that to a version of open trade which equates to where American workers being laid off from good jobs so that Mexican workers can be taken advantage of and live in slums. When you look at it in that light, "protectionism" doesn't sound like such a dirty word.

It's an interesting situation which you'll be hearing about throughout the presidential campaign. And when you hear about it, bear in mind, it affects Charlevoix. Maybe more directly than you might first think.

Harrod - Cummings

Shannon Harrod and Larry Cummings were united in marriage May 30. The bride is the daughter of Marrell Staffel of Charlevoix, and Scott Harrod of Gypsum, Colorado.

The groom is from Harbor Springs and the son of Sally Bragaw of Harbor Springs.

The double ring ceremony, which took place at Graham Chapel in Harbor Springs, was performed by Roger Allen. Seventy-five guests were present to witness the occasion.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her grandfather, William Staffel. Her costume was a white satin gown with a portrait neckline and fitted bodice and ballroom skirt. She wore a chapel length train. The bride's veil was a wreath of pearls, sequins, and bugle beads with a finger tip length illusion veil. She carried white roses.

The bride was attended by Susie Belfy, maid of honor, with Heather Harrod, sister of the bride, and Becky Christensen serving as bridesmaids. The attendants wore off the shoulder dresses with scalloped necklines in black with a lace overlay. They carried bouquets made of miniature iris, Freesia, Queen Anne's Lace, and ferns.

Jackie Towles served as guest book attendant.

The daughter of the bride, Alexandra Harrod, served as the flower girl. She wore a white tea length dress with short puff sleeves and a large collar, trimmed in lace to match the skirt.

Ron Erber served as the groom's best man, with Hal Armstrong and J.D. Harris serving as groomsmen.

A rehearsal dinner barbeque was hosted for the wedding couple by Roger and Diane Allen of Petoskey at their home.

Tom "Tink" Kaultman provided accompaniment for the service, and a solo was performed by Robin Lee Berry. They also provided the music for the reception, which was given by the newlyweds at Stafford's Bay View Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Cummings

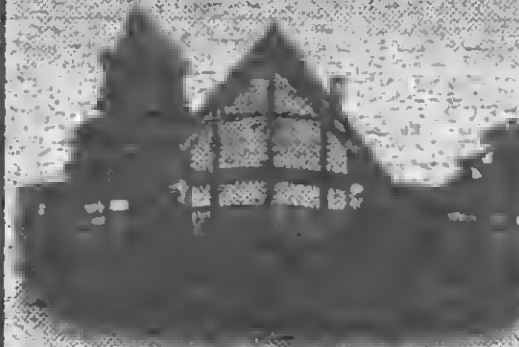

The wedding couple will be spending their four week honeymoon in the Greek Isles, following three days in London.

The groom is a professor of history at North Central Michigan College, and the bride is employed at Stafford's Weatherlane restaurant. She will be attending Central Michigan University in the fall.

The couple will make their home in Harbor Springs after the wedding.

way that it is rather gloomy in appearance and seldom used. Due to the seclusion of the park, there have also been problems with people drinking alcohol there or being intoxicated.

There are also two green electrical transformers which have been put in the middle of the park on a temporary basis. They are to be moved to the back edge of the park within the next two weeks.

Novotny said that although there have been different concepts discussed to give the Chamber more space and to make improvements which might affect the park, that discussion is only at the concept stage and neither the City Council, Downtown Development Authority nor City Planning Commission has taken any action on the matter.

"I think this thing's got a little blown out of proportion," Novotny said.

THE LONG AND SHORT OF MAKING MORE ON YOUR MONEY, WHATEVER YOUR ECONOMIC OUTLOOK.

RISE RATE CD FOR THE LONG TERM

FIRST RATE FUND FOR THE SHORT TERM

The economy is recovering. But even the experts can't agree on what interest rates will do.

So First of America has two shrewd ways for you to invest. No matter what your strategy.

The long view.

If you think rates will drop, or stay flat, you should go with a longer-term investment and get a rate guaranteed to rise every six months over the next two years. The Rising Rate CD.

It starts at a bonus rate of 5 percent per annum. And you'll end up earning 6 1/2 percent for the final term. You can withdraw part or all of your money in the last ten days of every six-month interval without penalty. All it takes to get started is a $10,000 deposit.

The short view.

If you predict rates will keep going up beyond this election year, invest in short term with the FirstRate Fund.

You'll make a bonus return of 5 1/2 percent per annum from the day you sign up through July 31.

So the sooner you invest the more you'll make. After July 31, the per annum rate is based on the 91-day Treasury Bill, so if the T-Bill goes up quickly, you'll continue to benefit from it.

A new deposit of $10,000 is required, and you can get your money seven days after opening us.

It's a respectable rate of return plus liquidity in these uncertain times.

Of course, your investments are FDIC insured up to $100,000 per depositor, and bonus offers are good through July 31.

Call or visit the office nearest you. Because no matter what your point of view, you can't go wrong investing with us.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

by PASTOR MERLE WELLHOUSEN

Summer vacation time is at hand: boating, fishing, swimming, sunning, hiking, camping, sailing, skiing. Summer allows us to take advantage of all the wonderful opportunities at hand to relax and get some rest. In fact, we can take an example from Jesus. He said, "Come with me by yourselves to a quiet place and get some rest." Mark 6:31. We need to remember one thing: It is essential for us to set aside some time to relax. Our human bodies require it. An old Greek proverb said it this way: "You will break the bow if you always keep it bent!"

However, there is one area of our lives that never needs a vacation. It is our relationship with our God. Some people take a vacation from the Lord all summer long. When June 1 rolls around, they in effect say to themselves, "We'll see you in worship and Sunday School after Labor Day comes." Oh how they are spiritually starving themselves and do not realize it!

Every day of our lives we need spiritual strength, nourishment and counsel from the Word of God. Each week we need to gather together so that we can receive warmth and encouragement from our fellow Christians. Each week we receive countless gifts from God: Our life, our health, our families, our clothes, our jobs, a place to live, food to eat, freedom to live. Likewise, we should thank God for all His blessings by setting aside time to worship Him with other believers, study His Word together at your local church, and giving back to Him financially a portion from His blessings to you. God's blessings come afresh each day whether or not we thank Him; whether or not we worship Him; whether or not we return back a portion. Why not let God know how much you appreciate His personal care?

In our "busy" schedules this summer, please do not forget where every ounce of your blessedness comes from: It is very easy to fill our schedules so full that we have not given a minute of time to the One who should mean the most to us. God has created all that is around us for our enjoyment — not our worship! This summer, the boating, fishing, swimming, sunning, hiking, camping, sailing, skiing can wait a couple hours, can't it? "Let us not give up meeting together, as some are in the habit of doing, but let us encourage one another..." Hebrews 10:25.

Classic cars never lose their appeal

By Laurie Lounsbury

It's been 30 years since they rolled off the assembly line in Detroit, yet today, they're rolling out of storage barns and garages all over town, gleaming with fresh, hand rubbed wax and looking much the same as they did when they were the latest new model that Motown had to offer.

They're known today as classic cars, magnificent examples of American machinery and styling ingenuity. Their big block engines growl and purr at an idle, then leap to a throaty roar from the slightest touch on the accelerator. The engines are fast and loud and powerful, unfettered by emission control devices and unhindered by fuel economy designs.

The body styles of these cars built in the '50's and '60's were as unique as the names they bear. The 1953 Buick Roadmaster was truly the master of the road, with its tremendous grill, looking like a road warrior version of Jaws. The 1957 Crown Victoria was the jewel in Ford's crown, with its beautiful, sweeping chrome running in deco waves down the sides of the car. A 1965 Chevelle Malibu Super Sport was pure California muscle, a racing vehicle worthy of the Beachboy's lyrical accolades.

To understand the romance and allure of these 30 and 40 year old cars, you need only understand the owners. Classic car owners are invariably drawn to specific cars from a particular era that most strongly evokes the memories of their own halcyon days.

Vic Martinechek is one such classic car owner. Martinechek owns a '55 Thunderbird, a '56 Ford Continental, and a '66 Mustang. Martinechek explains his love for fifties' cars by simply saying, "I'm old—those are my years for cars."

Martinechek grew up in Bay Shore, working for his family at the Martinechek Dairy Farm. Money was scarce, and Martinechek earned a meager $20 a week driving the milk delivery run. As he bumped down county roads and country lanes, delivering bottles of milk, he always kept one eye out for any used cars that might be for sale. In 1967, he spotted a 1955 Thunderbird for sale, for $250. A college student's father made his son sell the sports car to repay a college loan. With that Thunderbird, Martinechek made his first auto acquisition. 25 years later, Martinechek still has the Thunderbird. It now has a new, candy apple red paint job, and the 292 cubic inch engine with a four barrel carburetor and dual exhaust is in good running order. "You can go like a scared cat in it," Martinechek says of the car.

While the Thunderbird is Martinechek's first classic car, the '56 Continental may be his finest. The Ford Continentals were produced only in 1956 and 1957, with all the Continentals before and after those years made by the Lincoln division of Ford. Only 1,325 Ford Continentals were made, so the value of the car today can be as high as $25,000.

While Martinechek could afford to buy a new car today, he won't. "Back then, you could tell cars apart. Now, they all look the same," Martinechek said.

This 1958 Ford Country Sedan Wagon may look mild mannered, but it is equipped with a Thunderbird four barrel, 292 cubic inch engine, enough to make anyone feel like Superman behind it's wheel.

Classic car owner Fred Di Martino shares that sentiment. Di Martino owns a 1965 Chevelle Malibu Super Sport. "You don't see yourself come and go with the older cars. That's what makes it special to me," said Di Martino.

Di Martino's Malibu falls into the muscle car category of classic cars. With a big block, 427 cubic inch, four barrel carburetor and a full racing cam, the car can go from zero to 120 miles per hour in about eight seconds. "I still get an adrenaline rush everytime I drive it, even after all these years," said Di Martino. He's had the car for 11 years. Di Martino usually trades his classic cars for something else every three or four years, but he's held onto the Malibu the longest. "I love this car. It's been a part of me for a long time," he said.

Di Martino's favorite time to drive sleekly styled Malibu is on cool summer nights, after it's been freshly washed and waxed. The street lights reflect softly on the flawless black paint and chrome trim, and the finely tuned engine runs its best when drawing in the cool night air. "It's just a feeling that's hard to explain; it keeps you young, and it's a nostalgia thing. It definitely takes you back to the good old sixties' era," Di Martino said.

Classic car owner Tete Drost has had his '55 Chevy Wagon for so long that he car is now in its second generation of ownership. Drost bought the car 28 years ago from Beverly Ward, and it now belongs to Drost's son Larry. "It's the dream hot rod of most people," Drost said of the car. The Chevy is on its eighth motor, and has had considerable modifications done to it over the years. It has close to 400 horsepower now, compared to its original 150 horsepower.

Drost attributes the popularity of classic cars to basic economics. "Baby boomers have the money to buy the cars now that they wanted, but didn't have the money for when they were 18 years old," said Drost.

Drost also has a '66 Corvette Roadster, but the '55 Chevy is clearly the apple of his eye. "I just like older things," Drost said. "I could drive a '55 Chevy just as easily as a new Cadillac."

emotional reasons for owning a classic car. "You can pick up one of these (a classic car) for less than the cost of a newer used car, or a new car. These hold their value; they go up in value, instead of losing value like the newer cars," Keie said. Keie was only seven years old when his Impala Super Sport was made, but that doesn't matter to him. A '62 Impala was the first car he drove as a teenager, so it holds great sentimental value to him. "It's passion, a love for cars, that's why I wanted it," Keie said. "I've got a son I'm going to give it to," he added.

Something never explicitly stated, yet implicitly understood by all classic car owners is what these cars really represent. They are a tribute to a time when America ruled the automotive world; a time when life was simpler and so were the cars. Driving a classic car today will fill you with a sense of pride and uniqueness, as well as providing you with a nostalgic rush of simplicity that belongs to another era.

(Below) Tete Drost's '66 Corvette has a 327 cubic inch engine with 350 horsepower. Most of the Corvettes made in that year had 275 to 300 horsepower. "It probably cost around $4,000 to $5,000 when it was new, now it's worth around $25,000."

Irish Boat Shop won an 18-8 contest with Paul Bunyan Lanes. Irish won despite being out hit 14-10. Kip Vandervelden was the winning pitcher.

June 9 (Women's League)
Nanny's accumulated 34 runs on 23 hits to beat Townhouse 34-8. Among the 23 hits was an inside the park home run by Carrie LaBlance. Winning pitcher Kelly Abbey allowed just eight hits.

Boyne Valley Hydroseed defeated Kwikie Duplicating 12-1. Boyne Valley had nine hits while winning pitcher Kelly Carson threw a two-hitter.

I.M.R. beat Flight Deck 13-9 behind the nine-hit pitching of Carrie Nelson. I.M.R. collected 18 hits.

June 10
Townhouse defeated Bay Shore Steel 17-12. Winning pitcher Lenny Miller allowed 12 hits while Townhouse accumulated 24. Bill Alward of Townhouse and Jim Milke of Bay Shore Steel each had two home runs in the game.

Pine Hill Nursery clobbered Charlevoix Manufacturing 19-1. Pine Hill had 20 hits, including home runs by Troy Connors and Eric Towe. Winning pitcher Jason Towe allowed just four hits.

June 11 (Women's League)
Boyne Valley Hydroseed shuttered Mike's Glass 7-2. Boyne Valley had 15 hits while Mike's had 10 hits off winning pitcher Kelly Carson.

In a game which wasn't really a defensive struggle, or perhaps in a game in which defense was a real struggle, Townhouse defeated Flight Deck 25-23. Townhouse scored their 25 runs on just seven hits. Flight Deck scored 23 runs on 12 hits. The winning pitcher was Meda Kehrer.

I.M.R. won a 15-5 decision from Kwikie Duplicating. I.M.R. had 14 hits while Kwikie had seven. Carrie Nelson took the pitching win.

June 12
In a defensive game Bay Shore Steel beat Flight Deck 3-2. Bay Shore could manage only seven hits, but that was one better than Flight Deck's six. Butch Potter was the winning pitcher.

Townhouse beat Paul Bunyan Lanes 12-1. Townhouse accumulated 13 hits while Paul Bunyan Lanes totalled six.

Pine Hill Nursery beat Irish Boat Shop 20-5. Included in Pine Hill's 20-hit attack were home runs by Troy Connors and Eric Towe. Jason Towe was the winning pitcher.

Yachting notes

Race number 4 of the CYC Spring Series was sailed in relative calmness Wednesday, June 10 — no collisions, no protests, and until the first few boats crossed the finish line, virtually no wind. Even our spectators in the stink-boat managed to stay out of trouble last week.

After a very shortened course (making it a two-legged race), the results were as follows:

Fleet A: 1) Pygmalion; 2) Gotha; 3) Mint Julep.

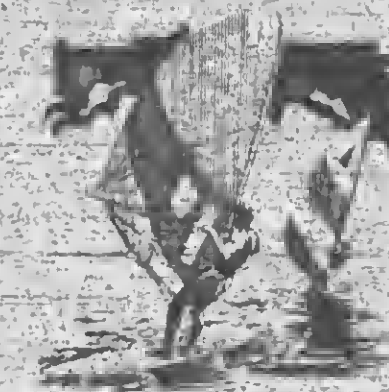

Fleet B: 1) Lost-Vermont; 2) Cabaret; 3) Sandpiper; 4) Bismarck; 5) Cygnus; 6) Canusa.

Fleet C: 1) MIP (it's rumored that she's thinking about changing the name...); 2) Bandit (only two seconds behind); 3) Newsense; 4) H-S Moisture (please, change the name); 5) Allons-y; 6) Vantage; 7) White Lightning; 8) Humdinger.

JAM Fleet: 1) Stalworth (gonna go for three?); 2) Bald Eagle; 3) Flash; 4) Apothecary.

Skippers, don't forget to bring your crews to the new yacht club after the Wednesday night races for food and beverages.

Barron and Golski become law partners

By Laurie Lounsbury

Attorney Dan Barron and attorney Harry Golski have decided to blend their legal expertise and form a new law partnership, Barron and Golski. "Our practices compliment each other," said Barron of the new partnership.

Barron had formerly been in law practice with Don Berlage, and Golski had been with Tom Pointner and Dick Joseph. Barron's focus has always been on real estate law, while Golski predominantly handled general civil litigation.

Barron said that he had been interested for several years to have another attorney in partnership with him, and that he had just been very selective. His departure from the partnership with Berlage was amicable, and he continues to work in the same building as Berlage.

Golski worked as the assisting prosecuting attorney in Oakland County before moving to Charlevoix in 1984. Golski had been considering joining the firm of Simpson and Moran in their Birmingham office, when a vacancy opened up with the firm in Charlevoix. Golski was happy to move to Charlevoix, and has never looked back.

Barron came to Charlevoix in 1984, having been familiar with the area from spending summers with his grandparents on Deer Lake.

Golski said his decision to team up with Barron was a simple one to make. "I've always had a lot of personal and professional respect for Dan, and for his civic mindedness," said Golski.

The new law firm is located in the Pine River Building overlooking the Pine River Channel.

Attorneys Dan Barron (left) and Harry Golski have formed a new law partnership operating out of the Pine River Building.

The Sears corporation recently bought breakfast for the staff of the local Sears store because the store exceeded sales quotas for tractors and maintenance agreements for the month of May. Given that the tractors were responsible for the breakfast, the Sears staff drove the tractors to breakfast at Juillerets Restaurant. Sears manager Joe Trojanek said the drive in from M-66 took a while given that the tractors have a top speed of 5.5 miles per hour. Shown parked at the restaurant are (from left) Trojanek, Mariann Otmonowski, Donnell Jones, Pat Weaver and Lonnie Jones.

Mexican agency attempts to lure away local jobs

By Ralph McRae
A Mexican marketing operation would like to take manufacturing jobs out of Charlevoix and move them to a plant in Mexico where workers would be paid $1.25 an hour. (That includes the cost of fringe benefits.)

Kenneth Kensington is Chief Executive Officer of Hastings Group Inc. The Hastings Group owns manufacturing plants in Hastings, Belding and in Charlevoix. The Charlevoix plant is named Viace. It was formerly known as Will Flow and was established in Charlevoix 34 years ago.

This past fall Kensington received a letter from a marketing person who represented a private Mexican development firm called FINSA Grupa Arguelles.

The opening paragraphs of the letter said:

"Dear Mr. Kensington:

"There is a great opportunity for your company to reduce operating costs by taking advantage of Mexico's Maquiladora Program. As a world class manufacturer you have the advantage of access to the lowest cost labor market in North America Mexico!"

"Consider that the fully fringed labor cost along the border in Northern Mexico averages $1.25 per hour. Just compare that to your real cost of wages. This equates to almost $20,000 in savings per employee per year."

"We think this is significant enough for your consideration!"

Kensington was totally unimpressed by the invitation. In fact, it made him very angry. He wrote a letter of protest and sent it to various politicians, to the president of the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce and to other industrial leaders. He enclosed a copy of the letter he had received from the Mexican firm.

In his letter to Levin, Kensington wrote:

"Dear Senator Levin:
"Find enclosed a recently received letter that is an insult not only to me but to any American dignity we all might have left."

"Please read it carefully, we all consider Iraq a definite threat to world peace, how about this slave labor war that threatens American industry?"

Protests, such as the one lodged by Kensington, to politicians on the matter of jobs shifting to Mexico have had little effect. According to the book "America: What Went Wrong?" by Donald L. Bartlett and James B. Steele, the last four American presidents, and in particular current president George Bush have pushed the idea of opening trade with Mexico. The theoretical benefit is an increased Mexican market for American goods. But according to the book, the theory has unfortunately not matched the reality. The reality has been that jobs were lost to Mexico, leaving middle class Americans unemployed. Meanwhile Mexican workers are being paid approximately $1 per hour and are living in shacks and still can't afford to buy very many goods, whether those goods are being produced in the U.S. or Mexico.

The adult class will meet for two weeks on Monday and Thursday evenings beginning July 6. The cost for the adult program is $40.

SCRAPBOOK

...author writes about critters killed by you or perhaps living on you

It wasn't until Science '84 Magazine called Knutson and requested two quotes from Knutson that he was spurred into action. "I asked them if I could have a day to think about it, and then I hung up and wrote exactly two quotes. That's how the book got started," Knutson explained.

Knutson's resulting book, entitled "Flattened Fauna," takes a wryly humorous look at animal behavior. The field guide to dead animals on the road is complete with black silhouette illustrations that demonstrate what certain species look like when they lose their third dimension. The flattened roadrunner, in silhouette form, bears the following descriptive passage: "This illustration was drawn from a dead road runner, and is included to show something of the serenity achieved by a few road animals. The frantic pace of constant food-seeking has slowed considerably here. Regardless of traffic speed, the bird is clearly at rest."

Flattened Fauna was published by a Ten Speed Printing, a small company in California that caters to unusual books. They initially printed 5,000 copies and were amazed to sell 40,000 copies in the first year. Today, more than 100,000 copies of "Flattened Fauna" have been sold.

At the urging of a literary agent, Knutson decided to write another book, "Furtive Fauna: A Field Guide to the Creatures Who Live On You." The inspiration for his newest book came from a book by Dr. Marples, which delved into the ecology of the human skin. "I've treated the human being as an environment," Knutson explained. "As an environment, the human being is a very desirable place for all kinds of furtive creatures such as lice, ticks, and mites to set up their living quarters. It's a matter of climate, Knutson says, and a human being offers a variety of desirable climates. Ear canals are warm and humid, fingernails are cool and arid, and other places on the human body are down right tropical."

Knutson's witty, often wacky approach to the study of ectoparasites will make even the most insect phobic person want to learn more about these little fauna that are settling up housekeeping on our anatomy. Knutson does not address the subject of endoparasites, the creatures that live inside of us, because, "As a group they are disgusting creatures with no redeeming characteristics...we will mention them no further."

Knutson's book, while being a totally factual and informative work, makes for light, laugh-out-loud reading, with his whimsical look at life from a parasite's point of view. Of chiggers, he says, "They're really adolescent mites that don't know how to behave properly yet...like other adolescents without supervision, they seem to congregate on what passes for street corners in chigger-land."

Knutson has spent years honing his sense of humor through his teaching. "I've always taken a lighthearted approach to teaching," he said. The bottom line with his books, he said, is that readers will learn about animal behavior with "Flattened Fauna," and will learn about ecology with "Furtive Fauna." Teaching is like comedy in that you keep the stuff that works, and throw away the stuff that doesn't work," Knutson said.

Knutson is married to Sharon Belding Knutson, a Charlevoix native, and they have five grown children. Because of Sharon, Knutson has spent 25 summers in Charlevoix. "Sharon gets the bends if she doesn't get close to Lake Michigan for a length of time," Knutson said of his wife.

Knutson has embarked on a ten day, ten city promotional book tour, which is sponsored by his new publisher, Penguin Books. He will return to Charlevoix to spend the rest of his summer with his wife, relatives, and the local furtive fauna found in northern Michigan.

These business men, smartly attired, though not very appropriately for a warm summer day, stand on the beach next to the old Beach Hotel and admire the new wing of the building.

New electrical substation nearing completion

Decision to change sites will end up costing approximately $400,000, but there will be advantages

By L. Scott Swanson

Landscaping work carrying a price tag of $95,493 will soon be completed at the new electrical substation on the corner of M-66 and Stover Road. The cost of landscaping is only part of the cost of moving the substation from the corner of Stover Road and Ferry Road. The total cost of the move, which was approved by the city council in March of 1991, is estimated to be between $400,000 and $500,000.

But just looking at those cost figures really doesn't tell the whole story of why the new substation ended up where it is.

Charlevoix's electrical system is somewhat different from normal in that it is municipally owned and operated, rather than being owned and operated by a private utility company. Over the years this has worked out economically for the community and Charlevoix electric users have had lower electric rates than surrounding communities.

In the 1980's the city began reviewing the electrical system in preparation for a renovation program which would allow the system to continue meeting the electrical needs of a growing community. Two of the key players in the renovation have been Ed Whitley, city electric department supervisor and Roger Westenbroek, a retired electrical engineer who has shared his expertise on a voluntary basis as a service to the community.

The electrical substation is the center of the city's electrical system. Power lines carrying 46,000 volts of electricity bring power into the substation. Substation transformers step the voltage down to either 4,000 or 12,000 volts and distribute it on lines throughout the community. Before electricity comes into your home, it is stepped down again to 110 or 220 volts.

Given the importance of the substation to the system, designing a new substation and determining where it would be placed have played a significant role in the renovation. From a technical standpoint, the easiest, cheapest and best location for a new substation would have been right next to the old one at the corner of Ferry and Stover Roads. But there were other considerations, the location of the old substation is on a scenic bluff overlooking Ferry Beach park and Lake Charlevoix. It is also in close proximity to some homes and a manufacturing plant. Westenbroek said that early in the program he told the city council of that time that if they wanted, or ever thought they might end up wanting to, move the substation the time to make that decision would be while the renovation was taking place. However, the city council, which was in place at that time, considered the matter and decided to put the new substation next to the old one.

That direction lasted until 1990 when people who lived near the old substation began voicing concerns about the building a new and somewhat larger substation in the same area. Dennis Wojan, who is one of the owners of the manufacturing plant at the top of the hill above the substation and also of the new condominium project at the bottom of the bluff near the old substation, offered to give the city some property at the top of the hill behind the plant as an alternative site for the new substation. From the city's standpoint, that site wasn't too far away from the old site and therefore wouldn't mean a great deal of added expense and it would also clear city land overlooking Lake Charlevoix for possible future use as a park.

But when people living in land surrounding the site at the top of the hill heard of the proposed relocation, they complained. By early 1991, the city council had one group of people who didn't want the new substation next to the old substation and another group of people who didn't want the new substation at the top of the hill.

The obvious question was, if the new substation wasn't to be placed at one of those two sites,

Screened to the tune of $95,493

Trees which are intended to screen the new electrical substation so that it won't be easily visible from M-66 are now in place. Landscaping around the substation cost $95,493.

then where was it to go? On the first Monday of March in 1991, the city council met to consider nine possible locations for a new substation. Westenbroek, who has tried to steer clear of the politics of the situation and simply provide technical information, advised the council on the pros and cons of each of the nine sites. Most of the sites quickly proved unfeasible for one reason or another, primarily either added expense or people's objections. One proposed site outside of town would have meant added cost of as much as $3 million over the 30 year life of the new substation due to power losses from transmission lines.

At the end of the meeting, only one site had met with general approval - the site at the corner of M-66 and Stover Road. The only person who complained at that meeting about the M-66 and Stover site was Chester Adams. He said placing the substation at that location would be putting an "ugly duckling" at a community entry point. City planner Gerry Harsch said the city would be landscaping the new substation to hide it as much as possible. Despite Adams' objections, council approval of the M-66 and Stover site was unanimous.

At the conclusion of the March, 1991 meeting most of the people who had crowded into the council room that evening seemed to be going away happy. But when the new substation began taking shape earlier this year and the estimated cost of landscaping became known, complaints began cropping up again. Whitley noted that although there have been complaints about the new site, there hasn't been the volume of complaints that there were about the original site. He said that although there have been complaints about the look of the new substation, the main reason people have complained is the cost of moving the substation.

Landscaping to obscure the new substation cost $95,493. Grand Traverse Nursery Sales was awarded the bid by the city council at a May 21 meeting. They were selected from among four bidders. Several other bidders were sent information about the project.

Additional wiring and electrical work which wouldn't have been required at the other site has added at least $250,000 to the project and perhaps as much as $400,000. It's difficult to break out the costs directly attributable to the move. The cost of the project is being paid out of bond money, i.e. money the city borrowed and will have to pay back to fund the project. City electric users can expect a rate increase in the coming year to pay for the renovation. A specific amount for the increase has yet to be determined, but the increase is expected to bring Charlevoix below the average rate paid by people in surrounding communities up to a rate similar to that which is paid in surrounding communities.

Although the move to the M-66 and Stover site had its costs, it also had its benefits. It was one step in clearing a valuable piece of city-owned property overlooking Lake Charlevoix. The overall plan for the future of that site is to build a new public works complex south of town and use the site currently occupied by the substation, street department and electric department to expand the park area at Ferry Beach. This year's city budget began setting aside money to build the new public works building sometime in coming years. There were also some costs which would have partially offset the costs of the move. Even if the new substation had been built at the original site, there still would have been some landscaping costs, although they may have been smaller and incurred later.

From a technical standpoint, the move to the new location has not been harmful.

Westenbrook said more dollars had to go into the new substation than he wanted to see go into it. "I've been trying to do things as economically as possible," he said.

Although it has been costly, the new substation has turned out well in terms of construction. "I'll work. I'm comfortable with it and we'll have a good system when we're finished with it," Westenbrook said.

The new substation is expected to be fully energized and go on line later this summer. Whitley said he anticipates the removal of the old substation to begin in the spring of 1993.

Editorial

Park could stand improvements

Local veterans should at least keep an open mind to suggested changes in Veterans' Memorial Park. Perhaps they should even be the driving force behind improvements to the park.

At a city council meeting earlier this month a representative of two local veterans' groups presented a petition to the council opposing the construction of a new Chamber of Commerce building in the park which is located at the corner of Bridge Street and Belvedere Avenue. Presently, the Chamber of Commerce lacks space. It occupies only a small portion of the building it shares with the harbor master, boater's restrooms and public restrooms. The Chamber operation is confined to two small rooms and a couple of closets. In seeking a solution to the Chamber space problem, one alternative which has been tossed about is the possibility of moving the Chamber building over to Veterans' Memorial Park. Some type of veterans' memorial symbol could be placed in the park currently occupied by the Chamber building.

The purpose of this editorial is neither to support nor oppose the possibility of shifting the Chamber building. The purpose here is simply to point out that there is a lot of room for improvement to the Veterans' Memorial Park property.

It's an unfortunate truth, but as things currently stand, that little piece of property is nothing but dreary and uninviting. Perhaps its most frequent users are people who are in the process of getting intoxicated or who are sleeping off the effects of intoxication. The park, as it is today, is by no means a suitable tribute to young men and women who were hauled halfway round the world to give their lives so that we may continue to enjoy the freedom and beauty of life in their hometown.

According to what was said at the city council meeting, when some of the trees in the park were planted, they were dedicated to specific World War I veterans. The thought may have been appropriate, but the problem is those trees are ugly. Granted, that's blunt, but look at those trees. They're clumpy, knobby ugly trees sitting in a gloomy, foreboding excuse for a park. The purpose of pointing this out isn't to in any way demean the memory of the veterans for whom the trees are dedicated. In fact, hopefully it will have the opposite effect. Hopefully, it will lead to the community doing something more suitable to the memory of those veterans.

Local veterans are right to be concerned about what happens in Veterans' Memorial Park. Their concern is healthy. It shows that they haven't forgotten their fellow soldiers and they don't want other people to forget them either. Such loyalty is commendable. But it's possible to be concerned about something and still keep an open mind. You can be concerned about something without being intransigent to changes which, if handled correctly, can make Veterans' Memorial Park better suited to the purpose for which it is intended.

Letters to the editor

Breeze fondly remembered

Dear Breezy,

"The Song Has Ended, But the Memory Lingers On." This to you, my wonderful "Pied Piper of Music," I dedicate this story.

Remember the first time we met? I wandered into the Grey Gables, and was awed by your music. I must have been humming a familiar melody when you said, "do you sing?" Well, the next thing I knew, "Sentimental Journey" was coming from my pipes. It became our theme song. Ah! those "Happy Days."

It seemed everyone that came in, was identified by one of your tunes. Hey! there's Bill, "See the U.S.A. in Your Chevrolet," or Jack would pop in and we would hear "Dixie." I could go on and on.

When my folks would arrive at my house from downstate, the first thing Dad would say is "when are we going to Breezy's?" Everyone that came into my home, was introduced to, and never forgot, their evening at Breezy's.

You know, were it not for you, a certain guy named Bob would never have entered my life. We both enjoyed so many happy hours with you.

Your dedication to our community will never be forgotten. The "All Seasons Party, Mardi Gras, or any holiday, you blessed us with your costumes. Remember Wonder Woman, Miss Piggy, The Playboy Bunny, and those long hours you endured having your tresses made into corn rows, so you could surprise us as Bo Derek.

I guess the most unforgettable times were New Years Eve. That silly clock set magically for ten to twelve, your beloved Shirley at your side, and then at midnight, the strains of "Auld Lang Syne" floating through the crowd at the stroke of twelve. What a way to begin each new year!

Yes, my wonderful friend, you did so much for so many. "Thank you my much loved "Pied Piper of Music," the Song Has Ended, but Our Memories will Always Linger on."

Love,
Sandy Fowler

Public library to host summer reading program

The annual summer reading program at the Charlevoix Public Library begins at 1 p.m. Thursday, June 25.

This year the theme is going to be "Elect to Read" in keeping with the nationwide events.

The opening party will feature games, cartoons and treats. A book log will be issued to keep track of the books read over the summer.

This is not a contest, but rather is meant to encourage reading during the summer vacation as reports show that if a kid keeps reading anything over the summer their reading skills do not regress as much as if they don't read.

The reading program is open to all elementary school age kids.

For pre-school children, the library has a story hour Tuesday mornings at 10:30 for 3 to 5 year olds.

Correction

A story in last week's Courier regarding the engagement of Marci Wynkoop and Tim Balogh incorrectly listed the name of the college they are attending as Grand Rapids Business College. They are attending Grand Rapids Baptist College.

Hand - Whitley

Kimberly Jane Hand and Kevin Jay Whitley were united in marriage at the United Methodist Church of Charlevoix on May 16th, at 2 p.m. The bride is the daughter of Merle and Jane Hand of Charlevoix, and the groom is the son of Elaine Whitley and the late Ivan Whitley of Charlevoix.

200 guests were present to witness the double ring ceremony, which was performed by Benton Heisl.

The altar was decorated with a three foot altar piece made of snap dragons, white and coral carnations, and greens. The pews were decorated with coral and white bows. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Merle Hand.

The bride wore a white satin costume with an all hand-beaded bodice and a Queen Anne neckline. The dress had a keyhole back and princess waist that flowed into a cathedral train. Her headress was a satin tear drop veil with pearls and tulle netting in the form of a rose. Her bouquet was made of roses, stephanotis, white freesias, baby's breath, white carnations, and lily of the valley.

The bride was attended by Michelle Schwartzfisher, acting as the maid of honor, and serving as bridesmaids were Kaye Miller, sister of the bride, and Lori Drost. They wore satin coral dresses with a sweetheart neckline and keyhole backs, with graduated hemlines. They carried rose and white carnation arm bouquets. The niece of the bride, Keri Hand, was the flower girl.

The groom's nephew, Zachary Whitley, served as the ringbearer. James Zietler acted as best man, with Gerard Wimmer and Gregg Whitley as groomsmen. Ushers were Rich Hand, brother of the bride, and Pat Whitley, brother of groom.

A rehearsal dinner was held at the groom's mother's house, hosted by Elaine Whitley, Marge Bushor, and Joan McKenney.

A reception following the wedding was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Boyne City, hosted by the parents of the bride.

The groom is employed at Harbor Industries in Charlevoix, and the bride works at the Sports Peddler in Petoskey. The newlyweds will make their home at Lake Michigan Heights in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of John and Elaine Smith of Charlevoix, and the groom is the son of James and Shirley Petrie of East Jordan.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length white satin gown with a scalloped train, accented by tear drop sequin patterns and miniature pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of lavender roses, white lilies, babies' breath, and sword fern.

Music during the ceremony was provided by vocalist Brad Petrie, who was accompanied on guitar by Charlie Drapeau.

Kathy Washburn served as maid of honor, and Debbie Colvin acted as bridesmaid. The attendants wore lavender tea length dresses and carried nosegays of white sweetheart roses, latifolia, baby's breath, and lavender statice, arranged by Susan Louiselle, sister of the bride.

Emergency services practice for terrorist attack

By Laurie Lounsbury

"On June 17, five terrorists were apprehended while trying to attack Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant. The terrorists were believed to have been acting with other terrorists that contaminated the water supply in East Jordan and called in a bomb threat at Michcon gas plant." This didn't happen, but who's to say it couldn't happen?

Earl Muma, Director of Emergency Services for Charlevoix County, must be sure that our county's emergency operations workers are prepared for just such an emergency. That's why a statewide emergency drill took place June 17. The purpose of the drill was to insure that, however remote the possibility, Charlevoix County will be able to handle a crisis in an efficient manner.

The June 17 drill was based on the premise that terrorist activity had been taking place all over the United States in an effort to undermine the government. Muma was responsible for creating a scenario locally that could conceivably take place under the circumstances. "Just look what happened in L.A. with the riots," Muma said at the beginning of the drill. "When things get out of control, anything can happen."

Muma's exercise for Charlevoix County included a gas tanker crash in Memorial Park, explosions in Round Lake, bomb threats in Boyne City, contaminated water in East Jordan, and terrorists stalking Big Rock.

Muma felt that the exercise went well on the whole, and hoped that it served to demonstrate the importance of the emergency operations center. "EOC is always on the bottom of the totem pole, and it shouldn't be that way," Muma said.

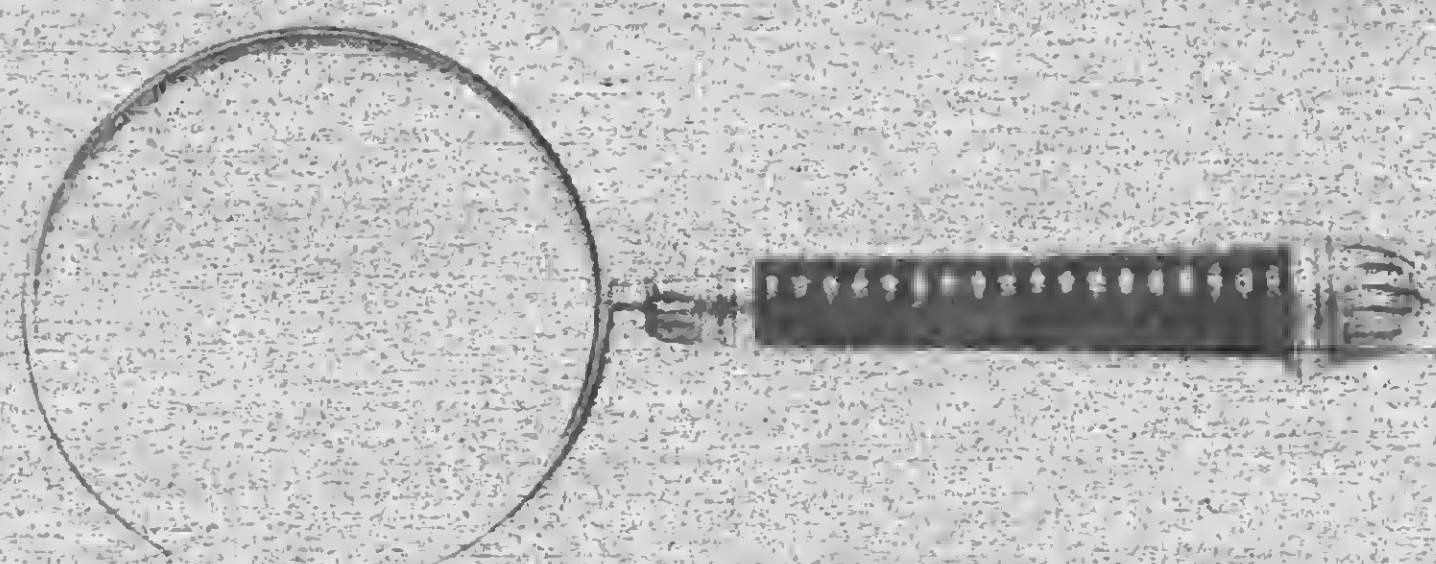

Muma acknowledged that some areas of the emergency operations needed improvement. Getting information out to the public and to the news media as quickly as possible and determining what information should be released was one area in need of improvement. This summer, EOC workers will begin training in this area, and will train straight through until next November, when the next drill will take place.

Muma commended Lyle Gennett, Charlevoix Fire Department, and Dale Boehm, Charlevoix Sheriff's department, for the excellent job they did. Both were working for the Charlevoix Emergency Operations center for their first time.

THE LONG AND SHORT OF MAKING MORE ON YOUR MONEY, WHATEVER YOUR ECONOMIC OUTLOOK.

THE LONG VIEW FOR THE LONG TERM

THE SHORT VIEW FOR THE SHORT TERM

The economy is recovering. But with the experts' advice on what interest rates will do...

No line of America has ever shared ways for you to invest. No matter what your strategy.

The long view.

If you think rates will drop, or say that you should go with a long-term investment and get a rate guaranteed to rise every six months over the next two years. The Rising Rate CD.

It starts at a bonus rate of 5 percent per annum. And you'll end up earning 6 percent for the final term. You can withdraw part or all.

of your money in the best way of investment. At a rate of 5.75 percent, it's a 5.75 percent CD.

The short view.

If you prefer rates will keep going up, and this decision was made. Start term with this.

You'll make a bonus return of 5.75 percent per annum from the day you sign up through July 31.

So the sooner you invest the more you'll make. After July 31, the per annum rate is based on the 91-day Treasury Bill. So if the T-Bill goes up quickly, you'll continue to benefit from it.

A new deposit of $10,000 is required, and you cannot touch your money, seven days after opening it.

It's a respectable rate of return plus liquidity in the case of an emergency.

Of course, your investments are FDIC insured (up to $100,000 per depositor). And bonus offers are good through July 31.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

Have you ever watched a thunderstorm unfold? You know it is coming long before it gets to you. The clouds build up to tremendous heights on the horizon. Heralds of lightning streak back and forth across the sky. The temperature suddenly drops. The wind stills just before the sprinkles begin.

I believe that every heart can recognize the presence of God in their lives if they will just learn what to look for. He is not shy about letting His love for every seeking heart be known. You can sense that change His calling in your life makes. You can see the difference in the way you view things that you once thought were important and how He calls upon you to change. Sometimes a real storm is the only way he can get some of us to our knees. But other times, it is a subtle touch, a gentle word, a clearly spirit filled moment that lets you sense your sins and know that His saving grace is the only way to truly leave them behind.

Last Wednesday night, we were in Anderson, Indiana in a state park under a canvas camping trailer when the big thunderstorm hit. Picture the scene: winds gusting to 77 m.p.h., hail, and a generous dose of lightning on the side. Where do we go? What do we do? Listening on my portable ham radio, the folks in town told us there was no tornado but you could have fooled me. I thought about getting everybody into the van and getting out of there but it was even dangerous just sticking your head out of the trailer. Sitting on the floor of the trailer, my son asked, "Watcha doing Dad?" Just making sure you're okay. "I'm fine, Dad." I didn't want him to know that I was wondering how in the world I would protect him and the rest of my brood if the trailer decided to tip. It was the first time in my life that I realized I would give my life for theirs if that was what it took to keep my family safe. Moments like that get to you.

But you know, Jesus knew that He would give His life for us long before we did. He looked at us with love and care and realized there would be no other way for us to truly be free and happy. When you realize just how far Jesus went for you, it should be a moment that gets to you too. Your outlook is different. You understand just how great a sacrifice love can be. When you are the recipient of such a love, it becomes a priceless treasure.

God knows the clefts of the rock that will shelter us in the times of storm. God knows the words we need to hear to reassure us in the darkest night of the soul. If your love has ever been put to the test through a personal trial or a family trial; you know what it means when those rough moments are past. You become more devoted and love has more meaning for you than ever. Isn't that the kind of love you want God to have for you?

Painter Pat Norton has recently completed a series of paintings featuring Charlevoix scenes.

Painter's work shows Charlevoix scenes

Pat Norton, Michigan artist, well known for her watercolors of lighthouses and ships of the Great Lakes will be present at a showing in the Lobby of the Edgewater Inn from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, June 27.

Commissioned by Carol Hisey to express with paint the spirit and beauty of Charlevoix, Norton's unique style of altered brush and blended colors captures Northern Michigan's famous landmarks.

Her work of the Charlevoix area is available in limited edition prints, numbered and signed by the artist. They can be purchased in the Lobby of the Edgewater Inn, Charlevoix and through local art retail stores.

Dr. Dave Strawbridge (right) co-chair of Friends of the Pool, and Patti Ulrich representing Beta Sigma Phi sorority review the plaques on the wall of the pool campaign headquarters. Beta Sigma Phi, with their latest contribution to the pool campaign, became eligible for Steward designation and their name will appear in the lobby of the pool building on a plaque similar to the one shown in the photograph.

Rod and Kim Stevens are shown dancing "four-hands-across" at a barn dance Saturday, June 6 at the Dave and Lucy Stolt farm. Each year, for the past eight years, the Stoltz, who are members of the Barnard Grange, have hosted an old fashioned square dance at their barn to raise money for the Grange's Deaf Activities Fund. This year's dance raised $265.

Charlevoix Courier SUMMER TIMES

In Charlevoix, when someone shouts "Play ball!" hundreds of people are willing to heed the call

By Laurie Lounsbury

The bases are loaded, it's the bottom of the sixth inning, and the count is three and two for the home team favorite, Big Ben. Nervous fans bite their nails as Ben taps his bat on home plate, then cocks his elbows and swings the bat up into position. The pitcher hurls the ball, slightly low and inside, but Ben is ready. He cracks it over the outfield fence, and the crowd goes wild as the players round the bases, with Ben bringing up the rear and rounding home plate to cheers and backslapping from his teammates.

Ben could be any ten-year-old kid, playing softball in one of the Charlevoix Recreational Leagues. The Charlevoix Recreation Department provides more than 600 people, children and adults alike, with a place to play ball during the warm summer evenings.

There are four ballfields for league use at the baseball and softball complex at the corner of Norwood Road and Carpenter Street. The city recreation department, headed by Ike Boss, organizes all of the softball teams and coaches, and schedules game times for the different leagues.

There are the men's and women's softball leagues, along with boy's and girl's softball leagues, and the league where it all begins, the children's T-Ball league.

As the leagues increased in numbers, the city built a new ball field last summer in order to accommodate the many players. The city also built a new fence around the men's field, to bring it closer to regulation softball field size.

The Little League organization, which is a separate entity from the city recreation department, has around 200 kids in its baseball program. Combined with the 600 players in the city softball leagues, that means about one quarter of Charlevoix's population is playing either baseball or softball during the summer.

Charlevoix will probably never be host to a major league team, but for avid ball fans, there's plenty of excitement and activity at the Carpenter Street ballfields. Where else can you watch five-year-old children experience their first thrill of victory, as they stomp vigorously on home plate, and then stroll a few yards over to the men's field and watch a game be won or lost at the hands of the slow pitch pitcher?

Games will be won and lost in the adult men's and women's leagues, but nice guys don't finish last. In the men's league, the Larry McBride award is given to the player showing the best sportsmanship. In the women's league, the newly established Fran Martin award will go to the best sportswoman. The umpires and the scorekeepers make the nominations and vote on these awards.

Senior League manager Steve Kehrer meets his troops as they come off the field between innings of a Senior League game.

There's no doubt about it, this job is a real blast

(Editor's note: The following story was written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a former city council member and mayor and is currently a member of the Charlevoix Industrial Development Committee.)

By Ralph McRae
Medusa Cement, Charlevoix's largest manufacturer, starts its manufacturing process out with a bang. Before limestone can be brought out of the Medusa quarry and processed into cement, it is first broken loose from the wall of the quarry with an explosive charge set by Bill Novotny.

Novotny is a one-man explosives crew. He drills holes in the quarry wall, packs the holes with blasting powder and then brings down tons of limestone. Novotny has been drilling and blasting for the past 15 years. He learned his trade by observing his predecessor and by attending seminars put on by manufacturers of explosives. It is a challenging job and not a job without risks. Yet it is safe enough if proper procedures are carefully followed.

The first step in the process is drilling holes in the top of the quarry wall. The holes are seven inches in diameter and 100 feet deep. They are started 12 feet from the edge of the wall and are spaced every 12 feet along a previously surveyed straight line. Novotny uses a drilling rig with a carbide bit. High pressure air coming through the center of the bit forces shavings up out of the hole to the surface. The drill shanks are each 30 feet long. There are five of them. The ones not in use sit in a holder next to the hole. Just above the cutting bit is a reamer which increases the diameter of the hole to seven inches and smooths the wall of the hole. Novotny had one frightening instance when the ground beneath one of his drilling machine supports gave way and left the rig on the verge of tumbling off the edge of the quarry wall.

After the holes are drilled, Novotny collects the blasting materials which for the sake of safety are housed in different locations with each location surrounded by earthen embankments. Back at the line of holes, Novotny first lowers 40 pounds of blasting powder contained in a cloth bag five inches wide by three feet long. Two ignition cords accompany the bag into the hole. A small cylinder of high explosives, called a booster, is placed in the hole next to the bags. Bags of blasting powder are placed one above the other for 20 feet, with a booster at every second bag. Novotny shovels shavings back into the hole on top of the blasting powder, stopping at 30 feet below the surface where another 10 feet of blasting agents and several boosters are added. The remainder of the hole is then filled with shavings, leaving only two ignition cords exposed. The cords look like electrical cords, but they are actually small tubes filled with explosive material.

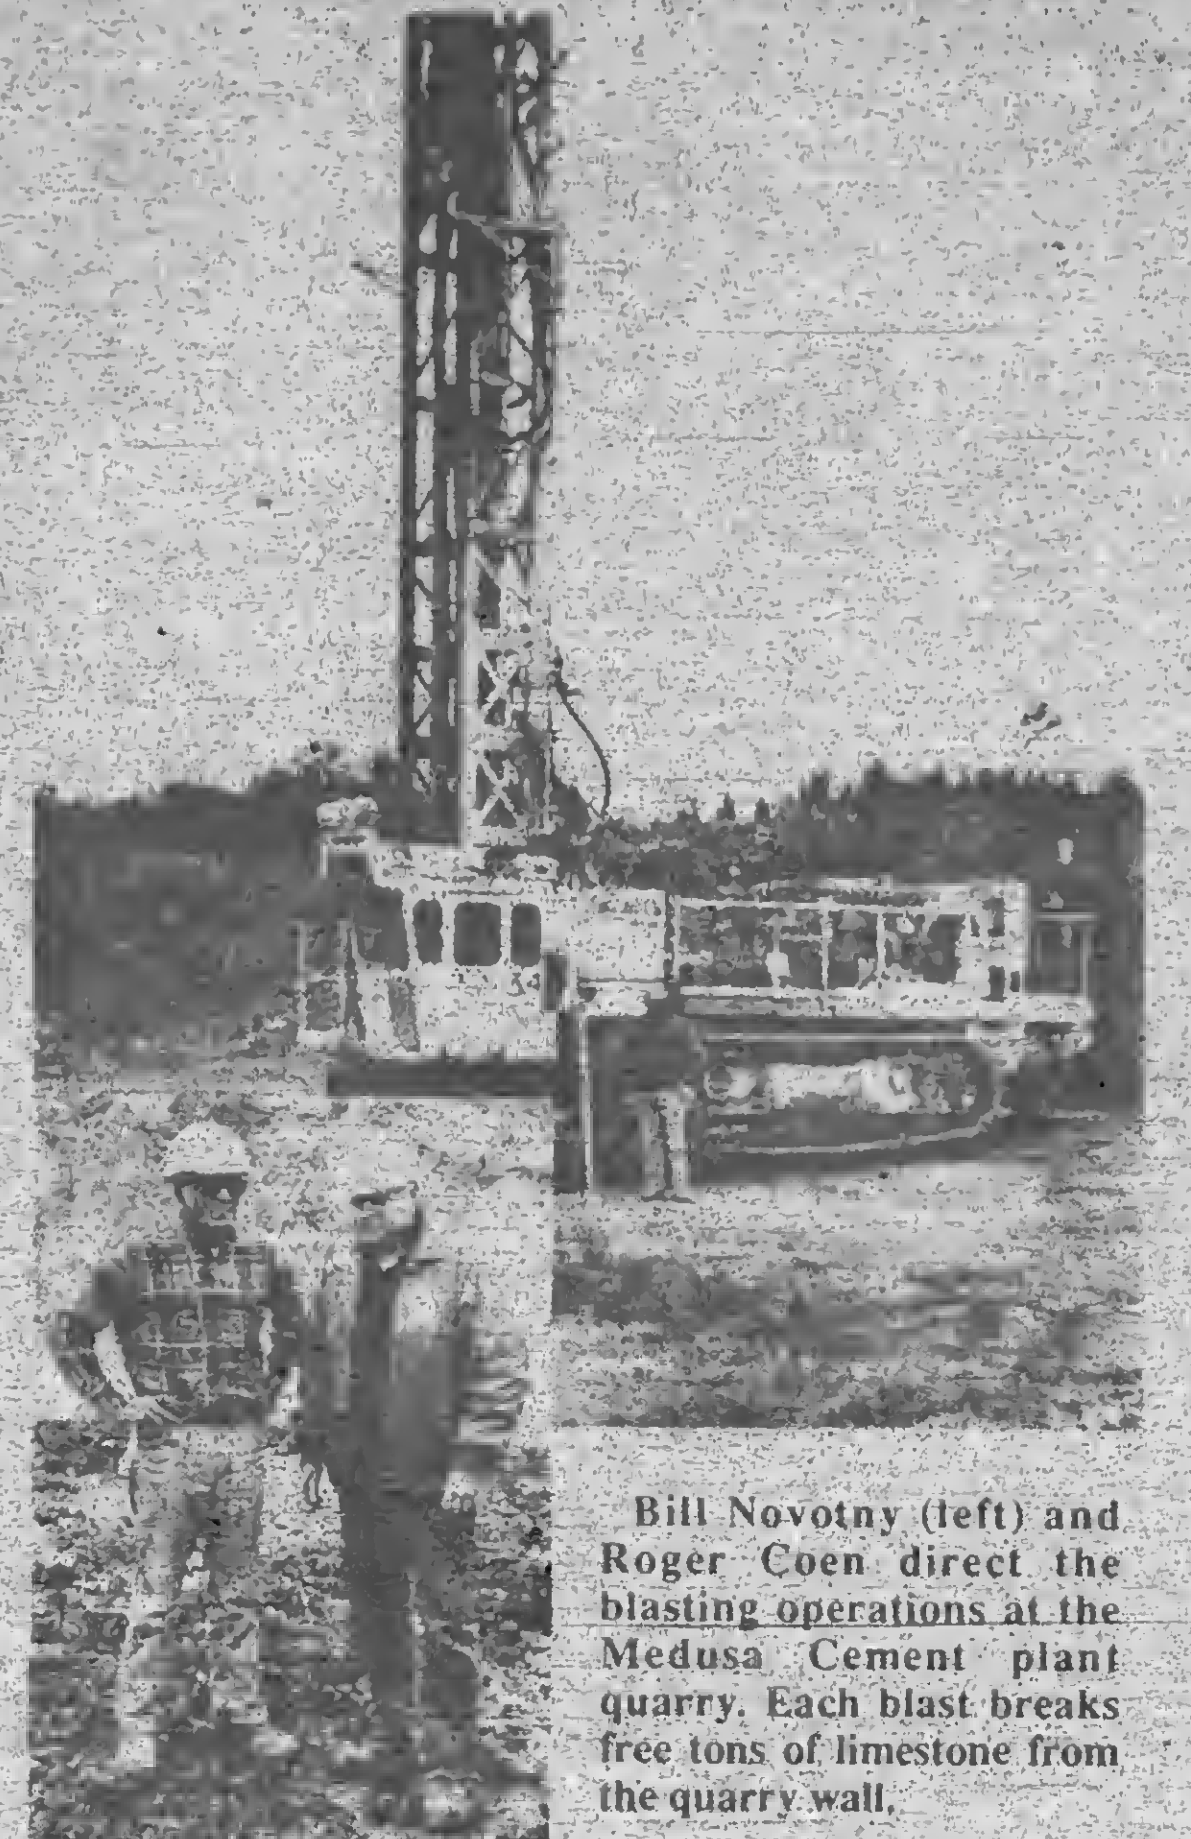

After all of the holes are filled, the ignition cords are connected to detonators and another series of tubes which are filled with a gas. Called a firing cap, the detonators are about three inches long and are set to fire at slightly different times. To reduce the noise of the blast, dirt is shoveled over the tops of the holes.

The entire explosive operation is coordinated with quarry foreman Roger Coen. All personnel and equipment are moved a safe distance away. Coen uses a very sensitive seismographic instrument to measure and record the vertical and horizontal vibrations within the earth and the airway shocks.

After checking and rechecking the firing apparatus, Novotny has strung out firing wires at least 300 feet away from the danger zone. At a time determined by Coen, Novotny with a twist of his wrist sets off the charge and sends tons of limestone tumbling to the quarry floor. The whole system is planned so that the lower levels of the walls are blown away first, causing the upper walls to collapse.

At the conclusion of the blast, a section of quarry wall, 150 feet long, 12 feet thick and a hundred feet deep has become a huge heap of shattered limestone, from 12,000 to 20,000 tons of it. From Bill Novotny's singular efforts the entire production line is given its basic material a material which is eventually ground to the consistency of facial powder. From his seat in his drilling machine, Novotny has the satisfaction of seeing Medusa ships carry away the finished products from his walls of stone.

BUSINESS

Now you can have engraving done locally

Mike Hilligan, owner of Bridge Street Ace Hardware store, has added a new feature to his existing, widely varied business. Hilligan is offering computerized engraving for trophies, plaques, or personalized gifts.

Hilligan said he got interested in the idea from his brother, who has a friend in the engraving business. He realized that no one else in Charlevoix was doing engraving, so he decided get an engraving machine.

With computerized engraving, Hilligan can do a gift item on the spot for his customers. The store has a variety of gift items to choose from, including door knockers, pewter mugs and wine glasses, name plates, key chains, and dog tags.

Trophies can be done overnight, and plaques with many names on them can be completed in two or three days. Hilligan carries trophies and plaques in the store for customers.

"I'm getting quite a positive response to it, even without any real advertising or promotion," Hilligan said.

Mike Hilligan has added computer engraving to the services offered at the Bridge Street Hardware store in downtown Charlevoix. Previously, people had to go out of the community to have engraving done.

Area Planned Parenthood chapter receives AIDS grant

Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood (NMPP) has been selected by the Council of Michigan Foundations as the recipient of a $4,000 grant award from the Michigan AIDS Fund. The grant will allow NMPP to provide HIV/AIDS education for high-risk clients and to add HIV testing and counseling to the other reproductive health care services they provide at their Traverse City and Petoskey clinics. More than 60 organizations applied for a grant through the Michigan AIDS Fund, but only one out of three received grant awards.

"I am delighted to provide this grant to Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood," said Dorothy Johnson, President of the Council of Michigan Foundations. "This award recognizes their contributions — and the contributions of other community-based organizations — to combat AIDS."

The Council of Michigan Foundations is a nonprofit organization serving over 275 Michigan grant-makers; including corporate foundations and giving programs, private and community foundations and banks serving foundations and charitable trusts.

Through its Michigan AIDS Fund, The Council of Michigan Foundation has allocated $500,000 for AIDS projects in Michigan. The mission of the Fund is to support community-based nonprofit organizations concerned with AIDS in Michigan by providing technical assistance, competitive grant awards and up-to-date information on the AIDS crisis.

HIV/AIDS infection in the U.S. is now increasing most rapidly among women. In 1990, AIDS was reported to be one of the ten leading causes of death among women of reproductive age.

"Women in this area do not perceive themselves to be at risk for HIV infection," said Alice Clayton, R.N., M.S.N., Nurse Practitioner and Associate Director of NMPP. "Because of this, we feel it is imperative to develop and incorporate comprehensive AIDS screening and testing into our routine practice. Our clients trust the information they receive from us. By offering risk assessment, counseling and testing to women who have come to our clinics for other reproductive health care services, we feel that we can make a difference."

SCRAPBOOK

A hot tip from the police

There seems to be an increase in "Door to Door Salespeople" who are not from this area. Although most of these people are trying to make an honest living, there are those that are out to make a "Quick Buck" at your expense. Here are a few tips to remember when called upon by a traveling salesperson. The easiest way to avoid problems is to say "No Thanks" and then shop for the item locally. Chances are you can find the item right here in the community. Although you may save a few dollars by purchasing the item from a traveling salesperson, try finding them when something breaks down. Charlevoix has a very precise ordinance regulating Solicitors, and Temporary Businesses. The purpose for this is to protect the health, safety, and welfare of the citizens. The ordinance covers Solicitors, Roadside stands, Auctioneers, and Businesses not listed on the Tax Rolls. If a salesperson comes your door, please ask for identification and ask to see their license. A license is required by any person going door to door, and is issued by the City Clerk. Solicitors on behalf of any non-profit, educational, charitable, civic, or religious organization, do not need a license, but they must register with the City Clerk for identification purposes. If the solicitor is operating honestly, they should not hesitate to show you these documents. If you do not recognize, or do not feel comfortable with the person at your door, please do not let them into your home. Please report solicitors without a license, rude solicitors, or suspicious solicitors to the City Clerk's office at 547-3250, or to this department immediately. Try to get a vehicle description, and direction of travel as they leave. Your assistance may save someone else from being victimized. Local salespersons, and organizations will appreciate your concern for the community also. Remember to support Charlevoix merchants.

(A Hot Tip From the Police is provided to the Charlevoix Courier by the Charlevoix City Police Department in the interest of keeping Charlevoix a safe place to live and work.)

Improvement plan brings changes to school system

By L. Scott Swanson

There are changes taking place within the Charlevoix School System. And these changes will continue to occur at least through 1996 if all goes according to plans. Charlevoix Public Schools recently completed a comprehensive strategic plan for 1992 through 1996. The plan was the product of several months of meetings by a strategic planning committee which included people from the school and general community.

In and of itself, the plan is fairly simple. It is divided into 11 sections which recommend strategies for improving the Charlevoix Public School System. (The complete plan is shown on the right side of this page.) Although the plan itself is simple, it's kind of like gardening. Drafting a plan is like planting seeds. That part is quick and simple enough, but from there the nurturing begins and there's a lot of work involved if anything is to come of the plan.

"It's an ambitious agenda," school superintendent Roberta

Jackson said of the plan. She added, "I think it's achievable. It will take a lot of involvement from the community and the staff beyond what we've already done. We will be going out to groups and soliciting people to become involved with various aspects."

The improvement plan was mandated by the state's Public School Improvement Act. The act requires school systems to draft a master plan for improvements.

One aspect of the plan is the adoption of a core curriculum; in other words a required core group of basic classes which every student must take. The state recommended that core classes address such things as foreign languages, world studies, technology, employability skills, science and the arts. Jackson said the Charlevoix planning group reviewed the state's suggested core curriculum recommendations and adopted them for now, knowing that changes could be made later.

Reviewing the core curriculum has already resulted in some changes in Charlevoix's math and science curriculums. For example, math teachers discovered that there were some alignment problems in Charlevoix's math program. That is to say that although Charlevoix students were being taught certain aspects of math, they weren't being taught them before they took the state assessment test. Consequently, the students were struggling with those aspects of the test.

Jackson said that with the school's math and science program already scrutinized, next fall the school system will be taking a close look at the social studies and arts curriculums.

...plan to change school

Strategy two concerns special programs. Jackson said that area is a catch all for a number of issues. Among those issues are how best to utilize instructional time, different teaching strategies, vocational education programs, the possibility of changing from two bus runs to one, the possibility of establishing a pre-kindergarten program.

Strategy three calls for looking at how students are currently assessed. The traditional way of assessing students' progress is simply by having them take tests. However, there are other things in addition to testing, which could be considered. One of the alternative methods is known as portfolio assessment. In other words rather than simply being assessed by testing, a student's assessment is also based on day to day work and other factors.

Strategy four addresses the need for more career counseling. Jackson noted that currently counselors end up being pinched for career counseling time by the demands of testing and other paperwork.

Jackson said the purpose of strategy five is to make sure that everybody has an opportunity to know what they need to know. That applies to both communications between people working within the schools system and to communication between the school system and other parts of the community. Jackson said of work on the math curriculum, "It was great to see the teachers from different levels sit down and share what they were teaching at the different levels." Of communication with the community she said, "We want to open lines of communication so that there's a better understanding so that we can be sure that we address the issues, so that parents really feel that they have a role to play."

Strategy six addresses absenteeism and tardiness. The operating philosophy being you can't teach the students unless you first get them in the classroom.

Strategy seven concerns setting guidelines for students. Jackson said the idea is to let students know what is expected of them and to let them know what quality work is. An example of a change which could come from this strategy is the possibility of adopting the philosophy of teaching until a student gets something right. In other words where a student now might get something wrong on a test and then go on about his business, in the future a student might get something wrong on a test and then review that material and test again until he has the information down.

Strategy eight proposes to increase community involvement in the school system. That's something which is currently a hot issue throughout the United States. Jackson says there all kinds of possibilities that effort could take. For example, a community organization could adopt a particular class and work with that class in various ways throughout the school year. Or a class could adopt a community organization. "I have no idea what might transpire from this objective. It's all part of that community outreach," Jackson noted.

Strategy nine proposes to have all students involved in some type of community project. Jackson said the idea is to give students an appreciation of their role as members of the community.

Strategy 10 calls for an evaluation of the school's facility needs. Currently the school has architects and engineers reviewing the school's buildings. A report of their findings is expected within the coming month. Jackson said that as curriculum changes are implemented, it's necessary to make sure that the buildings are able to support the changes. As an example, the addition of computers to each classroom is obviously going to require a look at the school's wiring system. Another issue is accessibility for the handicapped.

Strategy 11 is an effort to recognize that we are living in an increasingly global community where we must be able to interact with people from other cultures.

The plan as a whole is an ongoing thing. It offers a platform for changes which will occur in coming years. Jackson said community involvement will be crucial to the success or failure of the implementation of the plan.

"The whole intent is that it be a community education play," she said.

Letters to the editor

Veteran's park is fine

Editor,

All worthwhile issues have two sides so let's take your Editorial on Veteran's Park on that basis, paragraph by paragraph.

We veterans have an open mind. The property was deeded to the American Legion for the purpose for which it is now being used; a memorial to the ones who died and the trees represent the tombstones. Those trees are perennial tombstones. Scott, and don't ever forget it as it is also part of your heritage.

Chamber of Commerce wishes should never supersede or be given any consideration what so ever at the expense of the service men and women of this country in general and this area in particular. Who said the Chamber of Commerce had to have a new building, on the waterfront or even downtown? We have many buildings they could rent, downtown or elsewhere.

Paragraph three states you neither support nor oppose moving the CC building. You could have fooled me. Every subsequent word you wrote points to giving it to the CC and labeling it a monument.

You say the property is dreary and uninviting? What is a simple park dedicated to fallen heroes supposed to look like? Disney World? Many times I have seen young mothers there with a little baby on a blanket. Dreary? Go down there sometime when little kids are running around, playing games safely and laughing their little heads off. Uninviting? Just how would you use a Memorial Park at all with a building in the middle of it?

If people, as you say, are using the park to get drunk or sleeping off a hang-over, don't blame the park. Blame the police department for letting it happen and let the people who sit in City Hall all day get off their seat and on their feet and police the area to avoid such actions. Why not tear up the streets and sidewalks so the citizens can't get to the taverns? That makes just as much sense as what you are saying.

The trees are ugly? Is that just one man's opinion or already an established fact? One man's beauty is another man's eyesore. Where is it written that all trees belong to a code and have to look alike?

Your last paragraph makes the most sense when you said the local veterans are right to be concerned. Believe me, Scott, they are!

Now that I have found fault with your ideas, please feel free to reciprocate. But first answer me this: How can tax dollars, DDA or otherwise, be used to build a business location for a non-governmental, commercial enterprise? Remember the last word in the title-Commerce. The CC is where it is simply because the building was there. The building housed public restrooms and the second story was not used. That was long before all these Johnny Come Latches moved here and told us jack-rme savages how to run our town.

It is always possible for a different monument to be placed in Vets Park with prior approval of the service organizations. Something like the Volunteer Fire Department accomplished when the City had no money for additional fire protection. In case anybody forgot, the firemen organized fund raisers and with the help of the citizenry, bought the big, beautiful fire truck that benefits us all and not a select few. In my humble opinion, when we get done paying for what we have on the books now, there shouldn't be any money left for proposals such as the Chamber of Commerce.

Thanks for your time,
Perry Smith

by EDITH GILBERT

It's tricky interviewing a grown man who greets you with, "I remember when I was a kid; cutting across your lawn on my way to the beach and you said to me, 'I'll give you a cookie if you don't step on my flowers!'"

Bob Foster has come home to Charlevoix. But why would a young man who has been executive chef for five years at such places as the Amway Grand Plaza Hotel in Grand Rapids and Luchow's in New York — a man who has supervised turning out 10,000 meals a day and who has won silver medals in invitational competition with "world class" chefs — why would he accept a position today as chef at the charming little Inn at Dumnglas on the Boyne City Road that accommodates 55 diners?

His answer is open and direct. Now that he has custody of his three children for a month, he wants them to enjoy a care-free Charlevoix summer just like Bob did when he was young. And so they will. The family has comfortable living quarters above the Inn and the three well-mannered youngsters, Kimberly 7, Angela 10, and Joe 11, are free to run and play in the fields, climb trees and don't have to worry about alligators and sharks in Lake Charlevoix as they do in Sarasota in the winter.

Bob enjoyed both Charlevoix summers and winters here as a child. He lived with his father, Maurice Foster, who was executive Vice President at the County State Bank, and his beloved grandfather, Joe Foster, who was our popular postmaster years ago. Bob recalls his grandfather telling him stories about the time he had one of the first Ford dealerships in Charlevoix. Some of the hard working farmers would come in to buy a model T Ford and give 6 chickens and a pig or a cow as down payment. Then every Friday between 2 and 4 o'clock the farmer would come in with his $3.00 payment and record the transaction by cutting a notch out of a stick of wood. When there was no more wood left to cut into, the bill was paid. So much for paperwork!

When Bob was 13 he got a job at Parkside Restaurant from Bill and Lila West, the owners at that time. Even then he knew he wanted to learn the restaurant business. And learn it he did both in the Navy and at Culinary Institute of America, where he taught for a year and a half in the Escoffier room.

Bob is proud that during the first nine days since the Inn has been open, 75 percent of the customers have already returned three times! He offers an American menu that includes such items as Pot Roast, BBQ Chicken and Ribs, Corn Meal Muffins, and authentic warm Strawberry Shortcake with Clabbered Cream. Nor does he believe that low-fat diets are passing fad and therefore includes low-fat alternative items such as Roast Boneless Chicken and Shrimp Fettucine-Marietta. The latter is made with garlic, lemon juice, olive oil and fresh vegetables.

Bob gave me a tour of the kitchen to show me all meals for both luncheon and dinner are made from scratch. That includes fresh lemonade, all salad dressings, potato salad, and vegetables, as well as homemade fresh strawberry and blueberry preserves.

Bob is delighted that the owners, Chuck and Joan MacGillivray, have given him free reign in developing a concept that will appeal to everyone. The only stipulation is to have outstanding regional food without sacrificing quality, at an affordable price. There are 3 entrees on the dinner menu under $10. But one may also splurge by ordering Veal Medallion — Lancaster style at $22.95 if one is so inclined.

It's been more than thirty years since the cookie episode, but Bob's Charlevoix memories are as fresh as his shortcake. Stop by and say "welcome home" to this local boy who made good.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor,

The City substation relocation article that appeared in the June 24, 1992 edition of the Courier is the subject of this letter. Using the lead in statement of a well known radio personality "And now the rest of the story."

It will cost we rate payers $400,000 to $500,000 for relocation!!!

"The Charlevoix electric system is somewhat different from normal in that it is municipally owned and operated." So is every other member of the MPPA (Michigan Public Power Authority) of which Charlevoix is a member, as are 17 cities comparable to Charlevoix.

The complaints of building the new substation on the existing DPW site were from people who bought their property knowing full well that there was a substation in their view and likely to be in the future. Their location is on a bluff above the DPW site and they have to look down to see it. In 1991 a new condo development was started adjacent to the DPW site and they went ahead with construction. They apparently were not concerned, right?

The people living in Hampton Village heard they might have the new substation and they were concerned and voiced their objection and questioned whether city ordinances would not be violated by the construction. That idea died a loud and public death. It was pointed out at that time that relocation was an unnecessary expense.

Relocation of the substation was not a consideration during the writing of the report justifying the need to expand to repair and upgrade the city's distribution system. Relocation was not considered when the engineering was done for the new substation.

In fact at a meeting of the council when the relocation was brought up Mr. Westenbroek (to whom all of us residents owe an undying debt of gratitude for his dedication and time to our electric system development) was asked if there was a better site for the new substation then the existing DPW site his reply was "Yes, in the middle of Round Lake, but I know you won't put it there." Here the man most knowledgeable of our system made a precise statement and was ignored.

At the last council meeting, the result of which a contract was let to have engineering performed to further improve our system, one of the comments from Mr. Westenbroek justifying this was that he was burdened with a number of things that have to be done immediately and he had had to devote time to re-engineering the substation construction due to the decision for relocation. He has to develop the reactive load table which is required to calibrate the new substation into the city load pattern. He has to develop the contract requirement for the City to conform with the MPPA contract that should go into effect in July of '92. He has to develop a new electric rate table to insure we ratepayers can pay off our $2 million plus bond issue for our electric system improvement. There was just not time available to do additional engineering by him.

Courier says a park could be built on the present DPW site, to augment the Ferry Beach area. Would you use a park which is 200 yards from the beach that requires the crossing of a busy road then passage through a parking lot where cars with trailers operate or through the beach parking lot? Would you feel comfortable allowing your children to play on the beach or in the lake when you have no way of watching them?

City Manager said City could sell the DPW site. Who does he have in mind to buy it? This statement is on council meeting recording.

Surprisingly the one statement made by a council member in justifying the relocation of the substation, again on a council meeting recording, was there is not enough room at the DPW site for the new substation. This is patently untrue, and better left buried. It did not appear in the article.

We rate and tax payers have had 25 percent of our bond issue spent unnecessarily. We don't know the real reason for the relocation, nor was it given in the article. People went away happy from a meeting when the Hampton Village site was defeated. They did not know at the time that the 66 site was the next choice.

We now have a location so objectionable to the residents that it requires $95 thousand dollars to hide. We now will have what will appear to be a reforestation test site at the entrance to the city.

We will have a better electric system. That's true. But the relocation contributes not one iota to that fact.

Charles C. Papineau

Editor's note: In the interest of clarifying the issues referred to in the above letter, the Courier would point out, or in most cases simply restate, the following information:

1. In regard to the issue of owners of the new condominium development being concerned, or not being concerned, with the new substation - quoting from the substation story in last week's Courier: "Dennis Wojan, who is one of the owners of the manufacturing plant at the top of the hill above the substation and also of the new condominium project at the bottom of the bluff near the old substation, offered to give the city some property at the top of the hill behind the plant as an alternative site for the new substation."

2. In regard to relocation of the substation being considered, or not being considered, during the writing of the report which led to upgrading the city's electrical system - again quoting from the substation story in last week's Courier: "Westenbroek said that early in the program he told the city council of that time that if they wanted, or ever thought they might end up wanting to, move the substation the time to make that decision would be while the renovation was taking place. However, the city council which was in place at that time considered the matter and decided to put the new substation next to the old one."

3. Neither city manager Mike

Weisner nor the city council have taken any formal action toward having the site of the old substation transferred from public to private ownership. At one point the city manager did suggest using leftover Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA) money to buy the property from the city. That purchase could have expedited the development of the property for public recreational use. The Courier editorially opposed that transaction, preferring to see the leftover money divided up between the taxing entities which would have received the money if there were no TIFA program. The city council voted not to pursue the purchase, but to instead conclude the TIFA program and distribute the money.

4. Regarding the $2 million plus bond issue, the actual figure is $3.3 million.

5. In regard to people not knowing about the M-66 site being chosen - again quoting from last week's substation article: "On the

Lehman retires after 40 years as a nurse

Audrey Lehman is retiring after 22 years with Charlevoix Area Hospital as a surgical nurse. Her coworkers, recognizing that the time to good natured poke fun at her was growing short, sharpened their wit and filled out mock discharge papers. Hospital doctors ordered a strict homecare treatment program of TV, a hot tub and bonbons. Travel, by motorhome with her husband, Chuck, is permitted. As part of Lehman's retirement, other hospital staff members designated Chuck as the "primary care giver."

Lehman began her nursing career at Wyandotte Hospital. She and her first husband, the late Bob Egler, had seven children. The family moved to Charlevoix in 1969 and Audrey began working at the hospital in January of 1970.

Her daughter, Beth, said that each time Audrey had another child and again when the family moved to Charlevoix she thought she would just stay home and raise a family. But one way or another, she always found herself back at work in the nursing profession.

Prosecutor race is a hard-fought battle

Kraag Lieberman challenged by Richard May

By L. Scott Swanson

Easily the most interesting county political race this summer is the race for prosecutor in which incumbent Kraag Lieberman is being challenged by Boyne City attorney Richard May. The campaign has quickly grown heated with barbs being exchanged.

Each candidate faces obstacles in the Aug. 4 primary election. For Lieberman the obstacles include: a lack of support from some, or perhaps many, members of the local law enforcement community; a contention that he plea bargains too many cases; a contention that he is often not in his office or is difficult to find; a contention that he is sometimes unprepared for cases. When questioned about these issues, Lieberman's response is that right or wrong, given financial and time constraints, plea bargaining is a necessary part of the justice system. He brands the other three contentions as lies circulated by the May camp.

For May the obstacles include: a contention that he lacks experience in that he has not done criminal prosecution work in several years; his past history as a member of the Boyne City school board at a time in which the board put voters in a position of passing a tax increase or losing the school busing program. When voters rejected the increase and busing was cut, a recall campaign was initiated against May and other board members. In response to those contentions, May maintains that during a five year period when he was with the Ingham County Prosecuting Attorney's office he was in court three days a week. He adds that during that time he was appointed Chief Attorney of the Criminal Division with the responsibility for 20 Assistant Prosecutors and 17 support staff in an office which handled more than 9,000 criminal cases a year. In regard to the school issue, he notes that he was one member of a board which responded to community input to split the election issues. He also noted that the recall campaign was unsuccessful and that at least one of its organizers now supports his campaign for prosecutor.

As part of his campaign, May has circulated a letter signed by 20 area law enforcement officers. Lieberman has taken issue with that letter. "Even if these people do all support him, they only amount to 27 percent of all the law enforcement officers who regularly work in this jurisdiction; hardly the unanimous support his campaign manager claims," Lieberman pointed out. "In fact, I have been slowly talking with the people listed on that document and some have told me they didn't sign in earnest and some have said they were misled about how it was to be used."

In response to the plea bargaining issue, Lieberman said, "Throughout our legal history every challenger for a prosecutor's job always alleges that the incumbent plea bargains too much, yet every challenger, if they are honest or at all in touch with the criminal justice system, knows that they too will engage in plea bargaining if elected."

However unpopular it is, plea bargaining is an essential part of our legal system. It is not a matter of personal philosophy, but one of practical necessity. The number crunch of cases is simply too severe not to use this tool of resolution. In our county last year over 1,200 criminal warrants were issued. Since we have only part-time judges to serve us, we were able to secure only enough court time to try approximately 280 of those cases; thus there had to be a way to resolve the rest out of court.

If the taxpayers wish to fund five more judges, five more secretaries, five more courtrooms, five more court reporters, and at least five more prosecutors then plea bargaining could be eliminated. Until that happens, this method of caseload management will remain."

As far as being out of his office, Lieberman said, "My opposition has been trying to attack my dedication to my job and to imply that I am unreliable or not working because I am supposedly out of the office a lot. This is big lie number two. First of all, if I was always in my office, I wouldn't be doing my job; for much of my work is outside those four walls. Obviously, if I am in court I can't also be in my office. If I am at a meeting or at a crime scene or interviewing witnesses or at seminars I am not in my office. There is far more to this job than shuffling papers at a desk from nine to five. There are a myriad of things to attend to that require you to be out."

Lieberman said the contention that he is sometimes unprepared for cases is perhaps the one that he finds most personally offensive. "In truth, I pride myself in preparation. I consider it to be one of my strengths. I go into court intending to win every case I try or every hearing I conduct. I do everything possible to not only assure I prevail, but that the People of this State are well represented."

Lieberman said he chooses to do prosecution work because he has always had a keen interest in law enforcement and the criminal justice system. He said that among the accomplishments he is most proud of include work in fighting drug trafficking by using a Charlevoix County Citizens' Grand Jury; participating in the Straits Area Narcotics Enforcement organization, participating in a multi-county grand jury and implementing the D.A.R.E. drug education program in area schools. He also said the successful resolution of recent murder cases has been a rewarding experience.

Depending on the availability of funding, Lieberman would hope to employ a full-time victim's rights advocate if he is re-elected. He would also like to add an assistant prosecutor to work primarily with the townships on ordinance enforcement and the standardization of ordinances.

Lieberman said that he feels the main advantages he has over his opponent are experience and proven ability. May maintains that he is the one with vast prosecutorial experience. He sees the issue of experience as a strength, not a weakness in his campaign. He said that in five years with the Ingham County prosecutor's office he personally handled more than 1,000 criminal trials, in addition to hundreds of criminal jury trials. "The knowledge, expertise and ability of seeing criminal justice done in the community is never lost," May said. He added that he has "the knowledge and ability to prioritize cases, take repeat offenders and serious offenses to trial without plea bargaining, and to work confidently with police officers and their mutual concerns for victims rights."

In response to the controversy surrounding his service on the school board, May replied, "As one member of the Board of Education and after numerous public meetings, the Board of Education accepted the community's advice to split the ballot. Citizens voted to maintain curriculum and program for kids. The ballot issue for transportation did not pass. It was a close election. Some members of the community were upset, as we can very well understand."

Some in the community thought that transportation was more important than curriculum and began a recall effort against all eligible board members.

The organizer of the unsuccessful recall is publicly endorsing and supporting Richard May as the best qualified candidate for the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's office.

Who the best qualified candidate is for the Prosecutor's Office has nothing to do with school board business, but rather the issue is who is willing to work the hardest for the community, including kids."

May added that victim's rights, reestablishing confidence in the prosecutor's office and providing training to police, merchants and the public would all be things he would undertake if he is elected prosecutor.

Church completes work bee and will host missionary

Bethany Lutheran Church Beautification Bee started June 20 with members of the congregation converging on the grounds at 9 a.m. and working until 1 p.m. The overgrown shrubs were removed and the grounds were made ready for the future landscaping projects. The inside of the sanctuary was cleaned and polished by the ladies and there was much satisfaction felt in the hearts of those who participated. The Ladies of the Fellowship Board served lunch and Pastor Wellhausen officiated at the hot dog grill.

Bethany Lutheran Church will also host Missionary Dale Talsma at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 7. Talsma will present a slide presentation of his work as a missionary to Nigeria, West Africa. Rev. Talsma is a former classmate of Pastor Merle Wellhausen when both men were students at seminary.

The Easter breakfast at Bethany Lutheran on April 19 had a good will offering which will be given to Rev. Talsma and his wife Cheryl and their three children, Tiffany, Adam and Tobias.

Horton Bay celebrates Fourth with historical discovery

Columbus ran aground on Horton Point in 1491

By Laurie Lounsbury

It appears that the history books are wrong, and the citizens of Horton Bay are prepared to prove it. While towns across America will be holding Fourth of July parades to celebrate the 500th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America, Horton Bay will be celebrating the 501st anniversary of Columbus' discovery. 501 Years in Horton Bay is the theme for this year's Horton Bay Parade, based on the premise that Columbus sent a scouting party to the new world which ran aground off the Horton Bay Point in 1491.

According to HNN, (the Horton News Network) yellowed documents were found in the attic of one of the older Horton Bay homes, revealing the incredible news that Christopher Columbus sent a scout ship, known as the Christopher Craft, to America in 1491. It's been speculated that the ship was besieged by the Hortoness Monster, causing it to run aground. Crew members were rescued by a band of friendly Windigos - the tall, hairy creatures that are indigenous to Horton Bay. This information puts a new perspective on the original Horton Bay citizens and their descendants. Just consider for a moment the type of offspring that would result from the marriage of spunky, New World seeking sailors and female Windigos.

In light of this amazing historical discovery, it is the privilege of Horton Bay Parade entrants to help spread the truth surrounding this revelation.

Some parade entries to look forward to are:

The first stationary entry-the Horton Bay trechouse will be transformed into a ship. Apparently there was another ship accompanying the Christopher Craft, (Christopher for short) and due to the former high water levels in 1491, this ship landed in the location of this tree, where it still stands.

Windigo's Women-they were there during the rescue, and helped with reviving the sailors and starting the village of Horton Bay.

A re-enactment of Christopher Columbus aboard the badly beaten Chris Craft, pursued by the Hortoness Monster.

In non-related theme entries, look forward to:

Betty Keltz and her invisible 26-man marching band.

The steroid Olympic crew: Over double the strength because of a secret training diet consisting of steroids, novacane, fish paralyzer, and stiff drinks.

The "Red Pan Band", with hospital employees as participants.

The Horton Bay lunch wagon, featuring road kill food and the theme, "Let's be more environmental."

There will be close to 60 parade entries, including quite a few bands and enough boat entries to form their own armada. Judging will be done by media representatives instead of Horton Bay residents.

Horton Bay gives history a new sense of direction

Due to the enduring traffic problems in Horton Bay surrounding the parade, the citizens of Horton Bay have kindly mounted traffic report signs on a tree downtown, showing visitors the traffic conditions they can expect on their departure. Jon Hartwell helpfully points out the preferred route for passing motorists.

Other area towns host more traditional celebrations

By Laurie Lounsbury

Surrounding communities continue to expand and improve their Fourth of July weekend activities, so anyone in the area should find plenty to do over the three day, holiday weekend. Boyne City and East Jordan will have a full schedule of activities, some old, and some new.

Boyne City will be hosting their 16th annual Waterside Art and Craft Fair July 3, followed on the Fourth of July with a full day of activities. There will be two new activities to look forward to in Boyne City. A Soap Box Derby, will take place at 3:30 July 4, and a Milk Carton Regatta will begin at 6 p.m. on the Boyne River. All crafts in the milk carton regatta must use milk cartons for their flotation.

A perennial favorite, the Duck Race, will begin at 2:30 July 4 in the Boyne River. More than a thousand ducks with numbers will float down to the mouth of the river, and the winning duck's owner will receive a $1,000 cash prize. Second prize is $500, and third through seventh place ducks will receive $100 each. An entry fee of $10 will get you a duck in the race.

A band concert in Veteran's Memorial park will feature the Jelly Roll Blues Band. Fireworks will begin at dusk over the Boyne City Harbor.

In neighboring East Jordan, the Jordan Valley Freedom Festival will begin Thursday, July 2 and continue through July 5. This festival is packed with activities to appeal to any age group. New events in the Freedom Festival are: a traditional fireman's Waterball contest. Teams of three dressed in full fire-

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

The Petunia Planting, outdoor concerts, and sailboat races are all typical summer time activities in Charlevoix. There is however, another seasonal activity that has just begun that gets far less notice. Spiritually speaking, it may just offer the greatest potential of all to encourage and bless your heart. It is campmeeting season in northern Michigan.

Campmeeting is a century old tradition for many faiths in our area. It is a gathering of believers for worship, praise, learning and fellowship. The whole Bay View community near Potoskey grew out of a United Methodist campmeeting. The speakers, courses and activities they offer each summer seek to uphold a tradition of promoting the faith that has gone on for generations.

A federation of churches from many denominations band together in the Northern Michigan Holiness Association to hold an annual campmeeting in Boyne City each June. Representatives of the different churches take turns in the preaching and teaching responsibilities to lift up the unity all Christians are meant to share.

For a number of years, the native American tradition has been shared in a campmeeting held out at the Greensky Hill United Methodist church. To sing "Jesus Loves Me" in Ojibway gives you a whole different point of view on how the Lord can work in different people's lives.

Our own communion has held a campmeeting annually on Loeb School Road since 1906. It was held out on Holy Island road before that in the 1890s. The popularity of the Church of God Family Camp grew among downstate so much that a July camp matches the yearly June camp.

Northern Michigan prides itself on the many attractions and activities that we have to offer our summer time guests. Those of us who call the north country home need to remember the things that are here can refresh and revive us as well. Check with your worship family and find out what kind of unique summer experiences are available for you. They may change your life forever.

If you need an invitation, the first Church of God Family Camp runs now through Friday with evening services at 7 p.m. The evangelist is Dick Latham from Ohio. The second Family Camp begins July 12 with Jim Sparks of Munster, Indiana. You can call the camp direct at 547-9508 for more information.

Artist paints the parade that Viet Nam veterans never got Charlevoix buildings serve as backdrop

By Laurie Lounsbury

If America had it to do all over again, would we have treated our returning soldiers of the Vietnam War differently? Boyne City artist Denille Spohn Moes would like to think so. Since the hands of time cannot be turned back to the early 1970s, when our veterans were returning home from Vietnam, Moes decided to give the Vietnam Vets a Welcome Home parade that they deserve, but never got, in the form of a painting.

"It's the homecoming parade that should have happened but that never did happen," Moes said. The painting debuted at her gallery, the Moes Gallery, June 29.

"Welcome Home" is the title of the six foot long painting that Moes has painstakingly created, depicting a small town parade given in honor of the returning Vietnam Veterans. Moes used much of the local Charlevoix buildings and architecture for her painting, feeling that Charlevoix provided a wonderful backdrop for a small town parade.

The painting is set in the early '70s, and meticulous detail was given to the more than 400 people in the picture. Women are dressed in mini skirts and platform shoes. Men have bushy mustaches, long hair and sideburns. Moes also put familiar faces in the painting, faces of vets she knows, and her own family's faces.

Moes, a 34 year old native of Boyne Falls, admits that she was oblivious to most of the events surrounding the Vietnam War, having grown up in the countryside without a television. It was at last year's Fourth of July parade, amidst the crowd's feelings of patriotism for the returning vets of Desert Storm, that she sensed a different emotion coming from the Vietnam Vets who were present.

Moes spent a great deal of time interviewing Vietnam vets to get their recollections of their return home. "None of them (the vets) ever forget the day they came home. There weren't any parades. It was a slip in the back door and get on with life kind of arrival," Moes said.

Moes explained that she needed to know what it was like for the returning vets, so she could paint the opposite of what it was. She made friends with the vets she interviewed, and several of them oversaw the painting in progress, to make sure it was accurate in its detail. Moes also gave the vets the opportunity to choose what was to be included in the painting. The vets agreed that they didn't want any protesters in the painting, for understandable reasons. Most of the vets wanted a Huey, which is an Army transport helicopter, to be included in the work. "The Huey was important," Moes explained. "They came into Vietnam in a Huey, and it was a Huey that took them out."

Moes painting isn't a work that can be appreciated in a glance. The six foot canvas is really a compilation of many emotions and many family situations that resulted from the Vietnam war. Lining the parade route, there is a woman proudly holding a portrait of her son, which is all she has left to remember him by. One husband consoles his wife over the loss of their boy. Further down the parade route, an ecstatic grandmother embraces her husband as the grandson marches by. A toddler holds up a sign that says, "Welcome Home Daddy." A Korean War veteran salutes the passing soldiers as his little boy looks on. A young Vietnamese war bride watches her first American parade.

Moes' "Welcome Home" painting is her second in a series of three folk art parade paintings. Because of Moes' strong sense of patriotism, she created her first parade as a tribute to the men who served in the Gulf war, and dedicated it to President and Mrs. Bush. She is planning to devote her third painting to the Korean war veterans.

"Welcome Home" will be on display at One Water Street July 3, 4, and 5, from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. The following weekend, the painting will be on display at Stafford's Weatherlane in Charlevoix.

men's gear will battle it out with water hoses to push the waterball over to their opponents' side. The contest will begin at 6 p.m. Thursday.

Jim-N-I Karaoke Party will take place in the Civic Center Thursday night at 7 p.m., and is open to the whole family.

A Youth Parade, with the theme, "A Day At The Circus", is scheduled for 10:30 Friday morning.

The East Jordan Fire Department will sponsor a "Foam Treasure Hunt" at noon on Friday. Children can dive into a gigantic bed of foam and hunt for treasures.

A new fireworks display, shot over the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix, will complete the activities for July 3.

On neighboring Beaver Island, a day of activities has been planned for the Fourth. At 10:30 in the morning, there will be a WW II Tribute and Wreath laying at the Beaver Island school. The parade will begin at 11:30, followed by a carnival at 1 p.m. Evening activities include a concert by the harbor at 8 p.m. with fireworks at dusk.

Big foot lumbered out of the wilderness to make an appearance in last year's Horton Bay Fourth of July parade and it wouldn't be surprising to see the hairy brute make another appearance this year.

Kappa Sigma Home Tour scheduled July 8

You are invited to visit some of Charlevoix's most fabulous homes during Kappa Sigma's Home tour which will be 1-5 p.m., Wednesday, July 8.

Chairman for this year's event is Rebecca Haney and co-chairman is Denise Pointner.

Proceeds from the Home Tour are donated to the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Tickets, $12 each, are available at: The Apple Tree, Shop of the Gulls, E.J. Shoppe of East Jordan, Petoskey Chamber of Commerce, The Tin Soldier of Harbor Springs and the Boyne City Chamber of Commerce.

This year's tour will take you into a home located in the prestigious Belvedere Club as well as several homes overlooking all three of Charlevoix's waterfronts. Refreshments will also be offered in a spectacular garden which is also featured on the Tour.

Home Tour guests should park on the main streets only and remove shoes at all houses. There are also no bare feet allowed in the homes, as well as no smoking, no children under 12 and no cameras.

Homes on the 1992 tour are:

1. Loyal and Lori Jodar's home on Nine Mile Point.
2. Ken and Rhonda Czar's home on Raspberry Bay. Nestled in the woods, on the shores of Lake Charlevoix, this Town & Country cedar home offers panoramic views of the water through its floor to ceiling cathedral windows. A magnificent see-through stone fireplace is the focus of the living room and master bedroom. The separate apartment above the garage gives a feeling of seclusion while still being close to the main living quarters. Professionally decorated and designed, the traditional furnishings provide an enticing escape for its owners from city life.

4. Leland Bisbee Cottage in the Belvedere Club.

A home to the Bisbee family since 1932, this Charlevoix landmark home prominently sits overlooking the channel between Lake Charlevoix and Round Lake. "Breezy Point" as the family has named it, contains many original furnishings, maintaining traditional cottage life in the Club. Don't miss the second floor, glassed-in sleeping porch complete with side-by-side beds.

5. Dr. and Mrs. Jim Gibbons Garden.

BUSINESS

Shop features craft projects of local people

By Laurie Lounsbury

When Gayle Fuller decided to spend the winter in Charlevoix she knew she'd have to find something to do to keep herself busy. Fuller has been keeping her hands very busy making dried flower arrangements for her new business, Thistle and Twig, in the Market Mall.

Fuller's store has a wide array of wreaths and decorative items made of dried flowers, twigs, and dried vegetables. Basket arrangements titled "Market Day" are overflowing with dried vegetables and fruits. On the wall hangs an impressive wreath titled, "The Flying Onions" bearing green onion stalks that do seem to be flying out of the wreath. A tree made of dried peppers would be the perfect piece for a bit of empty kitchen counter space.

Fuller carries other craft items made by local craftspeople in her store. Stuffed cats made out of chenille bedspreads were made by Three Cats Working. Kathy Engel's craft business, "Delicately handpainted candlesticks were made by Annie Robbins. "It's a townie affair," Fuller said of the local contributors.

Fuller had no formal training in making dried flower arrangements, but has read extensively on the subject on just started making things on her own. She dries her own flowers for her arrangements, which all bear her creative artistic touch. The titles of her work give a hint to Fuller's sense of humor. "I named all my pieces," Fuller said, pointing to a bean tree named, "How've Ya Bean?" just goes to show how long the winter was.

Fuller also has a complete line of essential oils, which are used to make potpourri and perfumes. She sells massage oils, scented bath bags and potpourri bags.

first Monday of March in 1991, the city council met to consider nine possible locations for a new substation. Westebrook, who has tried to steer clear of the politics of the situation and simply provide technical information, advised the council on the pros and cons of each of the nine sites. Most of the sites quickly proved unfeasible for one reason or another, primarily either added expense or people's objections.

"At the end of the meeting, only one site had met with general approval - the site at the corner of M-66 and Stover Road. The only person who complained at that meeting about the M-66 and Stover site was Chester Adams. Despite Adams' objections, council approval of the M-66 and Stover site was unanimous."

An account of the March 4, 1991 city council meeting appeared on the front page of the March 6, 1991 Courier under the headline "Substation to be built on M-66."

The thunderstorms cleared out, leaving a week's worth of cold weather and rain, but at least the Wednesday night races didn't have to be canceled again. June 24th saw the final race of the Spring Series, with the results as follows:

Fleet A: 1) Gotcha, 2) Mint Julep, 3) Pygmalion.

Fleet B: 1) Cabaret, 2) Cygnus, 3) Blasen, 4) Lost Vermontier, 5) Canusa.

Fleet C: 1) Humdinger, 2) Bandit, 3) Mi-Joy, 4) Vantage, 5) Newsense, 6) White Lightning (your crew probably appreciates you more than Todd).

MIP, Alons-y, H.S. Moisture Missile, and the regular skipper and crew from Newsense were all in Harbor Springs racing the J-22 Regatta against semi-pros, other darn good sailors, and in some cases, going head-to-head with the toughest bunch of Corinthian Sailors you've ever seen. Results should be available by next week.

JAM Fleet: 1) Flash, 2) Bald Eagle, 3) Apothecary, 4) Cheemaun.

So, final standings for the 1992 Spring Series, calculated with one throw-out are:

Fleet A: 1) Pygmalion, 2) Gotcha, 3) Mint Julep.

Fleet B: 1) Blasen, 2) Cabaret, 3) Lost Vermontier, 4) Cygnus, 5) Sandpiper, 6) Canusa.

Fleet C: 1) Humdinger, 2) Bandit, 3) MIP, 4) Newsense, 5) H.S. Moisture Missile, 6) White Lightning, 7) Mi-Joy, 8) Vantage, 9) Alons-y.

Jam Fleet: 1) Flash, 2) Bald Eagle, 3) Stalworth, 4) Apothecary, 5) Cheemaun.

Good luck to all the ladies racing tonight. Next week, the Summer series gets underway, and hopefully, that means summer weather will have officially returned to northern Michigan as well.

The Charlevoix Yacht Club will be hosting a pancake breakfast from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on July 5.

SCRAPBOOK

The Alano Club is one of the busiest places in town. It is open 365 days a year and hosts more than 20 meetings each week.

Alano Club is a busy place

(Editor's note: The accompanying story is one in a series of stories being written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a retired contractor, a former mayor, and city council member who continues to be active in a variety of civic affairs.)

By Ralph McRae

The Alano Club is one of Charlevoix's most unusual organizations. It is a friendly social club with 120 members, 25 percent of them women. It is located on the bottom floor of the Serenity House at 106 Mason Street, directly across from the Post Office. Members pay dues of $5 a month or $50 a year. The club is a friendly gathering place where people stop in for a few minutes to talk or listen and have a cup of coffee or a soft drink. On the back wall hang coffee mugs, each one for a particular person.

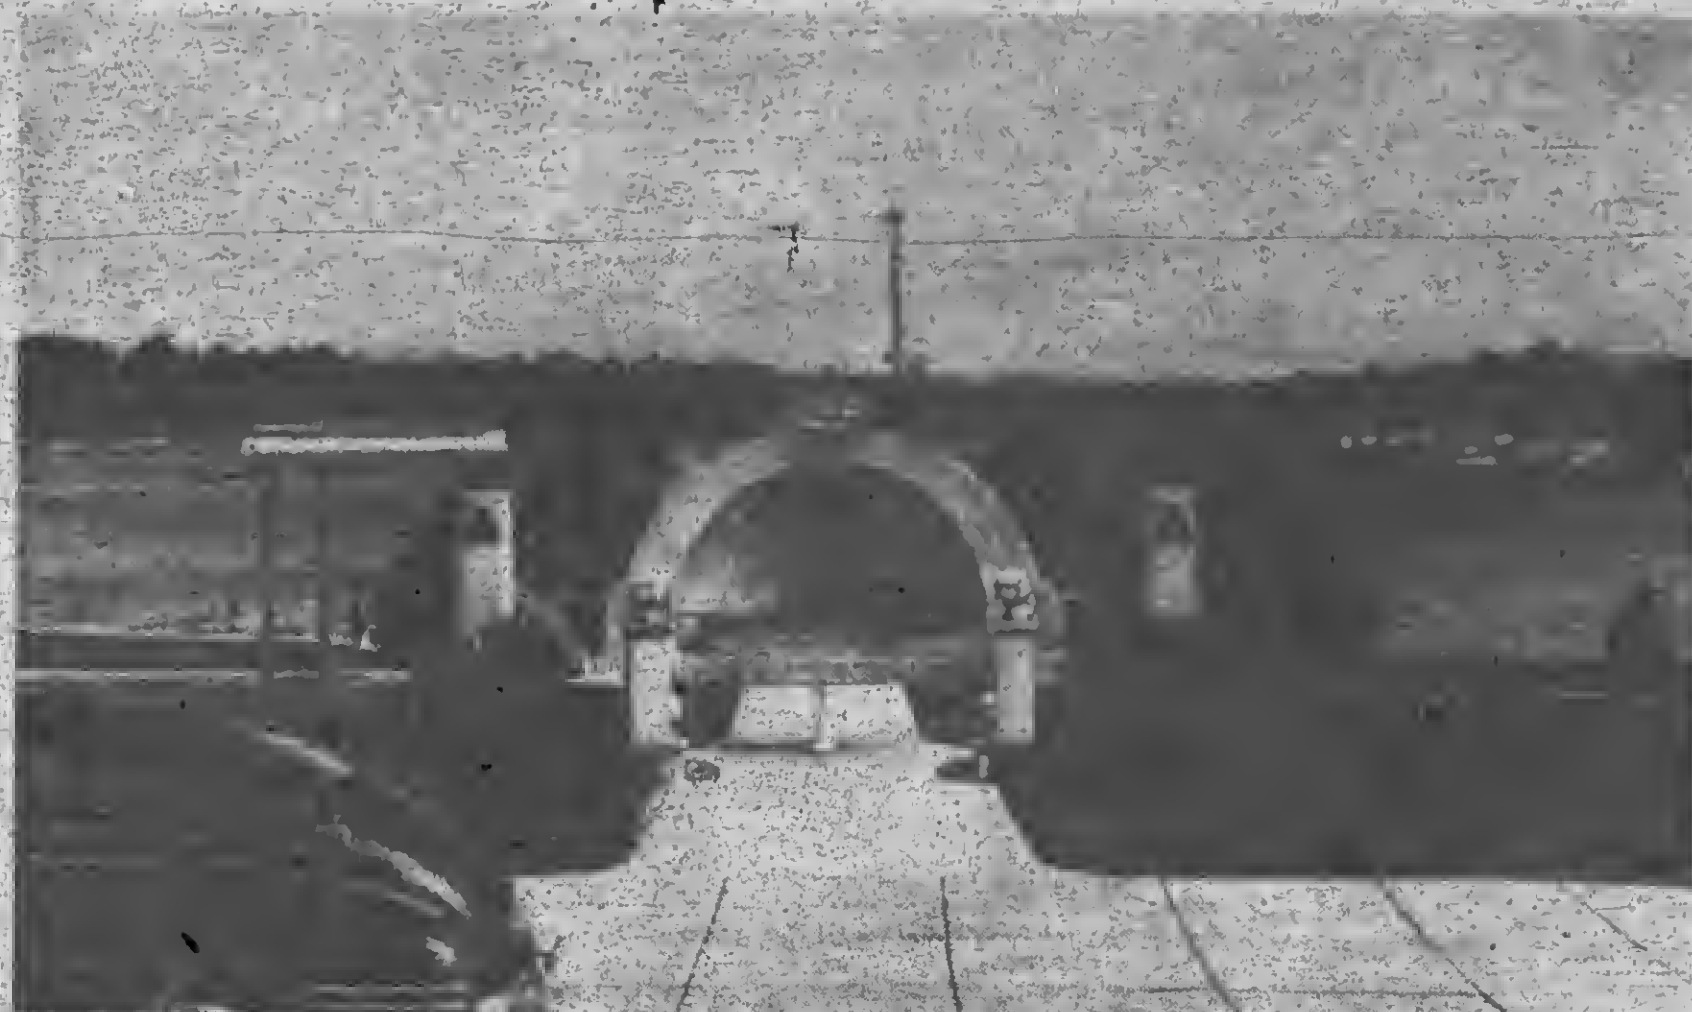

The club is open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., 365 days a year. Yes, it's even on Christmas Day when there is a special dinner. The club was originally used as a meeting place for Alcoholics Anonymous (AA). Although it is not now officially affiliated with AA or any other self-help group, many such groups use the Alano Club's meeting room in a back building and many of the Club's members either participate, or have in the past participated, in self-help groups.

Edward Heise manages and keeps up the Alano Club. He and three other people founded the organization in 1986 and it grew quickly. One of the people whose attention the group attracted proved to be a valuable benefactor, both in terms of monetary donations and offering encouragement.

The building at the back of the club has been remodeled into a conference room which comfortably seats approximately 30 people. It may be the most used building in town. More than 20 meetings take place there each week. Although the Alano Club is not directly involved with AA, the club leases space to the organization for meetings and locally is the place to go for people seeking an AA chapter. The club's phone is open 24 hours a day for people seeking substance abuse help. There is an AA symbol in the window. People familiar with the AA program recognize the symbol.

The annual budget for the Alano Club is $35,000. Funds are raised through a variety of means such as donations, dues and a once-a-year dance party. The local United Way also helps with the Alano Club's efforts.

There is a directory which lists all of the AA organizations in Michigan, hundreds of them. Multiply that figure by 50 states and there are thousands of such groups. No other country comes close to the number of support groups that there are in the United States.

Remember when this bandshell was right in the middle of East Park? You'd better not. Historical Society officials were initially perplexed when they saw this photo, but then figured out that some photographer had just been playing around and double exposed two old photos.

Fuss fades as bandshell is used

As the storm of controversy surrounding the demolition of the old band shell and the design and construction of the new band pavilion fades into history the new Clarence Odmark Band Pavilion in East Park is getting a lot of use. It is becoming the downtown entertainment centerpiece that people envisioned.

During July and August approximately two dozen performances will take place in the pavilion. And that's counting as one performance all of the Venetian weekend entertainment.

The traditional Charlevoix City Band performances are taking place at 8 p.m. on Tuesday evenings. At 8 p.m. on Wednesday evenings and 1 p.m. on Saturday afternoons a variety of entertainment is being sponsored by the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Bureau President Harold Kruttsch said the group has budgeted $6,000 for East Park entertainment this year. That's up from $4,000 last year.

"And I think that's money well spent," he said. "Not only for the visitors, but you see a lot of local people down there too."

The bureau is funded by a two percent room tax on motel and hotel rooms. Kruttsch said the board spends the majority of that money on programs designed to bring people to Charlevoix. The entertainment program is an effort to provide people who come to Charlevoix with something to do while they're here.

Kruttsch said the bureau board felt the construction of the new pavilion made it worth their while to put up the entertainment money.

The Clarence Odmark Band Pavilion was the subject of much controversy when it was being designed and later redesigned. However, now that it has been in for two years several performances are taking place at the pavilion.

Hospital breaks ground for building project

After a recent groundbreaking ceremony, Charlevoix Area Hospital will begin work on a $3.5 million building project soon.

Hospital public relations director Nancy Ellison said the hospital is awaiting one more health department permit and then expects to begin construction next month. The project will take about a year to complete.

Approximately 200 members of the Hospital Lighthouse group attended the June 30 groundbreaking. The Lighthouse group is made up of people who have contributed more than $100 to the hospital.

A fundraising drive raised approximately $1.6 million of the money needed for the building program. The project will be under the direction of a construction management company, MSI from Plymouth, Michigan.

The cornerstone of the project will be a new surgical unit. The hospital's present surgical unit has only two operating rooms and both lack the space needed for new equipment. The new surgical ward will also incorporate operating rooms for outpatient surgery. During the hospital's last fiscal year, outpatient surgery accounted for 690 of the hospital's 1098 surgical procedures. That was up 7.3 percent from the previous year.

The new surgical unit will also include recovery rooms within the unit rather than in other areas of the hospital.

Another key part of the building program will be a new obstetrics (baby) unit. That unit will include four LDR (labor, delivery, recovery) rooms. LDR rooms make it possible for a mother to go through the whole birth process in one room, rather than being transferred from room to room. It's kind of the childbirth version of one-stop shopping.

AHEAD LINES

New officers join Keep Charlevoix Beautiful board

Seven new members were added to the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful Inc. board at the group's annual meeting June 27. New board members for 1992-93 are: Harry Golski, Robert B. Hoffman, Paul Keehn, Karen Kelly LaVanway, Barney Way, David Burnett and Rita McAvoy. Officers for the board are: Bruce MacArthur, President; Alyce Lesser, First Vice President; Ralph McRae, Second Vice President; Terri D'Angelo, Secretary; Robert B. Hoffman, Treasurer; Jackie Kruttsch, Executive Committee; and Dave Strawbridge, Executive Committee. Other board members are: Lyle Gennett, Jim Gibbons, Mike Greeley, Jeff Porter, Bill Price, Jean Seymour, Paul Sitzema and Ardeth Wieland.

Tom Bailey, Executive Director of the Little Traverse Conservancy, was the guest speaker at the meeting. Bailey discussed land conservation easements and how they might be utilized in creating a scenic corridor on U.S. 31 between Charlevoix and Petoskey. (See related story elsewhere in the Courier.)

Approximately 25 people attended the meeting. In addition to hearing Bailey speak they evaluated the 1992 Operation Petunia and began the planning process for the 1993 effort. Currently the only major change proposed is making the post-planting Petunia Picnic in East Park a two hot dog per planter affair rather than a one dog per planter function.

The board also discussed a recent wildlife misfortune involving the Petunia truck and a deer. As the Petunia Truck was enroute to the Frankenmuth parade, a deer enroute to whatever the place is where dead deer go collided with the truck. The truck incurred $297 in damage. The deer was totaled. Although there is a $50 deductible, the truck was insured. The deer was uninsured.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful's main annual fundraiser, the Petunia Party is scheduled for July 28 at Dunmaglas. Ticket sales are running well ahead of last year's pace and are expected to be sold out soon. Once again, the Petunia Party will take place in conjunction with the Pool Auction. A variety of items have already been contributed for the auction and more are being sought. Items already contributed include antiques, day cruises, a week at a ski lodge, a vacant lot near Gaylord, a trip aboard the Medusa Challenger and a variety of collectibles. For additional information or to arrange to donate auction items, phone the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and Friends of the Pool headquarters at 547-1991.

Effort in the works to keep U.S. 31 scenic Forest and lakeshore views are the norm, not the exception on the drive along U.S. 31 between Charlevoix and Petoskey. That scenery is something which most, but not all, people take for granted. Some of the people who don't take it for granted are working toward insuring that the drive between the two northern Michigan communities maintains its scenic value.

Currently, the Little Traverse Conservancy is developing a program which would secure conservation easements from landowners along U.S. 31 to make sure that the area along the highway will remain naturally scenic rather than becoming cluttered with billboards, buildings etc. Although the program is currently only in the talking stages, it's prospects for coming to fruition are bolstered by the fact that it was suggested by property owners who own much of the property in question.

Tom Bailey, the conservancy's executive director, pointed out that much of the U.S. 31 corridor between Charlevoix and Petoskey is owned by a total of fewer than a dozen property owners. Last winter, Richard Lobenherz, one of those dozen property owners, contacted other property owners and the conservancy.

Lobenherz is the developer of the Charlevoix Country Club. The Country Club development has more than a mile of highway frontage on U.S. 31. Rather than developing the highway frontage, the development is being done away from the highway.

"With few exceptions, it's still a rather unspoiled stretch," Lobenherz said of the road from Charlevoix to Petoskey. "An opportunity exists, if we do something now, to kind of preserve that."

From an economic and developmental standpoint, Lobenherz said that putting a conservation easement on the property would mean foregoing use of highway frontage, but it would also make the development more aesthetically appealing and that can be appealing to prospective property buyers. This is not the first development in which Lobenherz has included a conservation easement. He worked in conjunction with the Little Traverse Conservancy to establish an easement on a large portion of a development near Susan Lake. He said property at that development has sold well.

Bailey offered an explanation of conservation easements at Keep Charlevoix Beautiful Inc.'s annual meeting June 27. Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has been a lead organization in beautifying that portion of U.S. 31 which passes through Charlevoix and the group is interested in what is being proposed for the area of the highway beyond the end of the organization's petunias.

Bailey drew a parallel between owning property and owning a bunch of sticks, with each individual stick representing the right of a property owner. He explained that it is not uncommon for property owners to give up one or more sticks, or property rights while retaining other rights. For example, a property owner may give a renter the right to occupy a piece of property, yet retain other rights of ownership. In some cases, a property owner may find advantages in giving up some of those rights. Some of those advantages may be aesthetic, such as insuring that a natural area will be preserved. Other advantages may be economic in that easements may be a selling point or a tax advantage.

In a phone conversation with the Courier Monday, Bailey said that tax advantages of conservation easements are more often a means to an end, rather than an end in themselves. In other words, tax advantages make a conservation easement economically feasible for someone who wants to protect a piece of property.

Bailey said the even though the U.S. 31 project is only in the talking stages, it is a project which is being actively pursued. Heidi Dexter, a planner who recently joined the Conservancy staff, will be the point person on the U.S. 31 project.

U.S. 31 isn't the first highway project the Conservancy has undertaken. They have also worked on M-119 north of Harbor Springs and on another highway in the Upper Peninsula.

In working on U.S. 31, Bailey said the first thing which needs to be done is to find out the property owners' plans and needs and put together a package which fits those plans and needs. There really isn't any timetable Bailey said.

Water walking is great exercise

Dear Editor,

The recent article describing the new Charlevoix Area Hospital water therapy program at the East Jordan pool reminded me of one of Erma Bombeck's humorous columns.

In it she says "I have found the ideal exercise - water walking. Not only is it biblically correct, it meets my criteria."

"Requires no training or coordination whatsoever."

"Is done only by people in much worse shape than I am."

"No one can actually see me do it."

"I can wear my old maternity bathing suit."

"I told a friend about my class and she said, 'You call that exercise? You don't sweat, you can breathe and talk at the same time, and your hair stays done.' I just smiled."

There's a lot of truth in her humor! Mothers for the Pool are delighted that the hospital has undertaken this project which is so beneficial to those suffering from injury or disease. We look forward to a similar program for the proposed Charlevoix area pool in addition to water safety, exercise and recreation.

Sincerely,
Mary Lou Smith

"An International Issue Hits Home"

Re: To the Editorial appearing in the Charlevoix Courier dated June 17, 1992.

The two articles appearing in the same issue of the Courier referring to "Free Trade With Mexico" were indeed ghastly enlightenment as far as they went, but I am at a direct loss as to why the local scribes stopped short of going the last mile to help our neighbors attempt to understand just who amongst us is promoting the dismantling of this once great nation. As well as who hopes to profit from the madness.

One does not require a degree in Economics to wonder where the industrialists hope to sell their products when the Americans are unemployed and the starvation wages received by the Mexican labor are insufficient to purchase the very products that they engaged in assembling.

A character in the novel "The Red Fox" once observed that in all the books ever written about politics there are only three questions:

-Who benefits?
-Who RULES the rulers?
-What the hell will they do to us next?

Bear in mind that politics and economics are inseparable.

In attempting to amplify our understanding of the issue, we need to consider the agenda of our "hidden government." Does the U.S. government allow but also passively promote and finance the export of American jobs? Indeed it does. Government funded agencies are actively involved, moving jobs offshore as rapidly as possible and they are doing it with our tax dollars.

A principal player in the game is OPIC (the Overseas Private Investment Corporation). OPIC is an "independent" and "self-sustaining" U.S. Government agency whose stated purpose is "to promote economie growth in developing countries by encouraging U.S. private investment in those nations." The devious "declaration of intent" is for public consumption only. In its zeal, and against legislative mandate, OPIC along with other government agencies, is involved in exporting jobs by the hundreds of thousands.

So much for appearances. The real agenda involves much more.

OPIC, in fact, is doing little more than promoting the special interests of the huge international banks. Vast loans made in the past by these banks to third world countries are long past due. Various countries, like some of our American farmers, committed the gross error of accepting the available loans when readily offered. Bankers do not have any monopoly on judgment as they are caught in their own trap whereby they are loaning out more money to pay the interest.

"Push has come to shove" the foreign governments are threatening to cancel these debts so the squeeze is on and it has been on for years.

The bankers prime interest is the receipt of INTEREST. They are not so concerned about the principal as long as a few billion dollars are arriving annually as a result of someone else's productive labor. Economic productive capacity must be increased in these debtor nations in order to offer any hope of capacity to pay their annual dues. One could safely recommend self-generated help for those nations found in dire need, even what help that we can afford, but a social revolution of this magnitude is quite intolerable.

As long as we are being forced to learn our Economics on the street, rather than the classroom, I believe concerned, responsible people will give some very serious thought in the period between now and November, when the American voters can decide which one of the Rockefeller-Rothschild-spear-carriers, Wm. Clinton or Geo. H.W. Bush will receive their marching orders at the oval office.

Another of the rare opportunities does present itself to the American Voters this election year to influence their won destiny. Is anyone interested?

Substation discontent reiterated

Editor,

My letter of June 24, 1992 regarding your article in the June 14, 1992 Courier sure got your undivided attention. You made your comments in numerical order and I now give my rebuttal in the same way and refer to your comments.

1. I said the Condo developer did not seem to care whether the substation was located adjacent to his development. You pointed out he offered to trade property to allow the relocation of the substation and his offer was rejected.

2. You said Mr. Westenbrock told the council IF they wanted to move the substation to decide before any engineering was started. That was when Mr. Westenbrock was asked if he thought there was any other location for the substation that was more suitable than the existing DPW site and he answered the Middle of Round Lake, but you would not put it there. There were no reasons based on more economical or safer or efficient operation to be obtained by relocation of the substation. So it was voted down.

3. You say that members of the council at that time considered the matter and decided to put the new substation next to the old one. May I point out that some of those council members

Leverich - Blum

Margaret Cowan Leverich & Jonathan Howard Blum

Margaret Cowan Leverich and Jonathan Howard Blum announce their engagement. An Oct. 24 wedding is planned at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward B. Leverich of Charlevoix. She earned a bachelor's degree in marketing from Michigan State University in 1982, and a master's degree from the University of Michigan in 1988. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and is employed as textile product development manager at Donghia Furniture and Textiles in New York City.

Her fiancé is the son of Dr. Ludwig L. Blum of New York City, N.Y. and Mrs. Mary Hoyt Blum of Cushing, Maine. He earned a bachelor's degree from Columbia University in New York City in 1983. He has worked in theater and television production for the past 10 years and is currently employed with MTV Networks as a writer/producer.

Local Lions contribute to hospital building campaign

A $1,500 grant from the Lions of Michigan Service Foundation and a $2,500 pledge from the Charlevoix Lions Club were recently made towards the Charlevoix Area Hospital's Building fund.

District Governor Lion Roger Kitchen of Elk Rapids presented the Foundation Grant check and King Lion Gordon VanWieren presented the Charlevoix Club's pledge. Receiving for the hospital were Dr. Jeffery Porter, Fund Drive Chairman, and Al Ranger, past Hospital Board President. Also invited were Norman Perkins, Hospital Board President, and Richard Krueger, Hospital Administrator. It was noted that the gifts were particularly timely in view of the June 30 ground breaking celebration for the hospital's new facilities — and that donations for the project are still being sought. The combined gift qualifies the Lions' organizations to be added to the other donors on the commemorative plaque to be displayed in the Hospital's remodeled lobby.

The $1500 Grant from the Michigan Lions Foundation is part of $29,665 in grant awards made this year to eight non-profit organizations. The grants support a broad range of services and activities such as the Special Needs Vision Clinic of Saginaw, a diabetic retinopathy clinic, a hearing and speech clinic and Radio Talking Books.

The $2,500 pledge from the Charlevoix Lions is included in their philanthropic program that currently raises some $5000 annually through its White Cane Days, Christmas tree sales, Venetian chicken barbecue, Venetian 50-50 raffle and serving as gate attendants at the McSaba Winterfest events. Eighty percent of the funds go to support local charities — the other twenty percent to state and national Lion supported agencies such as the Michigan Eye Bank, the Michigan Leader Dogs and Michigan Leader Dog Puppy Programs.

Theater group presents summer series

A pair of suspense thrillers and a romantic comedy will highlight the three-week Central Michigan University summer theater season in Petoskey.

Tim Kelly's suspense drama "Murder by Natural Causes" will be performed July 10 and 16. Patrick Hamilton's classic melodrama "Angel Street" is set for July 8, 11 and 17, and Bernard Slade's "Romantic Comedy" take the stage July 9, 15 and 18.

All shows begin at 8 p.m. in the Virginia M. McCune Community Arts Center.

"Murder by Natural Causes," directed by CMU faculty member Timothy Connors, is about Allison Sinclair and her plot to kill her husband, Arthur, who is a famous mind reader. Allison is too greedy to accept a divorce settlement because she will lose out on millions from his book and videotape royalties.

She is aided in her plot by an aspiring young actor.

"The whole question is will these people be able to succeed or not," said Connors. "Also, does Arthur really have the ability to read things? And if he does, can he keep from being killed?"

CMU faculty member J.J. Stanley directs "Angel Street," a Victorian thriller set in 1880 London.

Governor to visit Charlevoix County

Michigan Governor John Engler will visit Charlevoix County Monday, July 13. He will be at the Country Star Restaurant in Boyne City from noon until 12:45 p.m. The governor will give a brief speech and then will field questions from the audience.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

OF BLESSINGS

Many years ago, I had gone to upper East Tennessee for a college weekend. I was staying on a farm literally nestled on three sides by the Smoky Mountains. The five year old daughter of the home asked me at Saturday breakfast if I had ever seen the business end of a cow (of course she used farmer's terms and put it a little differently than that). I said no that I hadn't and the whole table started giggling.

We immediately had to grab a bucket and head for the barn to see what this preacher boy who had never seen the business end of a cow could do. Use your imagination. They are telling me to get down there and grab the cow. Really grab it and I'm saying that I'm holding on for all I'm worth. Not a drop would come. The little five year old sits next to me and gets a stream going but not in the bucket. All over the one and only pair of shoes I'd brought for the weekend.

I valued those milk spots for a long time for what you will probably think is a silly reason. It is amazing what the right touch can do. That five year old had the right touch and even though she missed the bucket, she got the milk to flowing.

When it comes to dealing with our sins, so many of us are either afraid or unwilling for the right touch to be applied to our lives. And that's tragic, if you truly understand what the right touch can do. When Isaiah, the prophet, recognized the sin in his own life, a seraph flew to him with a live coal in his hand that he had taken from God's holy altar. When he touched his lips, the seraph told Isaiah, "See this has touched your lips; your guilt is taken away and your sin is atoned for." Isn't it amazing what the right touch can do?

There is not a one of us who has not had a need for forgiveness now and then. There is not a one of us who has not needed help in reconciliation now and then. The list could go on. And you know what? Whatever it is, God can and will take care of it, if you will let Him.

Isaiah was so moved by His cleansing, so attuned to the love that had been poured out upon his heart, that something very precious happened. He heard the voice of the Lord calling: Friend, the Lord is anything but silent if you are attuned to Him. He is calling with the same heart cry that touched this precious prophet so long ago. God is still asking whom shall He send and who will go for Him. Don't be afraid to hear His voice. Don't be afraid to respond to His voice. When you see God in your life, it is my prayer that you will respond just as Isaiah did and say, "Here am I. Send me!"

Senior volunteer contributes hundreds of hours of service

Her colleagues say "She's the light that lifts your spirits." "She makes you feel good all over."

They're talking about Lois Ciesielski (pronounced Che-shell-ski), a female buzz saw of energy and blithe spirit who spends hundreds of hours per year making life more pleasant for the elderly, the terminally ill, and folks just down on their luck.

As a devoted volunteer aide in the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), Ciesielski is in the midst of her fifth year of sparking the lives of folks in their sunset years and those knitting their bones and tissues aboard hospital sheets.

She is one of a staff of 165 seniors who help their fellow beings by aiding them with an unbelievable range of services: tax advice, auto trips, bed care, errand running. Real gopher jobs.

But what an itinerary! Weekly, Ciesielski does hospital volunteer work at the Charlevoix Hospital, The Charlevoix County Hospice Program located at the East Jordan

Lois Ciesielski

Health Center, and at Challenge Mountain, a charitable resale enterprise located at M-75 SE, Boyne City. Saturdays? She teaches catechism at St. Matthews.

Although Lois doesn't draw RSVP mileage reimbursement for volunteer work out-of-county, she also does volunteer work at Antrim County's Meadowbrook facility in Bellaire.

All RSVP volunteers assist their "patients" without pay and get, as a gesture of gratitude, a Recognition Dinner once a year for 30 or more hours of volunteer work. On that basis, with more than 1,600 served in 1991, if totally prorated, Lois would have a lot of calories to absorb.

Linda Behringer, director of the Charlevoix/Emmet RSVP project which is monitored by ACTION, the federal domestic volunteer agency, funded by the State of Michigan and United Way agencies, and sponsored by Friendship Centers commented: "The pleasure Lois gets from cheering seniors into easing the strain of their golden years is the experience of virtually all of our 165 volunteers."

"We welcome seniors from all walks of life, because we have requests for community needs to be served in a multitude of areas."

Prospective volunteers for the RSVP "mission" are welcome to make further inquiry by dialing 347-5877 for information concerning the cure for retirement boredom.

Local crafts people prepare for Craft Fair

By Laurie Lounsbury

Lathes are turning, kilns are firing, flowers are drying, and matte cutters are cutting as local artisans prepare for Charlevoix's 24th Annual Craft Fair. The craft fair, to be held July 11 in three downtown parks, will feature more than 250 artisans and crafts people from all over the country. The fair will begin at nine in the morning, and artists are welcome to stay until dusk. Jacque Merta, Chamber of Commerce Executive Director, said the number of entrants and types of crafts represented should make this year's fair a big success. "There is such a variety of things to purchase, at a wide range of prices, so there's really something for everyone," Merta said.

While the bulk of the entrants come from other cities and states, several local artists will be represented at the craft fair.

Susan Louiselle is one local artisan who will be entered at the craft fair. This will be her fifth appearance in the Charlevoix Craft Fair. Louiselle owns Country Herbs and Blossoms, where she grows and dries herbs, and makes dried flower arrangements. Her herb business is a recent addition to her floral arrangements. With the herbs, she will make decorative items, such as garlic braids. "They're all usable plants," Louiselle said of the herb arrangements.

Louiselle's dried flower arrangements are popular with a wide variety of people, yet she admits that, "Men and cats are bad for business." Men try to discourage their wives from overspending at the fair, and cats attack her dried flower arrangements with a frenzied fervor. Louiselle recalls one distraught woman calling her and saying, "I just spent $60 on one of your flower arrangements yesterday, and today my cat destroyed it." Cat owners would do well to stick with Louiselle's wall hangings, swags, and wreaths.

A few miles south of town, John Pearl and his fellow woodturning club members are preparing for their first appearance in the Charlevoix craft fair. Pearl is one of 20 members in the Northwest Michigan Woodturners Club, the first sanctioned woodturning club in Michigan. The woodturners are going to be giving live demonstrations at the craft fair as they turn out wooden tops and miniature birdhouses. "All of the guys are excited about it," Pearl said of their debut appearance in the craft fair.

Pearl and his fellow club members all pursue woodworking strictly as a hobby. Pearl attributes the popularity of woodturning as a hobby to the fact that it doesn't take a great deal of time to complete an item. "You can come out after dinner, and in a couple of hours, you've got a project done," Pearl said.

Pearl's favorite project is to create birdhouses from tree branch sections. His birdhouses range in size from two inch miniatures, with whimsical little caps on them, to two foot long houses for kestrels, a small member of the hawk family.

Pearl said that he and most of the club members work with any type of wood they find in Northern Michigan. He explained that the wood found undesirable by millers and builders is exactly what woodturners like most, so acquiring scrap wood is an easy task. Woodturners like using burls, the knotty growths found on trees, because of the complex and varied grain patterns found in the burls. Burls are best suited for bowls, vases, and cups.

Pearl and his club members will occupy three booths at the fair, with one booth devoted to their wood lathe and woodworking demonstrations, and two booths filled with their handcrafted wood items.

For those who like to have their Charlevoix views and keep them too, Gary Spencer and Michael Webb offer matted, framed photographs of Charlevoix's nature, wildlife, and area scenes. Webb and Spencer formed a partnership ten years ago to pursue their mutual hobby of photography. They cut their own mates and then frame their photography. The two started entering the Charlevoix craft fair eight years ago, primarily featuring photos of area wildlife and flowers. Over the years they have learned that scenic photos of Charlevoix sell the best, so they have concentrated their efforts in that direction.

Dave Otis, a local potter, is one of the full-time artisans to enter the art fair. He has more than 20 years experience in creating functional, stoneware pottery. This will be Otis' third year in the Charlevoix Craft Fair, and his fifth summer in the Charlevoix area. Otis' studio and retail shop is located in the former Koucky studio on M-66 Highway, south of Ironton. Otis makes his pottery in both an electric fired kiln and a wood fired kiln. The wood fired pottery has an earth toned, speckled appearance, due to blowing ash in the firing process. The electric fired pottery features natural hues and blue trim, ideally suited for a country kitchen motif. Otis keeps busy year round, working at his pottery business in the summer, and teaching classes at McCune Arts Center in the winter. He says his decision to move here has been a good one. "There are a lot of other artists in the area, and we sort of rejoice and commiserate together, depending on the season."

City softball league results

June 29

This one was close. Paul Bunyan Lanes beat Charlevoix Cinema 14-13 despite home runs by Norm Carlson and Chris Putman. Paul Bunyan Lanes collected 18 hits while winning pitcher Jeff Smith gave up 16 hits.

In game two, the Pine Hill Nursery team found itself nipped in the bud 14-4 by Flight Deck. Flight Deck had 14 hits while winning pitcher Dave Cole allowed Pine Hill only nine hits.

Townhouse threw a wrench in the Charlevoix Manufacturing softball machine to take a 26-11 win. Townhouse had fewer hits, 19, than runs, but three of those hits were home runs. Scott Kelly had a grand slam. Joe Miller had an inside the park home run and Gary Jakielek had to settle for just a routine, garden-variety home run. Winning pitcher Bob Alexander allowed 12 hits.

June 30 (Womens League)
Mike's Glass streaked...no, that's just too hokey, defeated, yes defeated, Kwikie Duplicating 22-8 despite being out hit 11-9. Mary Carver was the winning pitcher. I.M.R. devoured Nanny's 16-3.

on 14 hits, one of them a grand slam from Dawn Hankins. Winning pitcher Angie McClanaghan allowed a mere eight hits.

Flight Deck beat Boyne Valley Hydroseed 12-8 behind the nine-hit pitching of Teri Wilson. The winners had 16 hits.

In boy's 8-10 youth league play, the Orioles beat the Yankees 14-2 and the Blue Jays beat the Tigers 13-2. Just like the big leagues.

July 1

In the only game to beat the evening's rainstorm, Bay Shore Steel thundered past Irish Boat Shop 37-3 on 29 hits which included home runs by Butch Potter, Bill Kohler and Gary Smith. Irish Boat Shop had a big four hit off winning pitcher Alex Niedzalkowski.

In boys' 11-13 youth league play the Rangers and the A's played to a hardfought draw 9-9.

July 2 (Womens League)
Nanny's beat Townhouse 24-17. Nanny's collected 25 hits while winning pitcher Kelly Abbey gave up 13 hits.

Boyne Valley Hydroseed defeated Kwikie Duplicating 26-12 despite being out hit 13-12. Obviously the duplicators' game was not a defensive gem. Winning pitcher Kelly Carson received the support of home runs by Rhoda Woligang and Kim Stuel.

I.M.R. defeated Flight Deck on a forfeit.

In boys' youth league play, the Raspberry Sox clashed with the Navy Sox and came away a 20-13 winner. The Light (not the dark, but the light) Blue Sox outmaneuvered the Green Sox 20-14. The Red Sox and the Maroon Sox were virtually indistinguishable one from the other and ended in a colorblind 18-18 tie.

In girls' youth league play the Expos landed the Marlins 8-5 and the Braves corralled the Phillies 15-2.

Board of REALTORS adds third county

The Antrim-Charlevoix Board of REALTORS is pleased to announce the expansion of the Board's territorial jurisdiction to include Kalkaska County. On December 12, 1991 at the Board's annual Christmas meeting, the membership in attendance voted unanimously to expand into Kalkaska County. Then on May 21, 1992 at the Board's General Membership meeting, it was voted to change the name of the Board to reflect the inclusion of Kalkaska. The new name of the Board is: Antrim-Charlevoix-Kalkaska Association of REALTORS. The decision to change from Board to Association is based on recommendations from the Michigan Association of REALTORS.

During the past few months the Association has been presenting a program to Elementary School children called, "Safety Thru Songs" which teaches children about safety signs, bicycle safety, beware of strangers, poison, etc. More than 840 children from 11 schools have received the coloring book and cassette tape. Also available are two other programs called, "Sing No to Drugs", and "Sing Yes to Life", dealing with saying no to drugs, and the latter is a positive reinforcement series building self-esteem, pride and courage. We hope to provide these programs to even more children at different grade levels next year.

The Association is currently in the process of computerizing the Multiple Listing Service. This service allows the REALTOR to better serve the public by offering more choice and narrowing down the choices by entering buyer specifications and receiving the options almost immediately.

The 1992 Officers and Directors of the Association are as follows: President - Becky Voice, Vice President - Doris Leech, Secretary/Treasurer - Brad Zucco, Directors: Jeff Wellman, John Murray, Paula Harshman, Melinda Kowalski and Linda Franchino, Executive Officer to the Association is Kathy Schueter.

new product award

Lexalite International Corporation's Prismatic Reflector Model 822 was announced winner of the medium Industrial Division of Michigan's 10th Annual New Products Award competition June 12. The 822 is a 22 inch diameter clear injection molded reflector that uses precise, computer designed optical prisms to reflect and control light rays.

The product is similar in shape and appearance to the old prismatic glass "high bay" reflectors. It is primarily used for indoor lighting in industrial and commercial buildings. Compared to other types of reflectors, the 822 offers a 35 percent energy savings.

The 822 is one of three in the 800 series of extremely efficient reflectors designed by Lexalite's Lighting Research center in Charlevoix. Lexalite is a major supplier of acrylic and polycarbonate refractors, reflectors and lenses to the lighting industry.

In order to enter the competition, the products had to be developed and produced in Michigan, and placed on the market between July 1, 1987 and July 1, 1991. Products were judged on ingenuity of concept, improved function and savings in use, safety, environmental considerations and contribution to the economic development of the state in the form of sales and jobs created.

The new product award committee consisted of representatives from the Michigan Manufacturers Association, the Michigan Society of Professional Engineers, Michigan Chamber of Commerce, Michigan Department of Commerce and Agriculture.

...substation discontent

cil people are still members of the council.

I made no statement that the City Manager or the Council have taken any formal action to sell the old substation location. What I said was the City Manager said and it's recorded that they could sell the property and I asked if he had anyone in mind. You inserted the TIFA situation in this paragraph. My letter made no reference to the TIFA, but I will respond to it at the end of this letter.

4. I appreciated your telling us that the bond issue was 3.3 million dollars not 2-million plus.

5. That nine alternate sites were considered and rejected and that only one person objected to moving it to the M-66 site. Only two people objected to leaving it at the existing site.

6. Again I point out that the only reason given at the council meeting after the move was approved, as to why it was moved and given by a present councilman was there was not room for it at the old site. That was untrue then and it is untrue now. You made no comment on this.

Now regarding the TIFA subject you inserted in your comments. The City manager made the suggestion that the surplus money left in the TIFA after it had completed its statutory purpose be used to purchase the DPW site, a piece of property already belonging to the City. The same councilman who gave the lack of space reason for moving the substation called this move a BOONDOGGLE. It was also contrary to the State of Michigan law that the City used to establish the TIFA district. The City entered into a contract with the State to operate the TIFA program according to the law and the City Manager suggested the City ignore both the law and the contract.

The City has made the ratepayers of the City utility costs responsible for a 10 or 15 year payoff of a $3.3 million bond issue plus the interest. The moving of the substation cost $400,000 to $500,000 of unnecessary expense. That is $33,000 to $50,000 per year of your increased rate money.

This added expense without any benefit is the objection I and a lot more of the City's residents have.

Charles C. Papineau

Sam Supernaw has moved his accounting business to 808 Bridge Street. He said the move allowed the business to have both more room and more privacy.

Businesses change locations, move up to the top of the hill

Several local businesses have decided to make a move up, so they've moved up to the top of Charlevoix's south hill, from their former locations in the downtown area. Mr. Passageways, Kiosk-Travel, owned by Carlo and Terri D'Angelo, has moved from the Market Mall to 907 Bridge St. The D'Angelos decided to buy the building for a variety of reasons. "We get high exposure, and have parking," Carlo D'Angelo said. He added, "We're a service business, and we don't really need to be downtown." D'Angelos' wife Terri said she thinks the recent movement of service oriented businesses out of the downtown area and up to the south hill is good for the downtown area, leaving it open for more retail businesses and restaurants.

Sam Supernaw Accounting has moved from the Market Mall to 808 Bridge Street. "It's a great location," Supernaw said. "We've got more room, and more privacy." He also has a free, paved parking lot for his clients, and a rear entrance to the building.

Coldwell Bankers/Schmidt Realtors also left the downtown area and joined other real estate firms on the south hill. Linda Franchino, the firm's new manager, was unavailable for comment regarding their move.

...Odmark Pavilion getting lots of use

Bob Hoffman, Bandshell Committee treasurer, said he's pleased with the amount of use the facility is getting.

"I think everybody is pleased with it, even some individuals who had some objections to it originally," he said.

Many of those objections were to the original design. That design was subsequently modified.

Hoffman said the construction costs have been paid off and the two things which remain to be completed are purchasing a sound system and putting up a contributor plaque listing the names of people who contributed more than $100 to the project.

Krutsch noted that putting in a sound system sometime in the future is something the facility needs.

The Convention and Visitors Bureau is working with Creative Marketing Concepts to bring entertainment to the pavilion.

This Wednesday, July 8 the Blues Hounds, a recently formed group of area musicians will be performing.

Other performers scheduled for this month are:

Double Play, a duo which does classical music and humor - 8 p.m., July 15;

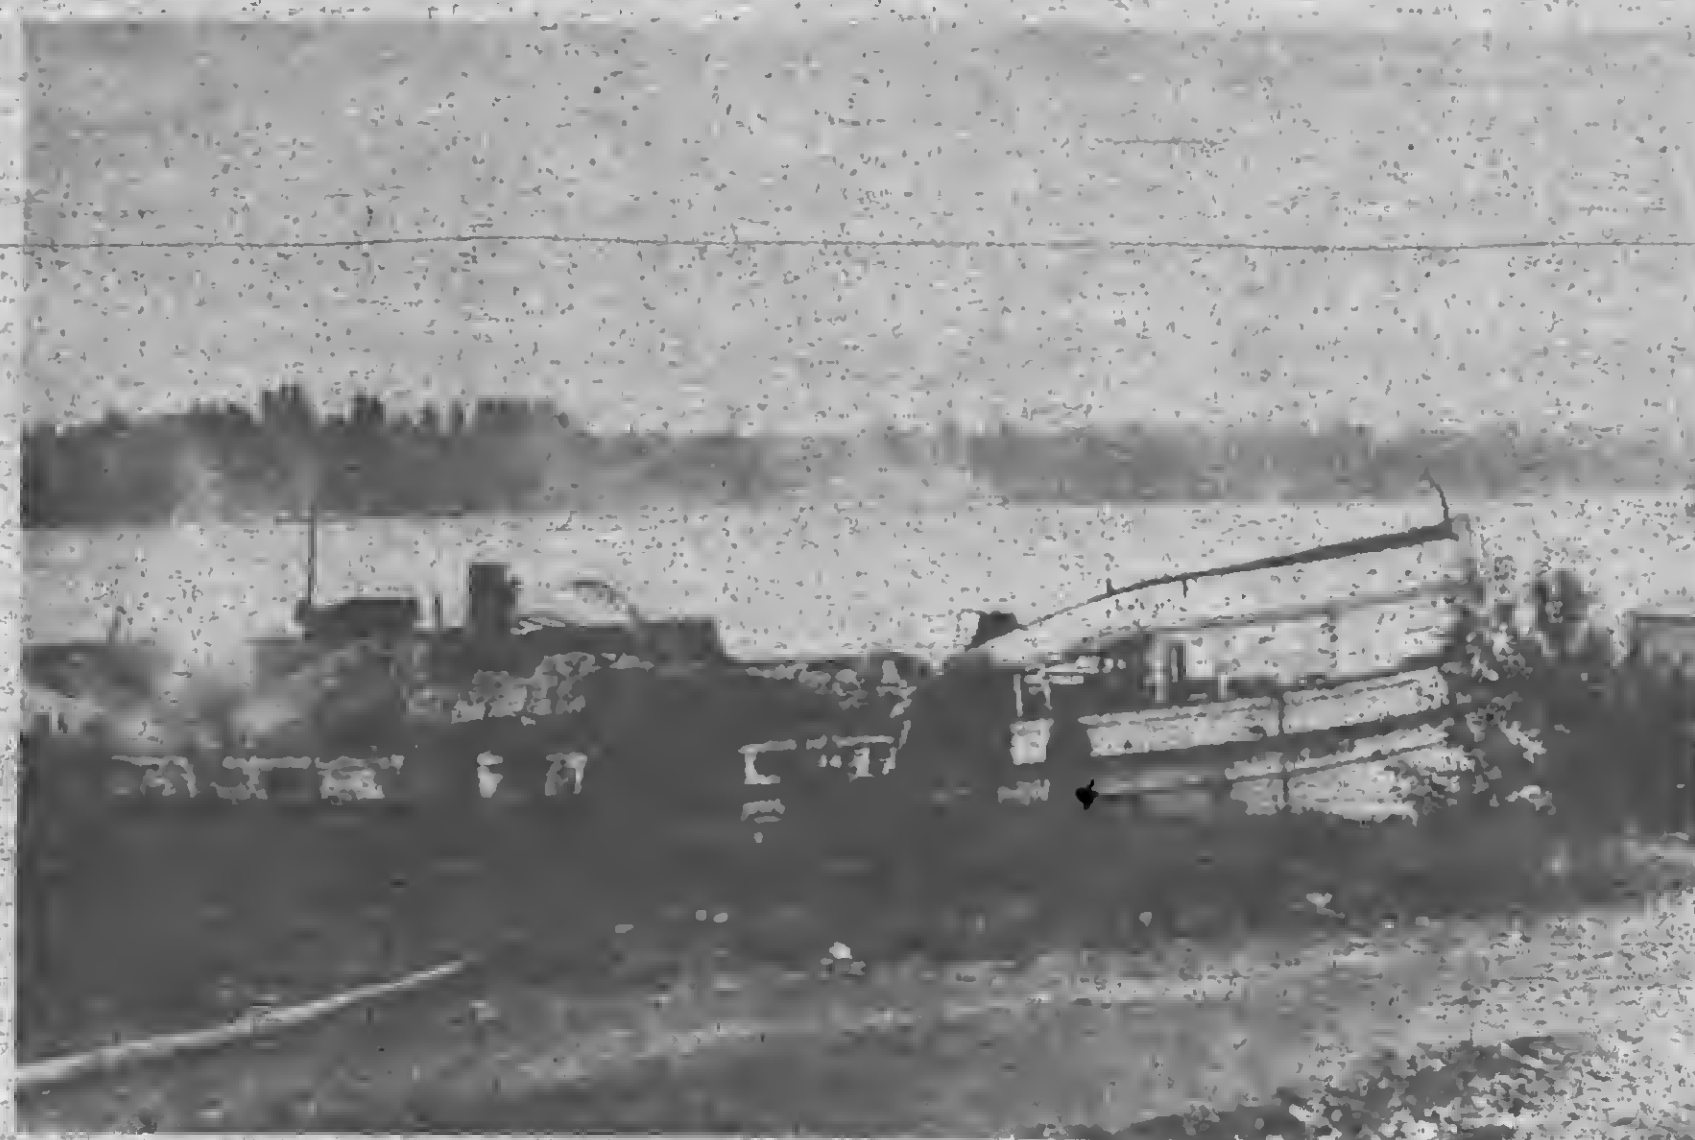

Tommy Paul, a classical guitarist - 1 p.m., July 18;

Peace Meal Band, which plays string instruments and traditional folk music - 8 p.m., July 22;

Robert Hohner Percussion Ensemble, a 10-piece oil drum group which plays Calypso and Jazz music - 8 p.m., July 29.

Krutsch said the bureau board makes it a point to have a board member at each performance to evaluate the entertainment so that the entertainment project can continue to be refined and improved for the future.

"It's something we feel well continue for many years," Krutsch said.

Voters to decide if it's worth the price Aug. 4

By L. Scott Swanson

A proposed 911 (commonly called nine-one-one) emergency dispatch phone system has several benefits. Whether or not those benefits are worth the cost of building and operating the 911 system will be decided by Charlevoix and Emmet County voters at the Aug. 4 election. You might say that voters get to make the first call on 911.

911 is an emergency telephone dispatch system offered in various communities throughout the country. Currently, Charlevoix is not one of those communities. At the Aug. 4 election, voters in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties will vote on two proposals.

The first proposal, (9-1-1 Ballot Proposal A), if passed, would allow each county to levy an additional one mill for two years to cover the equipment, facility and start-up charges for a two-county 911 program. A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of a home or property's state equalized value (SEV). A property's SEV is half of a home's theoretical market value (i.e. what the home might be expected to sell for). For example, a home with a market value of $50,000 would have an assessed value of $25,000 and every mill of taxes would cost the owner of that home $25 per year.

The one mill would be added to approximately 38 mills being levied in Charlevoix Township or 49 mills being levied in the city of Charlevoix. In dollar figures for the owner of the $50,000 home, that means the $25 would be added to a $950 annual tax bill in Charlevoix Township or added to a $1,200 annual property tax bill in the City of Charlevoix. The total millage figure includes city or township taxes, plus school district, intermediate school district and county property taxes.

When all of the property in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties is taken into consideration, the one mill for two year tax increase would equate to about $2.9 million. That $2.9 million would be used to upgrade the communications equipment of emergency services (i.e. law enforcement, fire and ambulance) departments throughout the two counties, purchase and equip a 911 regional dispatch center and operate the center for six months.

After the $2.9 million start up funds are expended, operations would be paid for by an increase in monthly phone bill fees. That's where the second proposal (9-1-1 Ballot Proposal B) comes into play. That proposal, if passed, would allow Charlevoix and Emmet County phone bills to be increased by up to 20 percent of a person's basic telephone service fee in order to pay the operating cost of a 911 system for Emmet and Charlevoix Counties. The operational cost of the regional 911 dispatch center is projected to be approximately $784,000 per year. Although there is more than one phone company operating in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, the additional cost of the 911 program would be about $2 per month, or $24 per year per user. However, since that fee will be higher for people who pay for business phones in addition to their home phones or who have more than one phone line.

Both election proposals, not just one or the other, must pass in order for the 911 program to be initiated.

Council reconsiders driveway decision

The city council dispatched with a full, but noncontroversial agenda in less than an hour Monday evening.

The council reversed an earlier decision regarding the VanAlstine building on the corner of Bridge Street and Carpenter. Previously the council had said that if the building was to have an exit onto Carpenter Street, then the exit would have to have a gate and be used only for supply trucks. Monday evening the council removed the gate requirement at the request of the building's owner Lloyd VanAlstine. There is a Flapjack Shack restaurant going into the building.

Tom Meggison, who lives across the street from the building had previously complained about increasing commercialization of Carpenter Street and opposed the Carpenter Street driveway. He reiterated that complaint Monday.

AHEAD LINES

Concert to benefit AIDS victims

Intervention Music Unlimited is joining forces with H.A.N.D.S. (HIV and AIDS Network Direct Services), to host an AIDS fundraising benefit concert at Castle Farms. The concert will be July 31, from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. Tickets for the concert cost $10 and are on sale at the Charlevoix 7-11 as well as at the gate. The concert will feature five bands from the northern Michigan area: Lewis C. Grey, Uncle Slam, Yagabond Dora, Kathouse Choir, and White Russian will each play for 45 minutes.

The purpose of the concert is twofold, according to Craig Sheppard, President of Intervention Music. Organizers want to raise money for AIDS and HIV patients, and they also want to inform young people about the disease. "If we save one life, it's worth it. Even if we don't make a red cent," Sheppard said.

Sheppard also said it is not their intention to preach to the concert goers, but to inform them and provide them with a fun evening. "It will be a fun, big bash," Sheppard said. David Behling, HANDS organizer, has arranged to have area AIDS and HIV patients speak at the concert between the bands' performances. Sheppard pointed out that AIDS and the HIV virus are no longer problems that threaten only the big cities, but are a threat to people living in rural northern Michigan as well. "It's a big city problem that isn't going to stay in the city," he said.

...county voters to make the first call on 911

program. Former city councilman Bob Timms opposes it. "If (the 911 program) allows us to offer a better emergency response to the citizenry," Halverson said. He sees communication problems due to outdated or interdepartmentally incompatible hardware (i.e. radios etc.) as being a weak link in Charlevoix and Emmet County emergency services.

Timms objects to the 911 system because of the additional cost. "How much insurance should I have to pay for?" he asks. "It's another layer of bureaucracy to pay for forever and ever."

Timms said he feels the 911 system is being pushed down people's throats and that it can be done without. He would prefer to see emergency dispatch services in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties remain as they are.

Halverson, who has been part of a committee which has been working on the 911 proposal for approximately a year concedes that the program will cost money, but he feels the present dispatch system leaves something to be desired and that the benefits of the proposed 911 system make it worth the added cost.

Currently, there are more than 30 emergency phone numbers listed in the telephone book for Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. If a resident of one of those counties has an emergency situation, the number they call depends on where they're at and what the problem is. For example, a person in Charlevoix Township would dial a different number for an ambulance than he would to report a fire. If a 911 program were in place there would be just one number for everybody.

The 911 system which is being proposed is called an "enhanced 911" system. It has some features above and beyond simple emergency dispatch. Halverson said the two-county 911 committee considered several options. There were some things they felt were worth the added expense and some options they passed on.

With the enhanced 911 system, when someone dials 911 a dispatcher at the regional dispatch center will answer. (The location for the dispatch center has not yet been determined. It will be somewhere in Emmet or Charlevoix Counties, preferably in an existing building.) When the dispatcher answers, a computer screen will tell the dispatcher the caller's phone number, address, nearby crossroads, location of fire hydrants, gas shut offs, medical history and even locations of any hazardous wastes which might be at the site. The 911 dispatcher will then be able to immediately dispatch the appropriate emergency service agency to the scene.

Currently there are four ambulance departments, at least half a dozen fire departments and another half dozen law enforcement agencies operating in Charlevoix County alone. Presently, they don't all have compatible radios and therefore can't always communicate with one another. One of the first things the 911 program would do is upgrade communications equipment so that emergency services units throughout the two counties can communicate with each other in mutual aid situations. The 911 dispatcher will be able to talk to all of the various departments.

In addition to interdepartmental communications, Halverson sees several problems with the current system which 911 will remedy. Right now, even though Charlevoix doesn't have 911, people visiting the area sometimes assume that 911 is available and dial it. When you dial 911 in Emmet County, you get a busy signal. In Charlevoix County, a recorded message tells you to hang up and dial again.

When people find that 911 doesn't work, they often try dialing the operator. When they do that, they get a person without local knowledge who has to figure out who the person needs and what that number is.

School children in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties can't really be taught an emergency phone number in school because the numbers vary depending upon where the kids live. They see 911 on TV, but they can't call that in this area.

There have been instances where emergency personnel have been dispatched to the wrong location. Halverson said there have been instances where Charlevoix officers have been dispatched to the Charlevoix K-Mart when the problem was actually at the Petoskey K-Mart. The same confusion has occurred with the East Jordan Health Center and the Charlevoix health center.

Charlevoix and Emmet Counties are cooperating on the program to save money. Were the two counties to have separate programs, they would have to have two dispatch centers, each employing 14 people. By cooperating, they will have one center employing 16 people.

"It's going to cost something," Halverson said. "But we feel we've got a good solid based direction on this." Once the system is functioning, it will be governed by a users board.

There will be an open house to demonstrate the 911 system 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday, July 20 at the Charlevoix City Hall.

OPINIONS

by EDITH GILBERT

One runs into such interesting people in Charlevoix. Take John MacKenzie, for example. His parents are from Flint and they just moved into one of those attractive new condos on Belvedere Terrace. His response to the usual introductory question, "and what do you do?" brought forth a wealth of fascinating information.

John told me that he took a three months course at the United States School of Professional Paperhanging, located in Rutland, Vermont. This was a number of years ago before he started his own business. The school has three instructors and 10 students per instructor, with daytime and nighttime classes. Here students learn everything one needs to know about hanging wallcoverings, from matching patterns to applying grass cloth, foils, hand prints, felt, leathers and upholstery fabric.

Having watched my grass-cloth wallpaper separate from the wall and hang in limp rolls, I asked John what is the secret in applying wallcoverings? His answer was explicit. "It's all in the preparation," he stressed. "If it isn't prepped right it won't stay on the wall. For one thing, we always wash the walls before sanding."

"Oh, Oh," I thought to myself, remembering a professional painter applying fresh paint over a quarter of an inch of dust on a dado in my neighbor's home.

"We also learned how to hang wallcoverings on angled ceilings, stairways, recessed windows. Architects are not concerned with how to match patterns in tricky places without wasting a lot of paper. We recently finished a job on Hemingway Pointe where we wallpapered the grate on all the hot air ducts, including the louvers!"

"I like using oil based paint, but this will be obsolete in 10 years," the young man said. "The salespeople at the paint stores call me one of the last of the old timers. Oil based paint is not biodegradable or ecologically safe. It's already been banned in California. Only water based paint will be sold in the future."

"What about latex paint?" I asked.

"It dries too quickly and shows brush marks. There should be no brush marks on walls or roller marks on woodwork," John emphasized.

"Do you do any glazing?" I asked, thinking of my own walls at home that we wash down every year with Oil of Murphy Soap.

"That method was very popular during the depression because those walls never need painting," John replied. "Glazing is a clear finish that looks like varnish and is mixed with color. We also were taught faux finishing, woodgraining and marbleizing at school."

John spoke with enthusiasm. "I feel technical, vocational and trade schools are the wave of the future! There are so many young people who are adept with their hands — they would enjoy the challenge of learning a skilled craft. It's very gratifying to stand back at the end of the day and look over a job well done."

"You might be interested in knowing that the United States School of Professional Paperhang-ing would like to open 12 more certified schools around the country including one in the Midwest. Here one would be taught the hands-on basics of a craft and also be provided with informative books on the subject. Courses last six or eight weeks.

John started his own business in Flint, J & J Painting and Wallcovering, eight years ago, when he was only 27. He works now with interior designers and private clients all over the state. His latest interest is painting furniture.

"Have you ever taken any art courses?" I asked.

"No, I haven't. But I can paint a leaf from a picture, trace it or make a stencil from the drawing. I can see it clearly in my mind's eye," he added.

The MacKenzie family has been summering up north every year since the '60's. Now that Dr. John MacKenzie and his wife Carol will be spending more time in their new condo, son John and his family expect to visit with the couple's two children as often as possible.

Someday I'll tell him the story about my friend, the late Eleanor Ratigan, who reached a modicum of notoriety in town because she painted the walls AROUND her furniture! That's what you call tackling a project head on —

Letters to the editor

The story behind the stone

(Editor's note: The following letter was written by Ralph Hamilton to Perry Smith in regard to a letter to the editor which Smith wrote concerning Veteran's Memorial Park. (See July 1 Courier) Hamilton's letter is being printed with Hamilton and Smith's permission.)

Dear Perry,
I just want to thank you for your "Letter to the Editor."

I was Chairman of the Dedication ceremony for this park and got Oscar North to give the dedication address. He gave a stirring address and there were few dry eyes in the crowd.

But the most exciting thing about this was the Memorial Stone that is there now with the plaque (on the corner). I found this stone about where Lexalite is now located and had Ikey Beyers pick it up. Mr. Malpass from East Jordan completed the plaque and placed it where it is. BUT I soon received a phone call from Mrs. Allen (former owner of the Shanahan property). She said I had stolen a stone from her property. I apologized and said I would bring it back, but wanted me to know I stole it. I thought that I had picked it off of State Highway land and had told Charlie Zeigler what I wanted it for and he gave me permission.

I just thought you would like to know a little background on it.

Sincerely,
Ralph Hamilton

So you want to buy a home...

If you thought that owning a home was beyond your dreams, think again. If your family income is under $46,920 per year, you may qualify for a home mortgage under the Michigan Initiative Program.

Charlevoix and Emmet County Cooperative Extension Service is offering a workshop that will help you qualify for a Michigan Initiative Mortgage, as well as provide basic information you need to effectively shop for and finance a home. The workshop will take place Aug. 1 at the extension office in Boyne City.

The goal of the workshop is to provide potential homeowners with information on all aspects of home ownership and to help them decide if home ownership at this time is feasible.

Topics to Be Covered Include: House hunting — how to evaluate a house inside and out and the neighborhood; qualifying for a home loan — understanding the criteria lenders use when deciding whether to make a loan; financing a home — understanding the financial aspects of purchasing a home, including monthly costs and mortgage options; and the closing — understanding the closing costs involved in purchasing a home.

The Michigan Initiative helps perspective home buyers by providing education about purchasing a home, cutting the normal down payment requirement to five percent and offering more flexible qualifying criteria than conventional mortgages.

The workshop series is open to all potential homeowners, whether they are interested in the Michigan Initiative or not.

For more information call the Charlevoix County CES at 582-6232 or Emmet County residents may call their Extension Office at 348-1770.

last 16 years. Mr. Lasater knows most of the citizens of Charlevoix County personally. I would rather have a sheriff that knows me, then one who does not have a stake in the county, and the people in it without looking for personal gains.

To have a sheriff that does not have stake in this community will not be able to do a job for you and me, as one who cares for the people in his county and who has a stake in our well being.

Mr. George Lasater is the only choice, if you want to feel safe when you sleep at night.

Vote for the dedicated experienced and caring candidate for sheriff re-elect George Lasater!

Historical Society to present slide program July 21

The Charlevoix Historical Society will present a slide program of historic Charlevoix photos. It will be presented using two slide projectors with music and sound effects and a live commentary explaining the slides. It will be an informal program so members of the audience may ask questions or make comments.

To commemorate the arrival of the railroad in Charlevoix 100 years ago, several scenes of the Railroad in the early years are included.

Charlie Conn of Gaylord, Michigan will present the program. In the past he has presented programs in East Jordan, Traverse City, Petoskey and other places. His programs are always enjoyable.

The program will begin at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 21 at the Charlevoix City Hall.

Admission will be $3 for adults and $1.50 for children and high school students.

This is the latest plate in the Charlevoix Historical Society commemorative series. It is available at the Society's Harsha House museum.

Beaver Island celebrates Museum Week

The Beaver Island Historical Society will host its annual Museum Week from July 20-25. Initiated in 1980, Museum Week was designed to showcase the Society's two museums: The Mormon Print Shop and Maritime Museum. Since then, the week has evolved into a celebration for both adults and children of the island's cultural, natural, and political history. The predominant theme this year will be island life both before and after the first white settlers arrived in 1837.

The ever popular "Music-on-the-Porch" program will inaugurate the week at 7:30 Monday night. The "Porch" is the porch of the Mormon Print Shop where island musicians will perform the music of early settlers with an emphasis on the Irish songs and "fiddle" music of the last century. Nationally acclaimed singer Claudia Schmidt and local favorites Kevin White and Matt Marston are among the island musicians who will join fiddler Glenn Hendrix in the program.

A Pet Show for children with pets both real and fanciful will take place on the Porch Monday afternoon at 2:30.

Back again by popular request will be Professor Jim Gillingham and his "Real Live Repulse Show" for children of all ages on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 in the Community School. Professor Gillingham is the well-known CMU biologist and head of the Central Michigan University Biological Station on the Island. Tuesday evening, ethnobotanist Keewaydinquay who is dedicated to preserving the lore and traditions of the Native Americans who lived in this area, will lecture and show videos on "Herbal Medicine and Edible Plants" at 8 p.m. in the Community School. Kee, as she is affectionately known, by the islanders, spends her summers on Garden Island conducting seminars in Native American lore.

Once again the Historical Society has chartered a boat from the Beaver Island Boat Company, this year for a five hour cruise, 9:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m., on Wednesday, to the lighthouses in the main shipping lanes to the northeast of Beaver Island. Water transportation and the accompanying hazards of life on the water have played a major role in the lives of the islanders and we will be sailing on one of the ferries which still carries the majority of passengers and supplies to and from the mainland.

Wednesday evening, after a day on the water, visitors will hear from CMU chemistry Professor Paul Cratin, who calls himself "an aging aquanaut-scientist", on life underwater. At 8 p.m. in the Community School, Professor Cratin will show slides of his scuba diving adventures, particularly those in the Caribbean.

"Only adults accompanied by children under six may take this most popular tour."

The criteria for attending the nature hike for children, one of the Beaver Island Museum Week events.

A Treasure Hunt for children is on the schedule for Thursday afternoon at 2:30 while "Dr." Protar's House will be open from 1-3 with Antje Price, Protar historian, as hostess. In the evening, island resident Don Meister will weave Indian baskets and tales at 8 in the Community School.

Friday morning, Dr. Gillingham and other members of the CMU Biological Station community will conduct a Nature Hike for Children from 9-11:30. Only adults accompanied by children under six may take this most popular tour. Friday evening, to conclude the formal programs, Steve Harold, Great Lakes Maritime historian, will give a talk on "Water Transportation before 1837" including a video demonstration of birchbark canoe building. Both a birchbark canoe and dugout will be on display at the Maritime Museum all week and the Schooner Madeline from Traverse City, a replica of the Great Lakes schooners which brought the first settlers to the island in the 1840's, will be in the harbor Tuesday and Wednesday.

"Dr." Protar's house will again be open from 1 - 3 on Saturday afternoon. The Print Shop and Maritime Museums are open from 11 a.m. - 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon - 3 p.m. Sunday.

A gala end to Museum Week will be the Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce's "Old Fashioned Sunset Cruise" with music, hors d'oeuvres, and a cash bar on Saturday evening.

Beaver Island can be reached by ferry boat twice or three times daily from Charlevoix or by plane from Charlevoix, Traverse City, Pellston, and Harbor Springs. Call the Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce for more information on travel and housing arrangements: 448-2505.

Local Lions participate in white cane program

Friday and Saturday July 17 and 18 the Charlevoix Lions will be out and about town for their annual White Cane fundraiser. They will be seeking contributions from the public towards the Clubs' philanthropic program. In return each contributor receives a White Cane lapel emblem symbolizing the Lions' dedication to help for the sight-impaired and to the worldwide eradication of diseases of the eyes. Through the Charlevoix Lions, a contributor can help directly with the Michigan eye Bank and Transplant Center, the Leader Dogs Training Center at Rochester, Michigan and the associated Leader Dog Puppy Program. Locally, a contributor helps with glasses donated to needy individuals with special eye problems. The Lions recently dedicated funds to the Charlevoix Area Hospital's new facility which materially increased its capacity to handle eye-related surgery.

The White Cane Safety Program had its beginnings in Peoria, Illinois 62 years ago. The Lions also take in used eyeglasses and redistribute them throughout the world.

I'm 35 years old and I just learned how to eat.

Losing weight was the hardest thing I've ever done. I tried everything...except eating right!

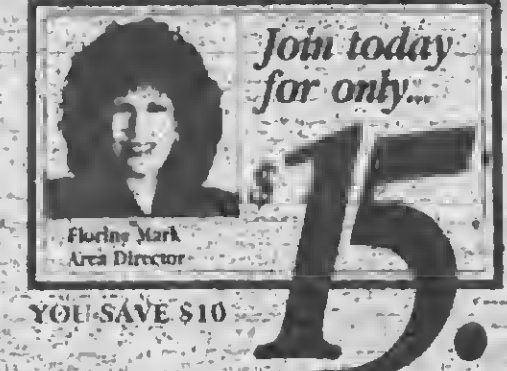

All my life I've been struggling to keep my weight down. I'd try the latest fad diet. Lose weight. Then put the pounds right back on.

Then I found Weight Watchers.

At Weight Watchers, I began to feel in control of my body. I learned that there are no forbidden foods—just forbidden amounts of food. Every day, I was feeling more comfortable with me. And I found something I thought I had lost a long time ago—My self-respect.

So call Weight Watchers and give it a try. They did for me at 35 what nobody else could do my whole life. They taught me how to eat.

Lutheran Church plans Bible School

Bible School is coming to Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix. It is centered around the theme: "Seaside with the Savior." The Bible School will be from Monday, Aug. 10 through Wednesday, Aug. 12. The time will be from 9:30 a.m. - 11:30 a.m.

Each day the children will "travel" back to the time where Jesus lived. Each child will visit a different port each day. These ports are based on ones spoken about in the New Testament. While visiting these ports, children will become acquainted with people from Bible times who knew Jesus or people who may have been involved with Him in some way. Some of the activities planned are: singing, craft-making and other fun things - too many to mention.

Children from ages three to fourth grade are invited to participate. There is no charge for attending; however, children are asked to pre-register by Aug. 3 so organizers have some idea how many students to expect.

You can either call the church at 547-9446 or 547-1062 to register. If you forget to pre-register you can still attend. See you at the "Seaside with the Savior."

Watershed Council will host annual Lake Expo

The Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council will host its Seventh Annual Lake Expo this year Saturday, July 18 on Torch Lake in Alden at the restored Alden Depot. Lake Expo is free and open to the public from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

This is a great opportunity for people to experience some of northern Michigan's water resources first hand. Events include water quality monitoring on beautiful Torch Lake, and field trips to the wetlands at Skegemog Swamp and Grass River Natural Area. There will be many displays set up focusing on water quality, fisheries and aquatic vegetation. Watershed Council staff will be on hand to answer questions about issues and programs.

In addition to these programs, the lake Expo will also feature the Antrim Soil and Water Conservation District (ASWCD) and the Wildlife Wood Carving Club of Alden. The ASWCD will provide information on preventing soil erosion and creating greenbelts along shoreline properties. The Wildlife Wood Carving Club of Alden will have on display several handsome works of art capturing the beauty of aquatic wildlife and their habitats.

"I am excited about hosting Lake Expo in Alden this year," said Michelle Patterson, Office Manager at the Watershed Council and coordinator of the event. "It will give us a chance to share some of the most beautiful water resources in Antrim County with people from throughout all of the Watershed Council's region." Lake Expo is free and open to the public. Light snacks will be provided.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

It is a rare treasure when a pastor gets to sit in the pew and let someone else minister to them; such a privilege came my way last Sunday as a good friend shared with our church family. She asked us about how many mirrors we have in our homes. She wondered how many times in the course of a day we looked in them. Then she asked us to consider what we see. She wanted us to think about the people who have shaped our image of ourselves, those who have influenced and left their mark on us.

When I look in the mirror, there is little doubt that I see my mother. Her love of words has long since become fundamental to my life. Since the addition of some "over forty" reading glasses, some have suggested the resemblance is physical too.

I can see traces of my best friend Paul. He always knew how to have fun even in the midst of a hectic work schedule. I remember him when I laugh. He had a way of lighting you up from the inside out.

If ever there is someone I would want to model as a minister, it would probably be a man named Dwight Grubbs. He has the patience of Job. Nothing ever riles him. He has a love that never seems to quit and when he offers you advice, it is worth taking.

When I look in the mirror, I see traces of every congregation that I have had the honor of pastoring. All of them have impacted my life. From Titusville, Florida where I was first called "pastor" to here in Charlevoix where I have shepherded a generation from youth to marriage.

Have you stopped to think about how you are rubbing off on other people's lives? More people than you know learn from you, see how you handle the different twists of life and how your spirit holds up. Do you realize how important it is for them to see the real role model that is at work inside of every believer? You see when you hold up a mirror to your heart of hearts, the one image we all need to see is the image of Christ. He is the one who fuels our dreams and inspires our courage. In Him, our hopes go beyond the realm of mere wishes. They come alive.

We have all been blessed with some very special people that have touched us. But the sweetest touch and the most enduring mark on every heart should come from Christ. If you sense Him at work in your life, that is wonderful. It is even better if others can look at you and see the Lord at work too.

(Rev. Bruce Hamilton is pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Hamilton and other members of the Charlevoix ministerial Association.)

Boating accidents were up last year

The number of people killed in recreational boating accidents increased for the first time in five years, the Coast Guard recently announced.

The 924 fatalities recorded in 1991 reversed a downward trend that began in 1986. The Coast Guard said the increase is primarily attributed to a warmer than usual winter that extended the boating season in many parts of the country.

Totals for 1991 were: 924 fatalities; 3,967 injuries; and 8,821 boats involved in 6,573 accidents with damage totaling $24.8 million. The Coast Guard believes that while it is notified of nearly all fatal accidents, only a small fraction of the nonfatal accidents are reported.

According to Adm. William Ecker, head of the Coast Guard's recreational boating safety program, overloading small recreational boats with people and gear continues to be a serious hazard. Capsizing and falling overboard accounted for more than 60 percent of all boating fatalities in 1991.

"Many deaths could be prevented in the smaller, open boats if people would get into the habit of wearing personal flotation devices," Ecker said. "Life jackets are comparable to seat belts in automobiles - they will not help in an accident unless you are wearing them."

"Alcohol consumption continues to be a problem," according to Ecker. "We believe excessive alcohol consumption plays a part in at least half of all fatal boating accidents," he said, and noted a recent study done for the Coast Guard indicates intoxicated boaters (people with a blood alcohol concentration of .10 percent or above) are nearly 11 times more likely to die in a boating accident than those who stay sober.

Statistics also illustrate that collisions between boats continue to be the largest single cause of personal injuries and property damage. Ecker urged boaters to learn the basics of safe boat-handling by taking one of the free safety courses provided through the state, the Coast Guard Auxiliary and the U.S. Power Squadrons.

Boaters may obtain information on these courses and on other boating safety tips by calling 1-800-368-5647 (8 a.m. to 8 p.m. eastern time, Monday thru Friday).

Children's Theatre features "Princess"

"The Princess Who Never Laughed" will be presented at 2 p.m. Friday and Saturday, July 17 and 18, at East Jordan High School by Jordan River Players, the theatrical arm of Jordan River Arts Council.

It is the first of three plays in the Council's summer Children's Theatre Festival featuring plays by East Jordan playwright Lenore Bechtel.

The play, written in rhyme, deals with a princess's problems in dealing with her father, a tyrant king - the cause of her sadness, and her mother, Queen Izzy, whose fun-loving attitude and screeching laughter can't hide the family conflicts. Children in the audience are invited in many instances throughout the play to actively participate in the dialogue.

It is directed by Lori Rotolo, who has a wealth of theatrical experience, including directing three off-off Broadway plays. Rotolo, who teaches theatre workshops for Crooked Tree Arts Council, directed "On Golden Pond" for Little Traverse Civic Theatre and portrayed Arlene in their production of "Murder at the Howard Johnsons."

King Tyrone (Howard H. Ellis), has thrown all but one of the princes in the kingdom in the dungeon because they failed to make his daughter laugh. A very nervous Prince Howard (John Jason) is the last to come to the castle to try.

Princess Mellie (Amy Mickey) wants to laugh to save the nervous prince, and her mother who laughs too much, Queen Izzy (Julie Mickey), tries to teach her how. Everyone tries to get a giggle out of Princess Mellie, including Abuckie, the king's servant (Caul Blumh); Leah, the maid (Michelle Kauska) and Justin, the jester (Danielle McCuffie).

But it is a commoner, Randall (Mark Rühling) who first brings a smile to the princess's face in the plot twist designed to delight the audience as well.

The play begins with traveling players arriving in a pageant wagon, designed by Paula Vollbach and constructed by David Waldron and Larry McCourt. The cast, in costumes designed by Michael Eddy, assembles the staging area in view of the audience in the style of Italian commedia d'ell arte.

Howard H. Ellis is the producer, Ruth Ann Pines is stage manager and Jackie Aylward is make-up manager.

The next productions of JRAC's Children's Theatre Festival will be "The Case of the Kidnapped Princesses" on July 24, 25, 31 and August 1 and "The Dancing Princesses" on August 21, 22, 28 and 29. All shows are at 2 p.m. Tickets are $3 for adults and $1 for children.

The festival is supported by a grant from Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs and a donation from East Jordan Iron Works.

Celia Christiansen Roy holds some of her needlework which is on display at the Art Tree Gallery in the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey.

Needlework exhibit on display at McCune Arts Center

Celia Christiansen Roy, of Grosse Pointe and Charlevoix, welcomed friends and guests Tuesday afternoon to the opening of her one person exhibit of weavings, embroideries and knittings at the Art Tree Gallery in the McCune Arts Center of Petoskey.

The creative uses of yarns and threads have intrigued Celia throughout her life. As she tells her story, "When my husband came home from the office he found me making curtains. He said, with teary eyes, I reminded him of his mother."

She then asked, "Do women stitch out of a sense of continuity? Do we keep the world turning by our blending of threads and fabrics or is our fate genetically determined?" She explained, "I must stitch, knit, weave, needlepoint, make clothes, re-make old clothes, unravel used sweaters and bring the yarn to new life in another sweater or a weaving."

Celia's handwork echos her words as the designs of her Norwegian-heritage gleam in every piece.

Whether in the traditional cabled sweater or the adaptation of the tradition by Celia as found in another, the lore of Scandinavia is before the observer's eye. Not content to linger too long with a particular needle art her exhibit carries you from the loom to the hoop to the needle in a beautiful journey.

The exhibit will be place at the Arts Center through July 21. The public is invited to visit between ten and five Monday through Saturday.

Portside Fair purchases displayed

The Jordan River Arts Council presents an exhibition of thirty years of acquisitions by the Portside Arts Fair artists. The opening reception will be from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, July 19 at the Jordan River Arts Center, 301 Main Street, East Jordan.

Gallery hours for this exhibition are noon to 5 p.m. Monday, July 20, through Saturday, July 25. For more information, call the Jordan River Arts Center at 536-3385.

Charlevoix Courier SUMMER TIMES

Camp McSauba troops have fun despite the weather

By Laurie Lounsbury

The weather this summer has, so far, been more appropriate for bad sledding than for good camping. Even so, the cool temperatures and rainy days haven't dampened the spirits of campers and counselors at Camp McSauba. "We're making do, and still have smiles on our faces," said Meg Fowler, the camp's director.

Camp McSauba is a day camp operated by the city at Mt. McSauba. Eight one-week sessions are offered this summer, including two special sessions for 5 to 8 year olds, and one session for 9 to 13 year olds.

Fowler, who is spending her first summer as camp director, doesn't let a little thing like bad weather deter herself or the counselors from their main objective. "The goal is to have fun," Fowler said. "Who wants to go to camp and not like it?"

Fowler has had plenty of experience making camp a fun place for kids. She was a counselor for six years at the camp before she became the director. During the school year, Fowler works as a fourth grade teacher in East Jordan. Assisting Fowler as camp counselors this year are Bob Sell, Jon Terry, David Miller, and Jennifer Sell.

The counselors all have an active interest in working with children. Meg Fowler is a 1989 graduate of Alma College, and teaches fourth grade in East Jordan. Jennifer Jennifer Sell, an MSU graduate, has secured a fourth grade teaching position in Ft. Worth, Tx. Miller is a senior at Western Michigan University, majoring in elementary education. Bob Sell is a theater major at Western Michigan, and would like to teach performing arts someday. Jon Terry is a senior at Calvin College, majoring in biology. "He's our nature expert," Fowler said.

Nature lessons are easily incorporated into the camp program, with the cooperation of the local flora and fauna. In the last session, a doe and her fawn ambled onto the hill where the deer didn't bolt, and most of the campers were able to witness the event.

Rain or shine, campers also keep busy working on arts and crafts projects, playing indoor games, baseball, going dune jumping, and building sandcastles for the big sandcastle contest.

Regular camp activities include B B gunnery, archery, swimming, and a cook-out followed with an overnight camp out on Thursday evening. Friday morning, an awards ceremony is held for the campers, giving out coveted awards for the best bingo player, longest Zing Wing Glider pilot, best B B gunner, along with awards for arts and crafts projects and sandcastle architects. No camper goes home without having been duly awarded and shined with a Camp McSauba T shirt.

The camp is perennially popular with both locals and summer resorters, and at a cost of $50 per week, it's affordable to anyone. Camp McSauba is exquisite in its simplicity and in its approach to low key, child oriented fun.

Several concerts scheduled for East Park in coming weeks

Classical guitarist Tommy Paul will be entertaining the crowd in East Park this Saturday, as the Charlevoix convention and Visitors Bureau's second summer concert series continues.

Paul will appear at 1 p.m. in the Bandshell in East Park.

Paul began his music career in 1967 and has spent the last quarter century performing all over the country. Originally from Toledo, Ohio, Tommy now calls Petoskey home.

The Convention Bureau's summer concerts are scheduled each Wednesday at 8 p.m. and Saturdays at 1 p.m. through August, except when other events are in the park.

The Charlevoix City Band plays at 8:15 p.m. Tuesdays through August 4.

"The Peacemeat Trio" will perform its mixture of Irish, Scottish, English, and American traditional music Wednesday July 22 at 8 p.m. in the Bandshell in East Park.

This steady crew from Harbor Springs includes Maureen Scott, Bob Schneider, and Dale Scott. Maureen plays the hammered dul-cimer, Appalachian style fiddle, and claw hammer banjo. Bob switches back and forth between the electric bass and lead guitar. Dale sings lead vocals, plays acoustic guitar and harmonica.

The Robert Hohner Percussion Ensemble, the next act in the Convention Bureau series, will be appearing Wednesday July 29 at 8 p.m.

Yes, given the rain it's hard to believe, but lake levels still remain below average

All of the individual lake drainage area which comprise the Great Lakes Basin received less than average precipitation during June, the 30-day outlook published by the national Weather Service projects moderate precipitation for the Great Lakes region for the month of July.

The forecast, published in the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels for the Great Lakes shows Lakes Superior and Michigan-Huron below their long-term average levels for the next six months. Lake Erie is anticipated to continue to be above its long-term average level throughout the forecast period. Lakes St. Clair and Ontario are expected to fall below their long-term average levels toward the middle and end of the forecast period, respectively.

A more detailed summary of Lakes Michigan-Huron water levels follows. All elevations are referenced to International Great Lakes Datum 1985. Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of June were at elevation 579.15 feet (176.52 meters) above the mean water level at Rimouski, Quebec, or 20 inches (51 cm.) above Chart Datum. This was about 4 inches (10 cm.) below what it was a year ago; and about the same as one month ago. The June monthly mean level of 579.16 feet (179.53 meters) was about 3 inches (8 cm.) below the long-term average for June. The lakes, however, remained about 31 inches (79 cm.) above their all-time low June monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1964. The forecast shows that at the end of July, the level of Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about the same as what it was at the end of June. The lakes are expected to complete their seasonal rise in July. The water level in December 1992, is expected to be about 6 inches (15 cm.) below the long-term average for that month, and about 5 inches (13 cm.) below what it was in 1991.

Yachting Notes

Mother Nature hasn't been very generous this summer when it comes to our Wednesday night sailing conditions.

For the ladies' race on Wednesday, July 1, she brought winds gusting around 30 knots and waves averaging about two feet (although I hear some of the sailors reported 6 to 8 foot waves). Despite the less-than-ideal conditions, Lost Vermonter, Humdinger, and Flash all reported at race time, with Lost Vermonter and Humdinger sailing a rough one-legged race (in seas too rough even for a committee boat). Flash reportedly suffered some, ah, "technical difficulties" which forced them to retreat to port.

The next ladies' race will be held on July 26 along with a couple race and a pig roast. So mark your calendars and get your crews together.

Fluky air and fog greeted sailors for the first race of the summer series on July 8. Results are:

FLEET A: 1) Pygmalion, 2) Apprentice (with the minor in possession), 3) Gotcha, 4) Flash (technical difficulties solved?)

FLEET B: 1) Lost Vermonter, 2) Tireless, 3) d. Blasen, 4) Cygnus, 5) Cabaret, 6) Original Sing, 7) Stalworth, 8) Canusa.

FLEET C: 1) Mi-Joy, 2) Humdinger, 3) HS Moisture Missile, 4) Newsense, 5) Bandit, 6) White Lightning, 7) Vantage, 8) Babe.

JAM FLEET: 1) Cheemaun, 2) Bald Eagle, 3) Booma, 4) Our Thyme.

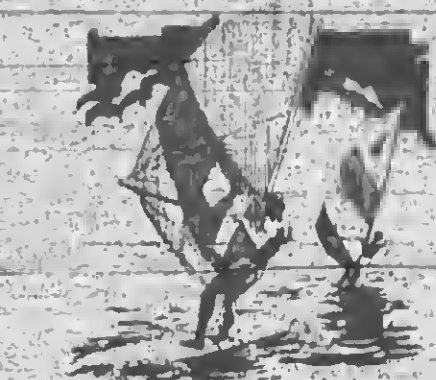

Some local sailors fared pretty well in the J22 Internationals held on Little Traverse Bay recently. Mike Dow from Traverse City, a familiar face during the Red Fox and other local regattas, captured 2nd place.

Arlene Kuhn from Boyne City and her all-female crew on Gutsy Lady finished 23rd out of 57 boats in the Gold fleet.

Our own Tom Barnes (HSMM) placed 39th; Gary Gleason (MIP), 45th; Steve Swanson (Hussy), 50th; Marty Jensen (on a J22 borrowed and named DFL for the occasion), 54th; Bruce Danly (Allons-y), 56th.

The Yacht Club still host a wine tasting party on Saturday, July 18 during its regular business hours. Then plan on getting up the next morning, Sunday, July 19 for a pancake brunch from 9 a.m. - noon. The cost for the brunch is $3.50, and the public is invited to both events.

Hope to see you there.

Big Rock names new plant engineer

Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point Plant Manager William L. Beckman has announced the appointment of Dennis R. Hughes as executive engineer at the plant.

Hughes, 50, leaves his position as director of nuclear services in the utility's Jackson headquarters to join the staff at Big Rock Point.

In his new responsibilities, Hughes will assist in the licensing and long term planning areas for the plant and also coordinate and upgrade preventive maintenance at the facility.

"The wealth of nuclear knowledge that Denny Hughes brings to his new position will assist us in our quest for continuous improvement at Big Rock Point," said Beckman.

Beckman said the appointment of Hughes also addresses a Nuclear Regulatory Commission recommendation to enhance communication and coordination in the preventive maintenance area.

In his previous position as director of nuclear services, Hughes was responsible for fuel procurement and fabrication, nuclear qualified vendor approval, quality assurance, emergency planning, nuclear budget administration and nuclear industry liaison activities.

Dennis R. Hughes

Hughes joined Consumers Power Company in 1965 as a graduate engineer at the Karn/Weadock generating complex near Bay City. He was stationed at Big Rock Point in engineering areas from 1966-68 before moving to the utility's Palisades nuclear plant near South Haven.

Hughes has held positions of increasing responsibility in plant maintenance, engineering and quality assurance at the Palisades plant and at Consumers Power's headquarters in Jackson. Hughes also has been qualified as an NRC-licensed senior reactor operator at both Palisades and Big Rock Point.

An information overload

Old record books from Chippewa County are piled high in the Micro Data office. Micro Data is in the process of transferring the information in the books on to film.

Making molehills out of mountains

(Editor's Note: The accompanying written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a former mayor and council member and currently is a member of the Charlevoix Industrial Development Committee.)

By Ralph McRae

Just three doors east of the Courier on Mason Street is Micro Data, a specialized business which places on film copies of thousands of printed pages. Many of the pages the company preserves were handwritten many years ago.

Now in its thirteenth year, the company appears to have a bright and solid future. It is a single proprietor enterprise, owned and operated by Frank Curtis. Presently, the firm is working on a mammoth job which will take several months to complete. The premises is stuffed full of hundreds of volumes of various old records from the Chippewa County Court House. In these ponderous, large and heavily bound volumes are the seemingly ancient hand-written official records of that county. The records include tax lists, property exchanges, register of deeds and treasury transactions etc.

Evidently, the Chippewa County people were running out of space to store these historically important documents. Each book is dated and titled and contains several hundred pages of heavy 14 inch by 20 inch paper. The books are stacked halfway to Micro Data's ceiling and must weigh tons.

Placing the information from the books on film requires that the pages be removed and fed through cameras. The cameras record the page on a thin strip of film. Three workers are able to handle the entire process. One of them prys apart the metal tabs that bind the pages. The volumes are ruggedly constructed and getting them to part company with the individual pages is no small task.

Another employee takes the loose sheets and feeds them through a narrow slot in the rotary microfilm camera. On an average day, 10,000 pages of material can be processed. Both sides of a sheet of paper can be reproduced on film within two seconds. The strips of film are about one-half inch wide and 100 feet long.

After being exposed, the spool of film goes into a developing processor for about 20 minutes. After it is developed, the film is run through a reader-printer to check the final results.

The space saved by putting the documents on film is impressive. Ninety-eight shelves of huge books can be converted into film occupying less than two shelves. As Curtis describes it, he makes mole hills out of mountains.

After the records on put on film, the original documents can either be shredded and destroyed or, if they have historical value, kept.

In addition to the rotary cameras, there are also planetary cameras. These are placed above the material to be photographed and can be raised and lowered. The photographing process is slower with the planetary cameras, but less time is needed to prepare the pages for photographing. The planetary camera can place several pages of court records on a four by six inch card.

Micro Data has three planetary copiers, ranging from small to map size. The main suppliers of the filming equipment are Kodak, Minolta, 3M and Bell & Howell. The principal producers of film are Kodak, Fuji and Agfa. Other companies have been unable to match the standards of these three and have gone out of business.

If properly stored, the film will last for many years. Excessive heat and moisture will shorten the film's life. Two copies are made of each book. One copy is placed in vaults off the premises of the user. The other copy is available for day-to-day use.

Micro Data is the only firm of its type in Michigan north of Traverse City. Among the firm's clients are Charlevoix, Emmet and Osego Counties. They also have private enterprise clients. More and more businesses are using filming services.

Curtis does not advertise, but depends on referrals and personal contact with potential customers. Some of his training for this highly technical occupation came from previous employment, but most came through the makers of the equipment and film. Curtis plans to expand his operation some time in the future in order to handle all of the potential business within his 100 mile radius market area.

Grant will improve preschool program

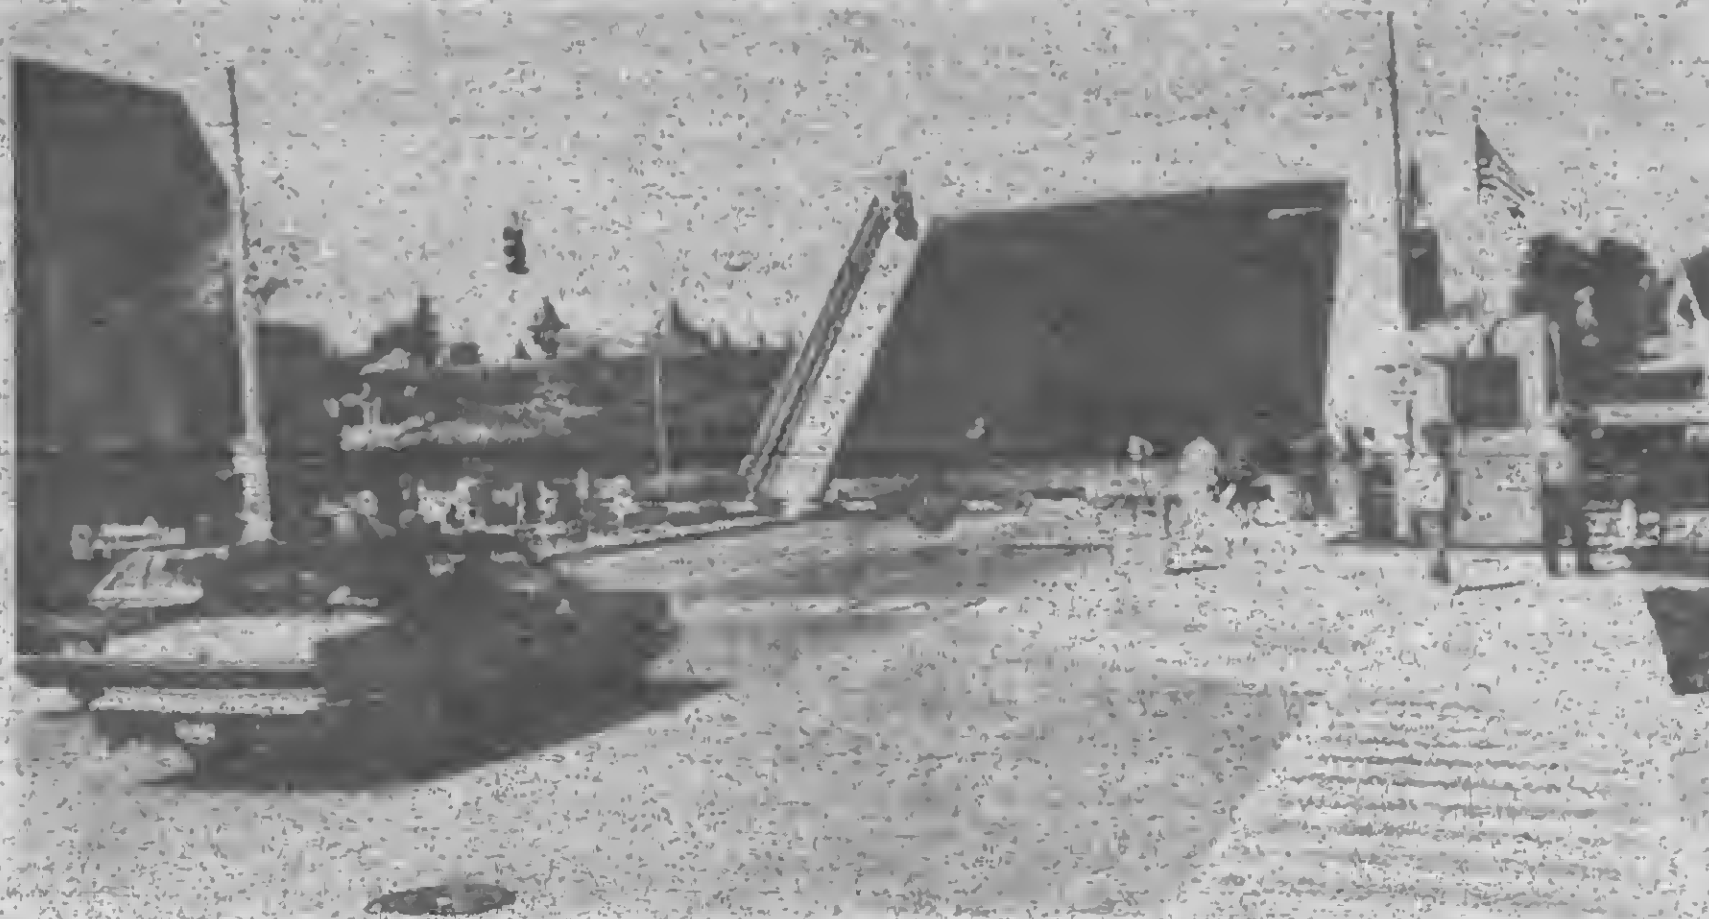

The Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District has received a three year grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation to improve children's success in school through model school readiness efforts. Char-Em's Be-Four School Project, which provides home-based educational services to parents prior to school entry, will be part of a Kellogg Foundation study of model school readiness programs. Funds from the Foundation will expand and improve services to families, as well as provide training opportunities for project staff.

"We believe that Kellogg's recognition of our program will intensify local school readiness efforts," commented Jan Fowler, Program Coordinator of Be-Four.

"The local districts participating in the project are committed to see the program succeed and proud of Kellogg's recognition of our efforts over the past two years."

The mission of the Be-Four School Project is to provide early intervention services to identified eligible children, increasing school success for the child by improving the skills and knowledge of the parent. The project departs dramatically from the traditional classroom concept of school and provides services through a program of home visitations. It is operated by Char-Em ISD in a consortium of local school districts including Boyne Falls, Boyne City, Littlefield, Pellston, Central Lake, Ellsworth, East Jordan, Petoskey and Charlevoix.

The W.K. Kellogg Foundation was established in 1930 to "help people help themselves." As a private grantmaking foundation, it provides seed money to organizations and institutions that have identified problems and have designed constructive action programs aimed at solutions. A majority of the Foundations' grantmaking is focused on the areas of youth, leadership, philanthropy and volunteerism; community-based, problem-focused health services; higher education; food systems; rural development; groundwater resources (in the Great Lakes area); and economic development (in Michigan). Programming priorities concentrate grants in the United States, Latin America and the Caribbean, and southern Africa.

It is the season for the bridge to stop traffic. During the past week, automobile traffic has increased, moving toward its summer peak. Sunday afternoon, a freighter went through the channel and backed up traffic nearly to St. Mary's Church.

Park Avenue fire extinguished

The Charlevoix City Fire Department was called to the Lila Arvilla residence at Park Avenue at 4:20 p.m. July 7. A pile of brush was burning on the driveway next to the house and caught some siding on fire and caused the basement to become smokey. A person at a neighbor's home had noticed the problem and used a hose to bring the fire under control prior to the fire department's arrival. The fire department finished extinguishing the fire. Damage to the home was limited.

In other matters, the city ambulance was called out seven times last week. Five of those runs were of an emergency nature and two were patient transfers. At 10:15 a.m., July 8 the ambulance was called to a car accident on Old U.S. 31 North. Two young women were taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital with minor injuries. Shortly before 1 a.m., July 10 the ambulance was dispatched to a two-car accident at the corner of U.S. 31 and Boyne City Road. One person was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital.

CHARLEVOIX THREATENED WITH LOSS OF 87 YEARS OF BANK COMPETITION

For over 87 years the citizens of Charlevoix enjoyed the benefit of healthy competition between their two community banks, Charlevoix County State Bank and First State Bank of Charlevoix. Last year a bank holding company based in Jackson, Michigan purchased County Bank from its local ownership. That same Jackson-based holding company (CB Financial Corporation) is now attempting to purchase First State Bank and merge the two banks. If the Jackson bankers don't approve your mortgage or provide the rates, terms and service you are used to getting... where do you turn? The Jackson bankers bought County Bank and now are trying to acquire one of their competitors, First State Bank. Do you think they will recover their investments by offering better rates and service... or by:

- increasing your cost of borrowing
- increasing your rate of interest
- firing the "excess" help
- increasing your cost of service
- decreasing their level of service

We believe the loss of 87 years of competition could hurt everyone with a stake in Charlevoix's future. In our opinion, if a community is served by only 1 bank - that bank could exercise a great degree of control over how well other small businesses in town prosper - or fail. We believe that that bank's "choice" of grocery, barber, hardware store, etc. may do well - but their competitors may be hurt.

I'M VERY SORRY, BUT MY BOSS IN JACKSON WON'T APPROVE YOUR LOAN REQUEST

Small business owners and customers of Charlevoix's community banks are reliant on their local banker's first hand knowledge of their reputation and the seasonal nature of Charlevoix business.

We believe vital banking decisions that were made by local bankers for over 87 years may be made by strangers now and in the future. In our opinion, it is possible that no longer will a local banker, who knows you and your business, have the authority to provide personalized banking services based upon a relationship of trust and understanding. Do you want strangers passing judgment on decisions that are important to you?

WE STILL HAVE TIME TO STOP THIS TRAGEDY

The Federal Reserve Board can reject a proposed bank purchase that harms competition. But you must act now. Please write to the Federal Reserve Board before Friday, July 24th and tell them your opinions. Your letters should be addressed to:

Ms. Alicia Williams
Community Affairs Officer
Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago

If the Federal Reserve Board receives comments before Friday, July 24th, it can schedule a public hearing to be held in Charlevoix.

IF YOU NEED ASSISTANCE OR MORE INFORMATION...

Our office hours are Monday through Friday - 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

You can stop in at our office and:

- Sign a petition that will be delivered to the Federal Reserve Bank objecting to the merger and requesting a public hearing to be scheduled in Charlevoix.

- Obtain our assistance in typing or in mailing your letter to the Federal Reserve Bank by Federal Express.

This assistance is provided at no charge.

Resources Planning Corporation owners, fifth generation Charlevoix residents, want to preserve the competition between our banks and if possible, maintain local ownership of First State Bank. RPC's owners made an offer to purchase First State Bank in order to resell the Bank shares to any other local residents who wanted to buy - in numbers as small as one share for each resident of Charlevoix - at no profit to these bidders. It is the hope of RPC's owners that the citizens of Charlevoix will preserve control over their bank - and their financial future.

Three candidates seek one seat in city's first ward

By L. Scott Swanson

It's matter of quality rather than quantity. Although there are three Charlevoix City Council seats are up for election this year, there is only one race. But that one race is a good one.

In Charlevoix's first ward, incumbent council member Bill Haggard is being challenged by former county commissioner Don Meggison and former councilman and mayor Ralph McRae. Mayor Dave Novotny, second ward councilman Ted Feller and third ward councilmember Jackie Cross are running unopposed for re-election.

Meggison served on the

Don Meggison

Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners from 1973 to 1982.

"My desire to seek a seat on the City Council comes from my observation of their actions in recent years," he says. "There is a total lack of legitimate concern by the council and administration toward the overall betterment of the City at a realistic cost."

Some of the city's current strong points according to Meggison are the electrical and water system improvements along with the infrastructure work on the streets and sewers. Meggison criticizes the present city administration and council for hiring people from outside of the city limits to do city work.

"We have people qualified in town, but the administration sees it different," Meggison says. "This had better change."

Meggison feels that infrastructure work can be done more economically. He said that if he is elected to the council he would favor analyzing construction work at the end of the season to see "how we can better the infrastructure work and keep the cost at a realistic figure." He noted that, "Money doesn't grow on trees."

McRae served on the city council as a councilman in 1974 and '75 and as mayor in 1987 and '88.

"I have the qualities to properly represent all of the taxpayers in the first ward," he says. "My previous experiences make me aware of the various problems of the whole community." He notes that in the past he has been instrumental in initiating ideas which resulted in the establishment of permanent institutions which have benefitted the general public.

As a community strong point, McRae said, "Our city continues to become more beautiful every year."

9-1-1 demonstration

The proposed 9-1-1 emergency dispatch system was demonstrated at City Hall Monday. Discussing the system are (from left) county employees Carla Spencer, Holly Patenge and Motorola employee Rich Nelson. Voters in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties will decide at the Aug. 4 election whether or not the area will have a regional 9-1-1 program.

Charles Meier (left) and Dale Boss stand in front of the Venetian Queen float and its latest addition, a mirrored carousel. Boss and Meier can't be accused of spending exorbitantly when they created the carousel. With the exception of an electric motor donated by Lee Moerland, the carousel was constructed with bailing wire, an old bicycle tire, and any other discarded scrap that they could lay their hands on. ...first ward has three-man council race

Every area of our town takes great pride in making itself more attractive. The city administration is constantly upgrading the infrastructure including sidewalks, street paving, park improvements and underground facilities. Few cities of our size have so much to offer. (I) have traveled through numerous countries and have never seen a more beautiful place. That is why Bridge Street sidewalks are crowded on summer weekends.

In regard to things which need to be improved, McRae would like to see the city council be more assertive. "The council should be more assertive and be more personally involved in presenting ideas of its own," he said. "It appears they pass or reject what is given them. The council should have more input in setting the agenda."

McRae would like to establish committees to involve more people, particularly retired people, in the process of governing the community.

"No one person can be an expert on every facet of our local government," he contends. "In our community, we have many retired persons who have had very successful lives. Some of these talented persons could be used to guide and advise the city's administrative staff."

For example, they could be useful as members of an airport commission. The airport, with its 200 acres, runways, terminal, miscellaneous buildings and its upcoming expansion has a value close to 10 million dollars. It should be given special attention. The whole airport system needs to be better controlled and held accountable in all of its operations. The city should receive more income from it. It should produce much more income than received from the marina. Adjoining townships and the county should budget some funds toward maintaining the present standards of the airport.

McRae also wants to look at the future expansion of city operated utility services.

The growing areas surrounding our town will be needing more services from our three utility systems. In the near future a Utility Board of five members could be responsible for the upcoming expansions. The more people involved the better our city government will be. The council and city staff need more information to assist them in making important decisions. Unfortunately, the city administrator does not believe in committees. Other cities depend on them to supply additional facts.

The City Charter mandates that each of the three utilities have a back-up reserve fund. A few years ago it was uncovered that the sewer department fell far short of having the required fund amount. Consequently, rates were increased to bring the funds up to the proper level. Presently, it has several times the dollars required. Sewer charges now should be put back to their former rates. Especially, because of the impending increase in the electrical rates.

"A select group of retired persons should be appointed to thoroughly analyze and finalize ways to lessen the traffic congestion on Bridge Street. A solution would be appreciated by all."

Efforts to retain present manufacturing firms and to induce others to locate here should not be hindered or deterred by excessive privilege fees. Prospective manufacturers, through their payrolls, would greatly increase the prosperity of our community. The impact from a hundred new workers would be tremendous.

Haggard has been a first ward council representative for the past six years.

"I seek re-election in an effort to continue the progress the City is making in areas such as infrastructure improvements, retention of our job base and overall community improvement," Haggard said.

He feels some of the City's strengths are: excellent recreational facilities; quality City services; potential for industrial expansion at the industrial park; and excellent working relationships with neighboring townships.

"An area he feels the City needs to work on is affordable housing. There is still a lack of affordable housing for senior citizens and young persons with moderate incomes," he noted.

If he is re-elected, Haggard will continue to support programs currently in progress.

"If it ain't broke, don't fix it," he commented. "I want to see current programs continued. I.e.: four mills for infrastructure; airport expansion/improvement; continued upgrading of our parks, golf course, ski hill and other recreational facilities. I would like to see the City encourage affordable housing."

Historical Society to re-enact court hearing from 1960

The Charlevoix Historical Society will stage a re-enactment of a Nov. 4, 1960 Charlevoix Circuit Court hearing concerning an attempted break-in at the old Charlevoix Oil Company which was located just north of the bridge on the lot currently occupied by Points North.

The re-enactment will begin at 7:30 p.m., Aug. 5 at the Charlevoix County Court House. This is the third consecutive year that members of the Historical Society have re-enacted a Charlevoix Court Hearing from the past. Playing roles in this year's re-enactment will be: Louis Edwards, Roy C. Hayes, Lou Orlovski, George Lusk, Bud Kohler, Bill Price, Kristen Reynolds and Geoffrey Reynolds.

Editorial

Election promises to be interesting

The Aug. 4 primary election rapidly approaches and it should be a big draw this year. There are three particularly interesting local races.

Voters in Charlevoix's first city council ward face an interesting decision. Incumbent councilman Bill Haggard is being challenged by former county commissioner Don Meggison and former mayor and city councilman Ralph McRae. Each of the three then has a lengthy background in public service. Meggison and Haggard have both served on area volunteer fire departments. McRae has been involved with...well, perhaps it would be better to ask what civic project McRae hasn't been involved with. The choice first ward voters make will offer an insight into the future of city politics. Haggard has played an integral role in many current city projects, i.e., Downtown Development Authority, infrastructure repair program and fire department restructuring. Meggison and McRae are expressing dissatisfaction with the direction the council has taken in recent years. The decision first ward voters make could indicate whether the city council will continue on its current path or take a new direction in coming years. The top two vote recipients in the Aug. 4 primary will face each other in the November general election.

On the county level, two races stand out: ballot proposals A and B for the establishment of a 9-1-1 emergency dispatch system; and the race for prosecuting attorney.

The 9-1-1 issue is a tough call. Many people are likely to be wavering right up until they enter the voting booth.

Proposal A asks for one mill for two years to upgrade the radios of emergency service departments and set up the 9-1-1 dispatch center. A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of a property's state equalized value. One mill levied for two years levied over both Charlevoix and Emmet Counties is expected to generate about $2.9 million. That's the up front cost to get 9-1-1 off the ground.

Proposal B would place an added charge of between $2 and $2.50 a month on people's phone bill to pay for the operational cost of 9-1-1. Where the one mill tax increase would expire after two years, the added phone charge has no expiration date.

Without a doubt, the 9-1-1 system has its virtues. It would provide a uniform emergency phone number that's easy to remember and easy to teach children. It would eliminate the potential for confusion and improve, at least to some degree, the response time of emergency service personnel. It would also provide emergency personnel with advance information about what they are likely to encounter upon arriving at an emergency scene. But the 9-1-1 program also has one big drawback. And that is cost. Charlevoix and Emmet Counties have tried to manage that cost by forming a regional system, but the cost of the program is still going to be high. Establishing a 9-1-1 system will mean establishing a whole new county bureaucracy which will employ approximately 16 people. It will mean establishing a surcharge on each telephone in both counties. A surcharge on everybody's telephone is basically a new form of taxation. For Charlevoix City residents that charge would be about $2.40 a month. A little math tells you that's close to $30 a year. And that's if you only have one phone line. If you're a business person and have multiple phone lines, then it's more. And that $30 a year is on top of all the other taxes and odds and ends you have to pay for. And once the 9-1-1 program is established, those $30 a year payments will go on and on with no end in sight. And you might never even need to dial that number. But what if you did? That's what voters must weigh some time between now and the time they pull the handle in the voting booth.

In order for the 9-1-1 system to be initiated, both proposals A and B must pass in both Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

The county prosecutor's race has shaped up to be a fascinating campaign. Incumbent Kraag Lieberman is being challenged by Boyne City attorney Richard May. Both candidates have their strengths and weaknesses. Lieberman has 13 years of experience as Charlevoix County prosecutor, but he has somehow managed to alienate several area law enforcement officers. Prior to moving to northern Michigan, May worked in the Ingham County Prosecutor's office. Although his previous work in prosecution seems to speak well of his abilities, his previous experience as an elected official leaves something to be desired. While May was President of the Boyne City School Board, the board put Boyne City School voters in a position of approving higher taxes or losing school busing. It was a shameful power play in which the board attempted to bully voters into forking over more money. When voters initially refused to cough up the money, busing stopped. And a recall effort started. May's term on the school board expired and he did not end up being recalled. That was more than three years ago, but the Boyne City school system's recent difficulty in passing millage proposals would seem to indicate that the bad taste remains in the mouths of many voters to this day.

FAMILY

Gary Crosby is first speaker in awareness series

Launching the fifth season of the Alcohol and Drug Awareness Hour is Gary Crosby, the actor/son of Bing Crosby.

Crosby, and the other speakers who will be in Petoskey during the six-week program, will share their stories and experiences, personal and/or professional, to illustrate the dangers of abusing alcohol and other drugs.

The addict, the family and the employer and co-worker will each find programs in the series to better help them understand addiction.

The Alcohol and Drug Awareness Hour (ADAH) is a not-for-profit organization run by people who are involved in one way or another with alcohol or drug abuse. The purpose of the annual series of programs is to provide information and to educate the public about the use, misuse and abuse of mind-altering chemicals.

The series is at 9 a.m. for six consecutive Saturdays beginning July 25, at the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey. Coffee and donuts are available from 9 a.m. to 9:30 a.m., the program is from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. and followed by a question and answer period. Nursery care is available at the Presbyterian Church across the street.

There is no charge to attend the programs or the nursery, although free-will donations are appreciated.

In his July 25 presentation, "What It Was Like Then, What It Is Like Now," Crosby will discuss his experiences.

Crosby, 58, has been sober for 10 years. He first went on the wagon in 1961, but without the benefit of Alcoholics Anonymous' 12-step programs. In 1981 he had triple bypass surgery and was told by his doctor to adjust his attitude. That's when he found AA.

Now, Crosby says he has turned his life over to God. As quoted in "The Desert Sun," Crosby said, "I'm only in control of the footwork in my life. God is in control of the results."

Marjorie MacArthur and Juan Carlos Veiga were married May 23 at the Fairlington Presbyterian Church in Alexandria, Virginia. One hundred and twenty-five guests attended the wedding which took place in a candlelit church decorated with English garden flowers.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents, Bruce and Barbara MacArthur of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Miquel and the late Maria Veiga of Miami, Florida.

Rev. Fred Crane Lynn officiated the double ring ceremony. The bride wore a Christos designed silk shantung gown with a sweetheart neckline, basque waist and deep-V back. The bodice was trimmed in seed pearls. Flowers for the bride were lily-of-the-valley, white lilies and lavender freesia.

Nancy MacArthur Smith, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She also sang at the wedding, accompanied by cellist, Suzanne Barber Veiga.

Bridesmaids were Kelli Walton and Janice Neumyer. The wore iris chiffon dresses designed by Walters and Walters. They carried flower arrangements by Marchand's of Alexandria. The arrangements included purple anemones and sony roses.

Helen Elizabeth Smith, niece of the bride, served as flower girl. She wore a white silk dress trimmed with purple violets.

Louis Veiga, brother of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Armando Garrido and Jorge San Miguel.

Prior to the wedding, a rehearsal dinner was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Miguel Veiga at Portner's Restaurant in Alexandria. Following the wedding, the bride's parents hosted a reception at the Army Navy Country Club in Arlington, Virginia.

Following a trip to The Homestead in Hot Springs, Virginia, the couple will be at home in Annandale, Virginia. Both are employed at Bell Atlantic Corporation.

Patrick Bunce challenges George Lasater

Bunce feels he can improve sheriff's department administration

Patrick Bunce is challenging incumbent Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater. During approximately the past decade, Bunce has worked in either a security or law enforcement capacity for five northern Michigan communities. At each stop along the way, he has had both detractors and supporters.

The five law enforcement departments where Bunce has been employed have been marked by controversy. Bunce maintains that in more than one instance he was not at the center of the controversy, but that matters simply encompassed the law enforcement department while he was there. As an example, Bunce cites his service with the Mancelona police department. Bunce was hired in Mancelona prior to receiving state certification as a police officer. Following a controversy involving the Mancelona Village Council and the police chief, Robert Curus, the village decided to require all village police officers to be certified.

"My wife and I discussed it and felt I should seek employment elsewhere," Bunce said of his decision to leave the Mancelona Police Department.

Bunce then went to work in South Arm Township, (the township adjacent to East Jordan). His duties in South Arm Township included security checks in industrial areas, at the airport, public access sites and on private property when requested. While employed by South Arm Township, Bunce attended a police academy and completed the training necessary to become a certified police officer. In order to maintain his certification upon completion of his academy work, it was necessary for him to be hired as a fully empowered police officer. It was his understanding that the township would do that, but there was a disagreement. That disagreement eventually led to Bunce employing an attorney in order to recover out of pocket training expenses. The township reimbursed money to Bunce and to the Michigan Law Enforcement Officers Training Council.

After leaving South Arm Township, Bunce became a police officer in Lake City. As Bunce explains that situation, "There was no disagreement with Lake City nor controversy with the Council. The controversy was with bar owners and others who sold alcoholic beverages to minors or intoxicated persons. Shortly after my arrival in Lake City, the people of the community realized drunk driving should not be tolerated. Individuals that held various liquor licenses felt this hurt their business. They then pressured the council into enacting me to resign. The offer, combined with death threats upon myself and family, made the financial arrangement impossible to refuse. I resigned and to this day they (Lake City) have not since hired a police officer."

Bunce then worked as police officer for Alanson and Pellston. In Pellston he came in conflict with Mayor Randy Bricker. Bunce alleges

Lasater seeks fifth four-year term as Charlevoix County Sheriff

When Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater was asked to list his most significant accomplishments during his 16 years in office, he offered a list containing 20 items. If Lasater is successful in his quest for a fifth term in office, he will have been the Charlevoix County Sheriff for 20 years at the end of that term.

Among the accomplishments he listed were: establishing a substation in Boyne Falls and upgrading the substation on Beaver Island; coordinating a county wide drug investigation and working on the establishment of the Charlevoix County Citizens Grand Jury; establishing a Sheriff's Auxiliary and Sheriff's Mounted Horse Auxiliary for search and rescue; established a cadet program for high school seniors interested in a criminal justice career; worked to professionalize the Sheriff's Department, including 6,900 hours of officer training in the last 16 years.

Asked to name an area in which he wishes he could have accomplished more, he replied, "If financial funding was available, I wish I could have reinstated our tracking dog program after our first tracking dog died. I will make this a goal for my next four year term."

In regard to his strong points as sheriff, Lasater listed: leadership and the ability to work with multiple agencies; treating citizens in the same manner that he would like to be treated; and being honest with the citizens he serves.

"It is imperative that elected officials keep their promises," Lasater said. "I am proud to state that, with the help of fellow officers, commissioners, township officials, volunteers and citizens, I have been able to accomplish all of the goals promised for each of my previous elections."

Lasater and his challenger, Patrick Bunce, are essentially in agreement that the biggest challenge facing the sheriff's department in coming years is increased activity and responsibilities. Lasater noted that when he took office in 1976 the average jail population was five inmates and the number of complaints for the year was 790. In 1992, those numbers are expected to be an average of 24 inmates and approximately

I'm 35 years old and I just learned how to eat.

Losing weight was the hardest thing I've ever done. I tried everything... except eating right!

All my life I've been struggling to keep my weight down. I'd try the latest fad diet. Lose weight. Then put the pounds right back on.

Then I found Weight Watchers.

At Weight Watchers, I began to feel in control of my body. I learned that there are no forbidden foods — just forbidden amounts of food. Every day, I was feeling more comfortable with me. And I found something I thought I had lost a long time ago. My self-respect.

So call Weight Watchers and give it a try. They did for me at 35 what nobody else could do my whole life. They taught me how to eat.

...sheriff's challenger outlines plans

that there were improprieties in Bricker's actions as mayor and the conflict resulted because Bunce knew of those improprieties. Bunce maintains that even though he had a good working relationship with the council, Bricker wrote the police department out of the budget. According to Bunce that led to a lawsuit, not a lawsuit which he initiated, but a lawsuit initiated by citizens of the village in an effort to encourage Bricker and the Council to re-establish a police department. "The village realized their error and settled out of court," Bunce said.

After the Pellston matter was resolved, Bunce no longer worked in Pellston, but continued to work in Alanson until that police department was dissolved. Bunce said of that situation, "The Village of Alanson did in fact dissolve the police department and its two police positions, stating lack of funding as the reason. No severance pay was paid to either officer. The controversy was not with the council as a (whole) governing body, but with specific individual members. Some members felt themselves, relatives and friends of theirs were exempt and above the law. When these people were arrested or cited, they sought various means to terminate the officer or officers involved."

When initially asked about the above issues, Bunce said he was reluctant to respond because he doesn't feel the issues are pertinent to the sheriff's race and because he feels that when people defend themselves, it tends to make them appear guilty. Despite his initial reluctance, after considering the matter, he chose to address the issues.

Bunce feels his greatest strength as a candidate is his administrative ability. He said his educational background includes administrative courses and that he would like to streamline the sheriff's department administration.

Asked what he feels are the greatest challenges facing the sheriff's department in coming years, Bunce replied, "The influx of people into the area from the southern part of the state creating more criminal activity as well as traffic problems. We need more more than an Andy Mayberry type sheriff."

Bunce said that if he is elected sheriff, the people of Charlevoix County can expect to see the following things:

1. The County would have (as sheriff) a Michigan State Police certified police officer through the Michigan Law Enforcement Officers Training Council.
2. Bunce would only use trained crime scene investigators on felony cases.
3. The sheriff's department would give full cooperation to and request, when needed, the services of the Michigan State Police and local law enforcement agencies, not only in criminal investigations, but also in the patrol of county roadways.

4. The sheriff's department will have more than one patrol vehicle on the road after midnight.

5. The department will respond more quickly to citizen complaints.

6. Every citizen would be treated with the same courtesy and respect regardless of their occupation, position or social standing in the community.

7. The department will be accountable to the people of the county as well as providing solutions and answers to the concerns of the public.

8. The sheriff will not discourage, but will encourage, townships to appoint their own officers to work with existing law enforcement agencies as a reserve deputy or township police officer.

9. The sheriff's department will install community outreach and crime prevention programs, both public and private.

11,000 complaints.

"Considering these increases the sheriff's office has only increased officers by one deputy sheriff and two communication/security officers," Lasater explained. "The challenge will be to maintain our level of service with our staff as responsibilities increase. Fortunately for the citizens of Charlevoix County, we have surrounded the sheriff's office with some of the best and most capable men and women that any sheriff would hope to have."

As to what voters can anticipate should Lasater be re-elected, he listed the following items:

- Continuation of programs and services started during the first 16 years as sheriff.
- Continued aggressive professional law enforcement in Charlevoix County.
- Full time sheriff's investigation to follow up on complaints and investigation of drug trafficking in Charlevoix County.

- Increased efforts and programs for victims' rights.
- Increased efforts on Neighborhood Watch programs county wide.

- Re-establish tracking dog program.
- Expand services to sheriff's substations.
- Assist with implementing 911 if it is approved by taxpayers of Charlevoix County.

Charlevoix Courier SUMMER TIMES

Piano bars never lose their special appeal

By Laurie Lounsbury

Sam, the piano player in the movie "Casablanca," may have said it best in the form of that famous lyric, "Moonlight and lovesongs, never out of date."

Musical trends have come and gone, but moonlight, lovesongs, and piano lounges have endured for years and are anything but out of date today. The resurgent popularity of piano lounge entertainment is evident in Charlevoix this summer as the town plays host to some of the finest piano lounge talent in northern Michigan.

On the north side of town, the Argonne offers up a plentiful helping of Magic with Maggie and Murray. Maggie Fielder and Bob Murray are a romantic singing duo capable of rivaling Bogey and Bergman in the department of sizzling chemistry. Fate brought the two together when Fielder was performing in a smoky nightclub, launching into a solo version of the duet, "Somewhere Out There," wishing she had a partner to sing the male part of the song, when a faceless male voice joined her from the back of the room. "I like it," Fielder remembers thinking when she heard the voice. "I like it a lot," she thought, when Murray appeared in front of her. When Fielder's regular pianist partner fell ill shortly after that initial meeting, Fielder enlisted Murray to fill in. "He came in and worked two hours with me, and I knew we'd be together forever from then on," Fielder recalls. After two years, the sparks still fly between the vibrant Fielder and the disarmingly boyish Murray. Their repertoire ranges from pop standards to torch and contemporary hits.

Fielder and Murray are adept at drawing the patrons into the show. The leggy Fielder will sashay through the tables of patrons, delivering the saucy lyrics. "Don't you feel my leg," to birthday gents, while Murray charms the ladies with his playful, Lou Rawley delivery of "Lady Love."

Tuesdays through Saturdays at the Argonne, Fielder and Murray frequently spin their magic around wide-eyed children, when they gear their early sets for family diners. Kids crowd up on the ledge behind Murray and watch with fascination as he duplicates the sound of drums and a bass with his hi tech keyboard, creating the audio illusion of a three piece band. "It's a family restaurant," Fielder said. "Kids can come and be entertained here, they can even be part of the act."

Magic with Maggie and Murray perform at the Argonne Tuesday through Thursday from 6 p.m. until 10 p.m., and Friday and Saturday from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. "Actually, we play 'till the last customer is gone," Fielder said with an ingenuous smile.

On the other side of town, the Grey Gables features two regular piano entertainers and a plethora of singers, both amateur and professional. Tom "Tink" Kaufman performs Wednesday through Saturday nights, and Steve Sandner provides the Sunday evening entertainment.

Kaufman took his seat at the Grey Gables' piano bench more than five years ago, picking up the notes where the popular (Al Breezy) Breezy left off. A spare microphone always rests on the piano bar, luring patrons to join Kaufman in song. When dangling a mike in front of would-be singers isn't enough, quick witted Kaufman will cajole them into a song with his banter, although encouragement is infrequently necessary. Kaufman embraces the musical participation of amateurs and professionals, and is usually provided with a steady stream of both. On any given night, Cliff Jones or Darrin Olach may drop in to lend some saxophone accompaniment. Bob Murray might slide onto the piano bench and say, "Move over, I'm driving," while Maggie sings, or a talented amateur might grab the mike and do a convincing impression of Frank Sinatra.

When left to his own devices, Kaufman will dip into his eclectic repertoire, and amuse the crowd with a ditty called "Popsicle Toes", or cater to romantic couples with Nat King Cole's "Unforgettable." Kaufman is a perennial crowd pleaser, with his musical bag of tricks and snappy repartee. And if that's not enough, he'll really shake things up by riding a unicycle down the crowded aisle from the dining room to his piano.

After Kaufman has left you breathless on a Saturday night, you can relax and settle in at the piano bar Sunday night with the warm, low key Steve Sandner. Sandner, who started playing piano at the age of four, has a repertoire that flows as endlessly as an artesian well. His father was a professional piano player, so Sandner admits, "I learned the music just by being around it." He jokingly added, "I had a tall tree that grew sheet music, and when I needed new songs, I'd just pick one."

Don't even think about playing Stump The Band with Sandner. Chances are good that any song you dredge out of the far recesses of your memory, Sandner will know. If you ask for Cole Porter, Sandner will glide into "Just One of Those Things" without missing a beat. If you're yearning for torch, Sandner will deliver "I Got It Bad And That Ain't Good" in his clear, mellifluous voice that's reminiscent of a '40s crooner. He'll even will-

Venetian queens to ride on two floats

By Laurie Lounsbury

Venetian Queens, past and present, will be traveling in a pack this year as they make their way down the parade route in this year's Venetian Parade. Dale Boss and the Charlevoix petunia truck will be pulling not one, but two floats behind it. The first float, a 40 year old vintage float, will carry all of the former Venetian Queens. The second float will have this year's Venetian Queen and her court.

Negotiating the parade route with two floats in tow could be tricky at best, but Boss is ready to assume the challenge. "Sounds crazy, but you've got to be crazy to do this anyway," he said.

Boss has put 4,500 miles on the petunia truck, and only 500 of those miles have been logged watering petunias. The other 4,000 miles have been accumulated in the process of driving the truck and the Venetian float to parades all over the state. Boss figures the Charlevoix Venetian float has been viewed by more than three million people. He'll get up at three in the morning to drive to a big parade that will draw 100,000 people, just so Charlevoix will be represented. "I'm out there advertising Charlevoix, and I want to get the biggest bang for the buck," Boss said.

Boss gets assistance setting up the float and driving to parades from Charles Meier, an enthusiastic 16 year old Charlevoix resident. Meier works as caretaker for the city's parks, and spends much of his free time helping Boss maintain and repair the truck and float. "This kid can do anything," Boss said in praise of Meier. "He's 16, and has more knowledge than most 35-year-olds."

Always looking for ways to improve the float, Boss has added a glass, mirrored carousel to the float this year. Starting with just one electric motor to make the carousel spin, Boss, Lee Moerland, and Meier dug up scrap metal, old bicycle tires, and any other junk they could find to mystifyingly create the lovely carousel. The carousel bears a slogan that is close to Boss's heart: "Smile, Be happy." Boss is driven by a desire to give people a reason to smile and be happy. "Putting smiles on people's faces, that's my specialty," Boss said.

All of Boss's efforts to promote Charlevoix are voluntary. His reason for wanting to volunteer so much of his time is sincere and simple. "I love Charlevoix, and I want people to come see our town, and I want to help people who have a business in town to be able to make a living and stay here year 'round. We're all in this boat together, so we have to help each other."

Street parade to be one of the best

This year's Venetian Street Parade will feature more than half a dozen marching bands in addition to approximately 70 other entries. As the parade day drew near, chairman Joe Trojanek reported that things were falling into place for a nice parade this year. Sharing the parade's grand marshal responsibilities will be Ray Kipke and Doris Durance.

The parade will begin with a precision fly over by the aircraft of Island Airways at 11 a.m. Saturday morning. Several thousand people are expected to be lining Bridge Street between Carpenter Street and Clinton Street to view the parade.

People who wish to both watch and listen to the parade may tune into WMKT A.M. 1270 and hear the parade being broadcast. The station will also be broadcasting patriotic music in conjunction with the fireworks Saturday evening.

Several bands from Friday evening's drum and bugle corps pageant will be spending the night in Charlevoix so that they may march in the Saturday morning parade. The drum and bugle pageant will begin at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the high school's Kipke Field. Tickets for the event are available at the Chamber of Commerce and at the gate. The cost is $5 in advance and $6 at the gate.

ingly work his way through all of the verses of "American Pie" if requested.

Sandner has a few surprises up his sleeve, like the rewritten version of "Route 66." Catching the clientele off guard, he'll sing, "I get my kicks on M-66... If you're lucky you might get there in a week... It's out in the sticks. M-66."

Sandner is a joy to sing along with for the amateurs, primarily due to his ability to effortlessly key a song up or down according to the singer's personal needs. He will also lend vocal support to singers suddenly stricken with stage fright, and serve as a human teleprompter if a singer forgets the words.

On Sandner's Sunday nights, an ample number of area musicians will take a busman's holiday and join Sandner for a set or two. The ensuing result is a spontaneous variety show of jazz, blues, and pop standards. Sandner's piano accompaniment is full and richly pleasing without benefit of amplification or added sound effects. "I think people like the sound of a real piano," Sandner explained. When Sandner's at the helm of a real piano, people like it a lot.

Sailing school continues to ride the waves

Milking cows and sailing boats don't usually have much in common, but in Charlevoix County, the Charlevoix Cooperative Extension service and 4-H program have branched out into developing a sailing program.

The Charlevoix County Sailors, a sailing program for children ages six and older, is being run through the Cooperative Extension and is headed up by Lanie Wilderom. "It's a self-paced program, for anyone at any level," Wilderom explained.

Charlevoix County used to have a recreation department, but it was discontinued a couple of years ago. Todd Kestner, Charlevoix County 4-H director, started to look around for other recreational opportunities for the county, to replace the failed recreation department programs, and found the sailing program which had formerly been exclusively for the Chicago Club members. Kestner is delighted to be able to incorporate the sailing program into the Four-H activities. "With this, we have more than cows and cooking," he said.

The program, which operates from the dock adjacent to Depot Beach, offers classes for different age groups, starting with the Sea Urchins, the six to eight year-olds who sail in small boats called "Optimists." Their classes are held Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 10:15 to 12:15. The cost is $20 a week. For children aged eight and up, classes are held from 10 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. Monday through Friday, or an afternoon session is held from 1:15 p.m. to 4 p.m. The cost is $50 for the first week, and $40 each additional week. An adult program is held Monday and Thursday evenings from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Four sessions cost $40 for the adult classes.

Wilderom said that the philosophy of the sail program is to let kids learn the fundamentals of sailing at their own speed. Racing is not the primary focus, which is often the case with other sailing programs. "I don't want kids to burn out on sailing from racing too much," Wilderom said. Children's progress is rewarded by earning ribbons and patches, instead of winning races. The program does have a sailing team which will participate in area races, but it is only for those who really want to race.

Anyone interested in signing up for the Charlevoix County Sailors can pick up an application at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce or at any of the local boat shops.

Top soccer coach to visit

World renown soccer player and instructor Charlie Cook will be working with a McLean, Virginia youth soccer team in Charlevoix next week. The team is being brought to Charlevoix by former Charlevoix resident Chip Terrill. Terrill said that although participation in the camp is closed to the public, local soccer players are welcome to come and watch. Cook, a former professional player and member of the Scottish National Team, is considered by many to be

In recent years he has been teaching soccer at the Coerver Soccer School in Cincinnati, Oh.

The team will be working out at either Shanahan Field or at the high school. They will be in town from July 27 through July 31. Workouts will be from 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

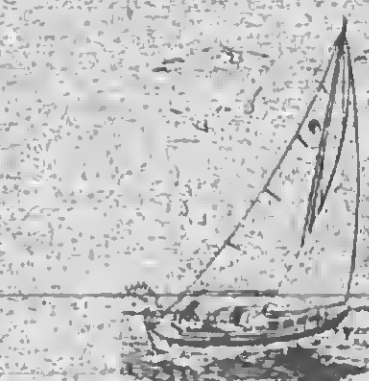

Terrill said he hopes that having the team and Cook in town will give local youth players an opportunity to get an up-close look at how soccer is played at a competi-

Yachting Notes

At last, the sun came out, the temperature rose, but wouldn't you know it — the beautiful 10-knot breeze that peaked Lake Charlevoix with whitecaps a good part of the afternoon faded to a mediocre five or six knots just about the time the first of the CYC racers uncovered their sails and fed their spinnaker sheets; and, eventually the wind collapsed to a one or two knot sailor's nightmare by the time the race committee shortened the course of race number two of the summer series.

Judging from my cheap-seat on the stink boat, the best start of the night went to Bandit, who crossed the line an aggressive eight seconds after the gun. Was the light air deceiving? Did all the timekeepers call in sick? Or was everyone just feeling really laid back, mon?

The results for the July 15 two-legged, spinnaker-finished (for the most part) race are as follows:

FLEET A: 1) Apprentice (getting the hang of that wheel?), 2) goteha, 3) Pygmalion, 4) Mint Julep (squeezing in just four seconds ahead of Flash), 5) Flash, 6) Slapshot.

FLEET B: 1) Cabaret, 2) Sandpiper, 3) Canusa, 4) Blasen, 5) Tireless, 6) Stalworth, 7) Original Sin, 8) Lost Vermonter, 9) Cygnus. FLEET C: 1) Vantage, 2) Babe, 3) HS Moisure Missile, 4) Humdinger (only three seconds out of third), 5) Bandit, 6) White Lightning, 7) Newsense, 8) Mi-Joy, 9) Allons-y.

IAM FLEET: 1) Our Thyme II, 2) Cheemaun, 3) Bald Eagle, 4) Booma, 5) Apothecary.

Mark July 26 on your calendars — there will be a full day of events including a pig roast, a couples' race, and a ladies' race.

Farm becomes home for Stonehedge Garden antique shop

By Laurie Lounsbury

When Don Trimper retired two years ago, he and his wife Marcia had no plans other than to use their newly acquired farm property as a place for Don to plant his perennial gardens. But when Marcia, an avid antique collector, filled their garage to the point of creating a gridlock situation with the family car, they decided to open an antique shop at the farm on M-66.

The Trimpers have been living in Charlevoix since 1976. Don commuted every week to Trenton, where he worked as an emergency room physician. The arrangement, while somewhat out of the ordinary, enabled Trimper to work three days downtown and be in Charlevoix with his family four days a week. His four days a week in Charlevoix were filled with activities relating to their five children, such as coaching Little League, or becoming involved in community activities.

With the children grown and out of the house, the Trimpers purchased a farm on M-66, a few miles past Trouton, with the intention of gardening and possibly opening an antique shop in the future. Marcia explained that their accumulation of antiques prompted them to open the business a year ahead of schedule. Don Trimper added, "We also wanted to get a feel for what the public wants."

The public seems to want what the Trimpers have to offer at their new store, called Stonehedge Gardens. Marcia Trimper reports that business has been great during their first four weeks. The Trimpers have meticulously designed the store and the surrounding property to be aesthetically pleasing to their visitors. The weathered old grain building and storage buildings lend charm and atmosphere to the setting, along with a pond and bridge that Trimper made himself.

Trimper has planted more than 3,000 perennial flowers in his carefully laid out viewing gardens, so that when your browsing and shopping are done, you can stroll through the peaceful grounds and enjoy the scenery.

Antiques available in the cozy shop range from antique dolls and furniture to Depression glass and primitive collectables. "I love Depression glass," Marcia Trimper said. "You can mix and match it, and because it's reasonably priced, it's not a catastrophe if you break something." The pastel hued Depression glass got its origins during the Depression, when it was given away at movie theaters and in boxes of Dux detergent.

Marcia also enjoys collecting glassware, pottery, farm china, and furniture, while Don Trimper's taste in antiques leans towards toys and dolls, ironware and primitive pieces. The combined interests of the Trimpers results in a wide assortment of items available to their customers.

Stonchedge Gardens is open Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

CHARLEVOIX THREATENED WITH LOSS OF 87 YEARS OF BANK COMPETITION

For over 87 years the citizens of Charlevoix enjoyed the benefit of healthy competition between their two community banks, Charlevoix County State Bank and First State Bank of Charlevoix. Last year a bank holding company based in Jackson, Michigan purchased County Bank from its local ownership. That same Jackson based holding company (CB Financial Corporation) is now attempting to purchase First State Bank and merge the two banks. If the Jackson bankers don't approve your mortgage or provide the rates, terms and service you are used to getting ... where do you turn? The Jackson bankers bought County Bank and now are trying to acquire one of their competitors, First State Bank. Do you think they will recover their investments by offering better rates and service ... or by:

- increasing your cost of borrowing
- increasing your rate of interest
- firing the "excess" help
- increasing your cost of service
- decreasing their level of service

We believe the loss of 87 years of competition could hurt everyone with a stake in Charlevoix's future. In our opinion, if a community is served by only 1 bank - that bank could exercise a great degree of control over how well other small businesses in town prosper - or fail. We believe that that bank's "choice" of grocery, barber, hardware store, etc. may do well - but their competitors may be hurt.

I'M VERY SORRY, BUT MY BOSS IN JACKSON WON'T APPROVE YOUR LOAN REQUEST

Small business owners and customers of Charlevoix's community banks are reliant on their local banker's first hand knowledge of their reputation and the seasonal nature of Charlevoix business.

We believe vital banking decisions that were made by local bankers for over 87 years may be made by strangers now and in the future. In our opinion, it is possible that no longer will a local banker, who knows you and your business, have the authority to provide personalized banking services based upon a relationship of trust and understanding. Do you want strangers passing judgment on decisions that are important to you?

WE STILL HAVE TIME TO STOP THIS TRAGEDY

The Federal Reserve Board can reject a proposed bank purchase that harms competition. But you must act now. Please write to the Federal Reserve Board before Friday, July 24th and tell them your opinions. Your letters should be addressed to:

Ms. Alicia Williams
Community Affairs Officer
Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago
P.O. Box 834
Chicago, IL 60690

If the Federal Reserve Board receives comments before Friday, July 24th, it can schedule a public hearing to be held in Charlevoix.

IF YOU NEED ASSISTANCE OR MORE INFORMATION ...

Please contact us: Resources Planning Corporation
212 Bridge Street
Charlevoix, MI
616-547-1042

Our office hours are Monday through Friday - 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

You can stop in at our office and:

- Sign a petition that will be delivered to the Federal Reserve Bank objecting to the merger and requesting a public hearing to be scheduled in Charlevoix ...

- Obtain our assistance in typing or in mailing your letter to the Federal Reserve Bank by Federal Express.

This assistance is provided at no charge.

Resources Planning Corporation owners, fifth generation Charlevoix residents, want to preserve the competition between our banks and if possible, maintain local ownership of First State Bank. RPC's owners made an offer to purchase First State Bank in order to resell the Bank shares to any other local residents who wanted to buy - in numbers as small as one share for each resident of Charlevoix - at no profit to these bidders. It is the hope of RPC's owners that the citizens of Charlevoix will preserve control over their bank - and their financial future.

Local research results receive world's attention

By L. Scott Swanson

If you drive your car into the water, your day's going to be ruined, but if you keep your composure and know how to react, you have an excellent opportunity to survive. This past Thursday at a meeting of the Charlevoix Rotary Club, Sgt. James Ewers of the Michigan State Police released results of submerged vehicle research done at the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station this past September. Ewers noted that people from throughout the world have already been contacting the State Police to get copies of the results.

The Charlevoix research was the first done by the State Police since 1961. It involved 20 cars and a school bus. Some of the vehicles were launched into the water from a portable bridge and others were lowered into the water by a crane.

Some of the research results were pleasantly surprising while other results are downright frightening. On the bright side, researchers found that most cars remain on the surface of the water for between a minute and four minutes after sinking the water; most people, if conscious and uninjured when the car hits the water can unfasten their safety belt, roll down the window and exit the car well before the car sinks.

On the down side: a school bus that was launched went down like a brick; and on the cars that were launched contrary to myth there is no air bubble of any significance trapped in the car and most cars come to rest upside down.

"In a situation like this, if you don't know what you're doing, you're dead. (However) The potential (for survival) is absolutely phenomenal if you do your part."

Michigan State Police Sgt. James Ewers discussing the prospects for survival when a car goes into the water.

rescue groups throughout the world.

The videotape shows what happens to cars when they hit the water. Water begins coming into the front of the car through heating vents. Initially, the car remains horizontal and stays on the surface. This is the best time for escape. Police divers who were inside test cars were able to unfasten their seat belts, roll down the window and exit the car in less than 11 seconds.

As more water enters, the car will tip forward until it is nearly vertical. As water rises around the doors, they become very difficult to open because the pressure of the water outside of the car exceeds the pressure inside the car. After water levels rise inside the car, the doors can be opened, but there are still some difficulties. Once submerged, the cars descend at a fairly rapid rate. As the car descends, the water rushing past the door makes it somewhat difficult to open - similar to the difficulty you've experienced if you've ever tried to open a car door while driving down the road. Another difficulty is caused by the loss of leverage that a person experiences when in water.

A carnival, drum and bugle pageant, foot race, street parade, boat parade and fireworks were among the events enjoyed by thousands at the 1992 Venetian Festival.

More than 30,000 enjoy 1992 Venetian Festival

By L. Scott Swanson
How many people attended Charlevoix's 1992 Venetian Festival? Hmm. Well...

It's hard to say exactly how many people were downtown for the Venetian Festival boat parade and fireworks Saturday evening. All of those people are so difficult to count. It's dark and downtown is a rather broad area. There are a lot of people and so many of them won't cooperate and hold still long enough for a person to get an accurate count.

So you have to estimate. "I'm guessing 30,000 to 35,000 for the fireworks and boat parade," said John Taylor, Venetian Festival chairman. He speculated that about 15,000 spectators watched the street parade earlier in the day.

Regardless of exactly how many people attended, the 1992 Venetian Festival went very smoothly.

The drum and bugle corps pageant played to a crowd of more than 1,000 people Friday evening. Saturday morning approximately 440 runners participated in the Drenth Memorial Foot Races. Scott Miller of Charlevoix won the men's 5K race.

At 11 a.m., the Venetian Street Parade was kicked off by a precision fly over courtesy of Island Airways. The three Britten Normand Islander planes were quite impressive. A catchy name for the group is being considered. Something along the lines of the Emerald Green Angels or perhaps Venetian Thunder. The parade had approximately 75 entrants and rolled through town like clockwork.

Throughout the afternoon there was entertainment in East Park. Late in the afternoon, fog rolled in off Lake Michigan. The fog stayed just long enough to make a few pessimists nervous about the prospects for the boat parade and fireworks, but left well in advance of those events.

Twenty-four boats participated in the boat parade. Much like the street parade, it was smooth sailing. The boats moved past the thousands of spectators without undue delay. Engenuity, owned by Jon & Carol Hisey, with the theme Summer of '92. Not captured first place in the parade. Appledore, owned by Bay Breeze Schooner Company, took second place. The Charlevoix Yacht Club's four-boat floatilla placed third. The four boats were QQQQ II owned by Josh Barnes; Vantage owned by Doug and Kim Simpson; HS Moire Missile, owned by Tom Barnes and the Love Missile, owned by Todd and Mary Edger.

Taylor said of the festival, "It was a tremendous success." Although Charlevoix's weather has been suspect for much of the summer, it came through in flying colors for Venetian weekend. "We couldn't have had better weather if we'd ordered it off a menu," Taylor remarked.

East Jordan Arts Fair this weekend

In the summer of 1962 a small group of East Jordan residents lead by Cyg and Bret Riley decided that East Jordan was a perfect location to help local artists exhibit and sell their works. Summer resident painter Sarkis Sarkisian from the Detroit Society of Arts and Crafts told Mrs. Riley that if East Jordan could host a summer arts fair he would bring up 10 of his artists to exhibit. Another contributor to the success of Portside is Walter Midener, Midener, president emeritus of the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit continues to sculpt and live in East Jordan.

The inaugural fair in August, 1962, featured 30 exhibiting artists. Since that time, the fair has grown to 100 exhibitors featuring a variety of mixed media. Portside has a reputation for displaying both the works of established artists as well as the works of new and innovative young artists.

Portside has been held at the Elm Pointe Estate on the shores of beautiful Lake Charlevoix since 1972. Elm Pointe was granted to the city of East Jordan by owners Dr. & Mrs. George Westgate. The grounds also include a historical Museum and Cygrod Riley Art Gallery.

In 1987, as a tribute to the efforts of Mrs. Riley, The Cygrod Riley Art Gallery was dedicated. The Gallery, housed in the Historical Museum, displays an impressive collection of Portside purchase prizes.

Artists are required to meet high eligibility standards to exhibit at Portside. Participation is open to all artists and craftspeople who exhibit work of original concept, design and execution. Portside works to maintain the highest standards for both the artist and viewing public. Slides of participants are juried for quality and originality in a variety of artistic forms.

Artists set up displays on the lawns surrounding the 100 year old homestead turned summer estate. Strolling musicians entertain the artists and buyers while children take part in crafts in the Children's Booth. Refreshments are also on hand.

This year's fair will be Saturday, Aug. 1 from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. and Sunday, Aug. 2 from noon until 5 p.m. There will be a featured sculpture by artist Walter Midener who has been affiliated with the art fair since 1962.

Elm Pointe in East Jordan remains the location of the fair. It is located on M-66 North just 2 miles from the M-32/M66 intersection. The fair may also be reached by boat.

...you can survive if your car goes into the water

Although in some instances, it may be possible to open a car door and escape before the car starts sinking, that means of escape has some potential pitfalls. Number one, you would have to get the door open right away before water pressure made that difficult or impossible. Number two, once you open the door, water rushes in and causes the car to sink faster. Number three, as the car sinks faster and you try to exit the vehicle, water pressure on the outside of the door could trap you between the door and the car.

Two escape options which Ewers did not advise and for all intents and purposes dismissed as foolhardy fantasy are kicking out windows and going to the back of the car in search of an air pocket. Kicking out windows fails because the windows on modern cars are too strong. They are built not to shatter and many windshields are now incorporated into the car body. Once the interior of the car fills with water, there's no way for a person to get enough leverage to make a good kick. Going to the back of the car is a bad move. The research indicated that air goes through the back seat, into the trunk and then out of the car.

Ewers said that clearly the best means of escape is out through the window before the car sinks. If for some reason, that isn't possible, then use the doors. Power windows normally will work, not only while the car is on the surface, but for several minutes after the car is completely submerged. In addition to the power windows, lights, windshield wipers and other electrical instruments on the cars continued to work for several minutes after the cars went under.

The school bus which went into the water sank in 16 seconds. Ewers said information about the bus was not included in the video tape because the bus used wasn't one which was in operational condition. State Police are planning to do additional submerged vehicle research in late August near St. Ignace. They hope to do some more research with school buses at that time.

The best way to escape from a car when it hits the water

Most cars will stay on the surface of the water for between one and a-half to four minutes. For most people, that allows plenty of time to:

1. Hook seat belt
2. Roll down window
3. Exit through window opening

Pool grant application remains under consideration

Jeanne Powers, of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Recreation Bond program, visited Charlevoix July 22 on a field research trip regarding a grant application for a proposed indoor community swimming pool.

Powers toured the proposed pool site north of the elementary school and met with various civic and pool officials.

The city council agreed this past

March to sponsor the grant application, which seeks $500,000, provided that pool supporters raise a total of $3.7 million to finance continued operation and construction of the $1 million pool.

Since that time, pool supporters have been attempting to both raise money and reduce operational costs.

Tuesday, July 28 pool supporters hosted their annual auction in conjunction with the Petunia party. They expected to raise at least $20,000 for the pool.

Pool supporters have also been working with Coast Guard personnel to secure volunteer lifeguards which would reduce labor costs at the pool.

Powers said DNR staff members will forward their recommendations to the Natural Resources Commission in December.

Letters to the editor

Prosecutor supported

Editor,
Over the past few weeks there have been several articles and editorials regarding the race for Charlevoix County Prosecutor.

I would like to say some things on behalf of the Prosecuting Attorney, Kraag Lieberman and his staff.

Kraag Lieberman, as prosecutor, is involved with three courts: 90th District, Circuit and Probate. As a county employee, I see on a daily basis how very busy all three courts can be. I have a small understanding of what being in the court system is because I was a victim of a crime. Kraag Lieberman took time with me on a couple of occasions to explain the way the system works, the importance of timing and evidence involved in bringing a case to court. Mr. Lieberman recommended excellent counseling to me from having worked with counselors in the system himself to help prepare for a hearing and for healing in our particular circumstance. The time, knowledge and experience Kraag Lieberman and his assistant, Karen Neumeyer, shared with me were and are and continue to be very valuable steps forward for me.

I can relate to victims who need answers and want to be heard, but I also understand that it is physically and mentally impossible for Kraag Lieberman and his assistant to be everything to everybody in every situation.

Unfortunately many times law enforcement's and prosecutor's hands are tied because of the way the system works. I hear and read of frustration from plea-bargaining. Plea-bargains occur all over the country, not just in Charlevoix County. As unfortunate as plea-bargains can be, sometimes (I'm a victim of a plea-bargain), the defendant goes on record as an offender. The legal system will never be totally fair to everyone.

It is my understanding Mr. Lieberman lacks in communication with law enforcement and individuals. Kraag Lieberman is a very brilliant man. I would say as opposed to replacing him in the office as prosecutor that we all encourage him in his communication. I remember having an attorney tell me at one time that the whole week before he went to trial his wife could hardly live with him! When I stop and try to realize the responsibility behind putting trials together, working with three court systems and also being accountable to county officials and commissioners it is no wonder communication could be a problem. I don't see replacing Mr. Lieberman as the answer, why replace a brilliant and capable man when communication can be worked on. Perhaps what is very much needed in Mr. Lieberman's department is a liaison person to communicate rights and a better understanding of waiting periods and plea-bargain.

Thank you to Kraag Lieberman and Karen Neumeyer for your help. I support Kraag Lieberman in his re-election and encourage him to work on whatever communication tends to be a problem.

Sincerely,
Jacquelyn M. Rozema

Plea bargaining criticized

Editor,
I'm writing in regard to statements made by Mr. Lieberman, Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney.

Mr. Lieberman has stated that he has successfully prosecuted over 2,200 drunk driving cases in his tenure as prosecutor. I personally asked Mr. Lieberman how many of those 2,200 were pleas bargained to a lesser charge. He said 80 to 85% were plea bargained. Why do we continue to allow this kind of situation to continue in Charlevoix County? When are we going to insist that people that break the law are punished to the fullest extent of the law. Maybe there wouldn't be so many repeat offenders if the punishment was strong enough in the first place. Those repeat offenders are jeopardizing our lives and the lives of our children every day.

Sincerely,
Carolyn Havens

EDITH

"Hey, Mabel, where's the fire?"
Some of us remember picking up the phone and asking Mable Martini, who was the operator in Charlevoix during the '30's and '40's, "What's playing at the movie?" and "Who won the basketball game?"

And some of us remember when we only needed to dial the last four digits of the Charlevoix telephone number.

Now we are faced with another dramatic change. We are asked to join a national trend and vote for the new improved emergency service, that is being offered to us, if the community votes "yes" Aug. 4, Charlevoix and Emmet Counties will become a part of the state of the art 911 emergency system.

I checked the computerized Motorola dispatch system on display at City Hall and was impressed! For starters, when you dial 911, the line is never busy. Or, if a person dials 911 and is unable to speak, the call is still recorded on the screen and a scout car is sent to the address. Also if an elderly person is living alone — dials 911 — and becomes unconscious, not only is a scout car sent to the address, but the name of that person's doctor and phone number is on file, as well as the closest relative or friend. If a person uses oxygen and there is a fire, the fire department is notified of this fact. If there is a deaf child upstairs or someone in a wheelchair, that matter is also recorded. When there is hazardous material located in the basement of a school or hospital, this information is noted on the screen. If one needs to report a boating accident, calling 911 will speed calls to the Coast Guard Station.

All the area police stations, ambulance services and fire departments are to be connected by a compatible radio frequency band, which is currently not possible. In addition all the fire stations will have printers to speed recording vital information. A volunteer fireman doesn't need to stop and scribble an address on a piece of paper. He'll have a printout in his hand giving the name, address, telephone number, and other pertinent information, such as described above.

Dennis Halverson, Chief of Police, believes having the 911 emergency system will save lives. He also feels that since this is a resort area, many visitors are used to calling 911 in case of emergency. Children, who are unable to look up emergency numbers in the telephone book, have been trained to dial 911.

Today, if there's an emergency and a person dials 0 for operator, he will not reach a Mable Martini. What he will reach is an operator in Grand Rapids, Lansing, or who knows where.

I can't help but be reminded of the time my diabetic mother fainted and cut her head badly as she fell against the sharp rock in her Michigan basement. Bleeding profusely, she crawled up the stairs to the telephone and dialed the Lodge number, which my husband owned at the time. She began babbling in German and fortunately the desk clerk recognized her voice and called us immediately. We rushed to her home and I remember trying to decide what number to call for an ambulance. Should I call the police? The sheriff? The fire department? The page was a blur of numbers. And what if mother had reached the wrong number? Or what if she had dialed 0?

Bud Kohler of Charlevoix, a retiree from Michigan Bell, explains that using 911 was never intended to be a high profit item for Michigan Bell. He stresses that it was developed primarily to improve customer service. It will take about 2 years to set up the program. Proposal A asks us to approve a tax up to one mil, which equals $1.00 per $1,000 on our property value, for two years. After the system is built, the telephone company will add approximately $2 per family per month to the phone bill, which will offset the operational cost.

If you feel you and your community will benefit from adding this 911 emergency system in Charlevoix and Emmet County, please urge your friends and neighbors to vote "yes" on August 4 at City Hall.

Antrim Street bed and breakfast request debated

By Laurie Lounsbury

Antrim Street neighbors, led by "The Captain" Bill Vogel, appeared before the Charlevoix Planning Commission in an effort to stop a proposed bed and breakfast project at 219 Antrim Street.

Property owners Jim and Laurie Ulrich have applied for a special use permit for their home at 219 Antrim St., which would allow the property to be used as a bed and breakfast operation. According to the city's code of zoning ordinances, a special use permit will be granted for a residential home to be used as a bed and breakfast if it meets certain criteria, such as not creating a traffic hazard, and providing ample, appropriate parking.

The Ulrichs have entered a contractual agreement with Kendra Behrendt of Flint, to sell their home, contingent upon Behrendt's being able to obtain a special use permit for operating a bed and breakfast.

Antrim Street neighbors are opposed to having a bed and breakfast business in their neighborhood, citing increased traffic and related hazards it might create. There is also concern that the bed and breakfast might raise SEV values along the street. SEV is the State Equalized Value, which is theoretically equal to half of the home's market value. Taxes are based on SEV, and a homeowner's tax mill equals one dollar for every $1,000 SEV. "My real concern is about property values," Vogel said after the meeting. He went on to say that while his SEV value might increase, the real property value of his home would go down, because a commercial property in a residential neighborhood would diminish the desirability for potential residential home buyers.

Vogel presented a videotape of Ulrich's home, to demonstrate to the planning commission that the driveway was hazardous in the winter. The tape showed Ulrich's truck parked on the front lawn in front of the house, presumably because the driveway was impassable. Vogel contended that getting in and out of the driveway in the winter would be difficult for transient drivers.

Planning commissioners debated the hazardousness of the driveway in winter, with commissioner Nancy Wood pointing out that many Charlevoix driveways are unusable in the winter. Chairman Clem Olach added that most bed and breakfasts in Charlevoix don't have much business to speak of in the winter anyway, so the risk of transient drivers trying to negotiate the drive would be minimal, if not nonexistent.

Another point of disagreement among planning commissioners was the legality of tandem parking (parking one car behind another) in back of the home. The Ulrichs had planned to provide tandem parking behind their home for transient guests. According to the city ordinance, tandem parking is not permissible in the city except for single family dwellings. A bed and breakfast, by definition, provides accommodations for transients within a single family dwelling. The commissioners argued over whether a bed and breakfast is a business and therefore must adhere to the parking rules for businesses, or whether it is a single family dwelling and can utilize tandem parking.

Planning commissioner Bruce Reid finally made a motion to grant the special use permit application, with the reason that it met all the criteria. He added to the motion that tandem parking be replaced with more suitable parallel or angle parking. Nancy Wood seconded the motion. A vote was taken, and the motion was denied.

After more discussion about the technical legality of tandem parking at a private residence which will be used as a business, Reid made another motion to approve the application with a one year conditional permit, stipulating that the driveway be well maintained and snow be removed as necessary. Reid reasoned that the neighbors would have a year to see how the bed and breakfast works, and whether traffic and the driveway presents a problem to the neighborhood. When this motion was made, Vogel stepped before the commissioners and pleaded, "Please, please don't make us be the police for one year."

This motion was also denied. According to the city ordinance, the planning commissioners must present fact of findings for their denial of the special use permit. Commissioner Tom Sheridan requested that the matter be taken up at the next planning commission meeting or at a special meeting when the city's attorney, Jim Young, could be present. "I'd like our attorney to confirm the findings of fact," Sheridan said.

Mosoryak - Hamilton

Barbara J. Mosoryak and James T. Hamilton were married at St. Mary's Church, May 16. The double ring ceremony was performed by Father James Gardner, with 300 guests in attendance. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Jay Mosoryak.

The bride is the daughter of Mary Mosoryak and the late John Mosoryak of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Marjorie Hamilton and the late Charles Hamilton of Fort Dodge, Iowa.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown, which was fashioned with an ivory silk satin bodice, and featured a scoop neckline and form fitting sleeves ending in a point at the wrist. The skirt had a satin underskirt with an overskirt of cotton Alencon lace, sweeping into a cathedral length train. A bow accented the waist in back. Her head piece was adorned with pearls and flowers and a pearl encrusted snood from which a cathedral length English netting veil edged with Alencon lace fell.

The bride carried a bouquet of cascading silk white roses with ivy.

Organ accompaniment was provided by Jacob Zeeryp at the church. Gladys Guerci and Paul Jo Resch were guitarists. Stephanie Sutton was the vocalist.

The bride was attended by Catherine Cross, her sister, as the matron of honor, and acting as bridesmaids were Nichole De Nio, niece of the bride, Sherrie Parsel, and Connie Johnson.

The bridesmaid's costumes, made by Sharon Spencley, were mint green taffeta, organza, and chantilly lace floor length gowns, featuring a scooped neckline from which strands of pearls draped in back. The dresses also had a basque waist with a large bow accenting the back and elbow length sleeves.

Bridesmaids carried a bouquet of cascading white and mint green silk roses and carnations.

Mr. & Mrs. James T. Hamilton

Jennifer Mosoryak, the bride's niece, served as the flower girl, and Timothy Cross, nephew of the bride, acted as ringbearer.

The groom's best man was Ray LaVoie, with Don Domesy, David Straubel, and Tim DeYoung serving as groomsmen. Tom Hamilton and Mike Hamilton, brothers of the groom, performed the duties of ushers.

A rehearsal dinner was held at the Grey Gables Inn Friday night, and was given by the groom's mother.

A reception was held at the American Legion Hall, given by the bride's mother.

The wedding couple will take a honeymoon in Jamaica, then return to Charlevoix, where they will make their home.

Hospital board members elected

Merle Plagge, M.D., Jeannine Wallace, and Ray Wood were re-elected to serve new terms on the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors at the annual membership meeting on Tuesday, July 21. A new member elected to the board is Alan E. Weston.

Weston is a long-time summer resident, who is president of Weston Capital Management, Inc., an investment management firm in Los Angeles, California. He was senior vice president of William O'Neil and Company, Los Angeles. He received his masters in business administration from Harvard Business School in 1964 and his bachelor's degree from Amherst College in 1959.

Weston was elected to a position on the board that was filled for the past six years by Hugh Mason. Mason was presented with a plaque in recognition of his service on the board by Norman Perkins, board chairman.

Alan Weston

John Buck, board secretary-treasurer, gave the financial report which showed the hospital ending its fiscal year on March 31, 1992 with an operating fund surplus of $123,411. Total operating income for the hospital was $7,368,692. Salaries, wages and fees were the hospital's largest expense amount.

Westenbroek - Weiss

Sally Westenbroek and Serge Weiss were married July 11 at the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church. The Rev. Larry Grooters performed the double ring rites witnessed by 100 wedding guests. Candelabras, a unity candle with greens and bows, and arrangements of white glads, pink larkspur and carnations graced the altar for the 2 p.m. nuptials. The pews were marked with bows and greens.

The bride is the daughter of Roger and Elaine Westenbroek of Charlevoix and the groom is the son of Bernhard and Marie-Annette Weiss of Barrington, R.I.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an off-white silk taffeta gown featuring an off-the-shoulder portrait neckline, beaded bodice and a chapel length train. Her cathedral length veil of illusion was attached to a headpiece of silk roses and pearls. The bride carried a bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and ivy.

Music was provided by organist Frances Boss and vocalist Mike Westenbroek, brother of the bride, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because."

Maid of honor was Sandy Fisher and bridesmaids were Sue Kaufman and Sherry Westenbroek-Hawthorne, both sisters of the bride, and Lisa Miller. The attendants wore blue and pink floral print sundresses and carried bouquets of royal banquet orchids and stephanotis.

The groom's niece, Krista Weiss, was flower girl.

Ring bearer was Bryant Hawthorne, nephew of the bride.

Best man was Peter Weiss, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Mike Hack, Chris Durham and Kevin Dean.

A outdoor reception was held at Elm Pointe in East Jordan. A rehearsal dinner picnic was held July 10 at Ferry Beach in Charlevoix.

Guests attended from Rhode Island, Washington, the Netherlands, Utah, London, England and several cities in Michigan.

Following a honeymoon to Rhode Island and Maine, the couple will reside in Birmingham.

They are both graduates of Michigan State University MBA School. Serge works in purchasing at General Motors in Flint and Sally works in marketing at General Motors in Detroit.

Kappa Sigma donates home tour proceeds

A gift of $3000 representing part of the proceeds from the Kappa Sigma annual Charlevoix Home Tour was presented to Charlevoix Area Hospital last week by Rebecca Haney, chairman of the event, and Denise Pointner, co-chairman.

The contribution will be applied toward the furnishing of the planned obstetrical unit at the hospital. Haney said, "We were very pleased with the turnout for this summer's home tour. In spite of the weather people showed strong support. We will be contributing an additional amount to the hospital once the costs for the event are determined."

This is the second year that the proceeds from the home tour have been contributed to the planned new obstetrical unit at the hospital. The construction project, including the maternity unit, is expected to begin next month.

Richard Krueger, Charlevoix Area Hospital administrator said, "We are very grateful to all the members of the Kappa Sigma, to the community members who worked at the event, and those who attended, for making this a most successful home tour. We know that it takes an extraordinary amount of effort to plan and organize this event. And, we thank the homeowners who so generously allow this public viewing of their homes. We very much appreciate being the beneficiary of Kappa Sigma's generosity."

The check was presented at the gardens of Dr. and Mrs. James Gibbons. The garden was to be included on the tour, however, rain and the late blooming of many of the plantings delayed showing it until this time.

ing to $4,183,034.

Guild President Margaret Landman reported that 5,596 hours of service were given last year by Guild volunteers and they raised $5,000 toward their hospital building fund pledge. The Guild also awarded four scholarships to area students in the medical field.

Over $300,000 was invested in capital equipment in the last fiscal year, Hospital President Krueger said. This included a $32,600 anesthesiology machine and a laparoscopic unit to do gallbladder surgery on an outpatient basis for $45,000.

He also reported that the Boulder Park Terrace nursing home, a joint venture with Northern Michigan Hospital entered into last year, is now open and receiving patients.

Attending the annual meeting were members of the hospital. Members are those who made a monetary contribution to the hospital in the past or who paid $3 membership dues.

Perkins concluded by saying, "When a hospital does more than 47,000 laboratory tests, over 11,000 X-ray procedures, and nearly 18,000 physical therapy treatments in one year, you know there is a need for that hospital. Where other small hospitals are experiencing very difficult times, we are growing and looking to a bright future. And, I am proud to be a part of this growth."

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

Did you see the fireworks Saturday night? To me, it was one of the best displays we have ever enjoyed. I trust you know that it just didn't happen. They didn't randomly pick out a shell and shoot it. Every pattern, every color was carefully thought over and planned to provide the maximum enjoyment for those of us who watched it.

Did you ever think about the crew that was at work down at the channel? They really had to hustle to keep the program going and keep your interest up. It is not easy to do a thirty minute program like that when 15,000 people are looking over your shoulder. Again, they followed a plan.

It has been a challenge to get around in a few of the downtown neighborhoods this summer because of construction. The streets were completely demolished and slowly but surely, they are coming back together. For those of you who live around Mason and Grant, where they are just getting started, take heart. It does get better. I assure you they are following a plan.

Have you every stopped to think just how much plans are a part of our lives? Most of us try to plan our work days. Doctors formulate treatment plans for virtually every patient under their care. Teachers work with lesson plans and if you haven't gotten their message yet, the Democrats and Republicans will bombard us all with their political plans between now and November.

The prophet Jeremiah passes on an interesting note to us. "For I know the plans I have for you," declares the Lord, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future." If you are a plan oriented person, I hope that is a piece of good news for you. A lot of times, one of our biggest frustrations in life is seeing our own plans go to pieces. It should be good news to know that there is a master plan available.

We had visitors recently that sailed in from Green Bay, Wisconsin. Even though I'm told that it is a relatively routine trip, that fascinates me. You can leave a port, go completely out of sight of land, and end up in your destination. How? Because you follow your plan.

God is telling us that he knows we are already well under way on our life's journey. He knows that we have already experienced our share of problems in that journey. He is offering us a proven plan to see us safely through to our journey's end. If you know nothing else, remember this. God's plan works. It has been proven for generations. It can be divinely tailored to you. Out of all the plans we encounter in our lives literally every day, whose plans would you rather be using? I would recommend that you go with the Master Designer, the One who knows us even better than we know ourselves. You will not be disappointed.

(Rev. Bruce Hamilton is pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Hamilton and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

Charlevoix Airport is busy and growing

By Laurie Lounsbury

Ask any kid who's played in the outfield at the softball field by the Charlevoix Airport, and he can probably tell you how busy the Charlevoix Airport is. Chances are, he's watched several planes take off and land during the course of a Friday night ball game. It is due to the present and future activity levels at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport, combined with a need to meet current Federal Aviation Association (FAA) regulations, that changes are taking place at the airport.

A five year, master airport development plan was drawn up for the City of Charlevoix, which will enable Charlevoix to meet FAA requirements and handle increasing demands on the airport facility. The airport master plan will also put Charlevoix into the state and federal funding schedule, which is designed to help municipal airports.

The cost of construction and rehabilitation at the airport will be 90 percent funded by federal money, five percent state money, and five percent local money. Charlevoix needs to acquire a small amount of land around the airport in order to comply with the FAA standards. The funds for land acquisition will be 90 percent federally funded, and 10 percent locally funded. The state funding is generated from airplane fuel tax and plane registration fees, and federal funding comes from airline ticket tax and fuel tax.

There are four main objectives to accomplish at the airport during the next two years.

*A paved parking apron for visiting planes has already been constructed, adjacent to the terminal building. The apron has tie downs for 47 planes, and can easily accommodate 50 planes. Formerly, the paved parking area for planes could hold four or five planes, and all other planes had to park in the grassy field nearby.

*Construction of a new runway, which will run parallel to the existing runway, 240 feet north and 700 west of the existing runway. The new runway will comply with the FAA's runway protection zone requirements, by moving the runway further away from residential areas. Construction is scheduled to begin in 1993.

*Rehabilitation of the existing runway, so it can be used as a taxiway for planes. With the present arrangement, incoming planes must land on the runway, turn around, and taxi back on the same runway to get to the terminal. According to the FAA guidelines, the Charlevoix Municipal Airport handles enough traffic to require a separate taxiway.

*Land acquisition surrounding the airport runways. It is necessary to acquire land around the main runway and turf runways, in order to meet the FAA's easement requirements.

The master plan included plans to improve and enlarge the existing terminal building in 1995, but the city is under no obligation to do this, and the need for terminal building improvements can be re-evaluated in 1995. It was necessary for the city to include this on the master plan so that Charlevoix will remain on the Federal funding schedule.

So far, expenditures on airport improvements have come in under budget, and the city's portion of the cost has been minimal. The new parking apron was projected to cost $887,443.75, with Charlevoix's five percent portion of the cost being $44,372.19. The actual cost of constructing the new apron was $530,000, so Charlevoix's five percent of the cost came to approximately $26,500.

The Charlevoix Airport is currently in the midst of an improvement project. One of the first major improvements was a paved parking area visible near the top of the photo. (More photos on page 12.)

Improvements being made

"Charlevoix is one of few, if any, small airports in Michigan that doesn't have an operational deficiency," said city manager Mike Weisner. This was not always the case. Prior to 1980, Charlevoix operated the municipal airport with a $40,000 a year deficit. In the early '80s, the city contracted with Island Airways to take over the airport management and maintenance. Island Airways is responsible for airport employees, snow removal, lawn maintenance, building maintenance, and all utilities.

Island Airways currently pays

Charlevoix $800 a month for leasing the airport. Island Airways generates airport income from operating the fuel concession, from car parking fees, landing fees, and tie down fees for planes.

Island Airways' operational costs at the airport are around $60,000 a year. This number will change dramatically with the new airport renovations. Airport Manager Chris Welke explained that with the new runway, there will be twice as much runway to maintain, and six times as much ramp. "The cost of clearing runways, and the cost of the new lights, will sky rocket," said Welke. In regard to the new light costs, Welke was referring to a new landing light system that the airport will have. Known as PAPI (Precision Approach Position Indicator) a system of four lights, running next to each other and spaced 20 feet apart, will shine up to the perfect approach. If a plane is coming in too high, four white lights will show. If the plane is too low on approach, four red lights will show. If the plane is on the correct glide-slope, two red and two white lights will show. Having the PAPI light system in place will take the airport one step closer to being eligible for an Instrument Landing System.

Even with increased operating costs and added responsibilities, Welke is enthusiastic about the improvements at the airport. "I'm looking forward to the added safety we'll have with the new runway."

Welke said, "I think a lot more people will come in here since they know we have a 'grown-up ramp' and the planes won't be packed in like sardines."

Welke said that on the weekend of July 17th, there were 37 planes tied down on the new parking ramp. Over Venetian weekend, the ramp came close to being filled to capacity.

What Charlevoix County voters will see Aug. 4

Throughout Charlevoix County voters will go to the polls Tuesday, Aug. 4 to keep things on the right track, throw the rascals out, approve money for a much needed program, or keep the politicians from wasting tax dollars - depending on how those voters feel.

There are 15 townships and three cities (Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan) in Charlevoix County. On a local level, Boyne City has a fairly mundane ballot. Charlevoix has an interesting race for a first ward council seat. Incumbent Bill Haggard is being challenged by Don Meggison and Ralph McRae. The top two vote recipients will have a rematch in November. Three candidates are competing for the mayoral post in East Jordan. They are Russ Peck, Jerry Alward and Harry Watson.

In the primary election, voters may only vote for candidates in one party. For example, in the race for state representative a voter can't vote in the Democratic race between G.T. Long and Bob Fournier and also vote in the Republican race between Beverly Bodem and Wendell Orm. A voter can only vote in the races of one of the parties.

There are some races and issues which people throughout the county will be voting on. They are:

County Ballot Issues

1. County tax limitation. This would set the county's allocated tax limitation at 15 mills for four years. Those 15 mills are divided up as follows: 4.7 to the County; 9.10 to school districts; 2 to the intermediate school district; and 1 mill to townships. Currently, the millage levy is 15 mills and a board meets each year to determine how to divide the revenue.
2. A renewal of .25 mills for the county transit system.
3. Proposal A: A one-mill levy for two years to set up a 9-1-1 emergency phone dispatch system for Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.
4. Proposal B: A proposal which would allow a surcharge of up to 20 percent of the basic phone rate to be added to Charlevoix County phone bills to pay for the operation of a 9-1-1 phone system.

Big Rock plant to celebrate its 30th anniversary

Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point plant — a pioneer among nuclear power plants — will observe two significant milestones in ceremonies Aug. 5: its 30th anniversary of operation and a 15-year record of exceptional safety performance.

In recognition of the two achievements, public tours will be conducted at the plant the weeks of July 27 and Aug. 3. Tickets for the tours are available at the Petoskey and Charlevoix Chambers of Commerce. A special ceremony for plant employees, retirees, business, industry and governmental leaders will take place Aug. 5.

The power plant identified by the big green ball and red and white stack is located between Charlevoix and Petoskey. Michigan's first operating nuclear power plant and the nation's fifth, Big Rock Point is capable of producing 67 megawatts of electricity.

The first controlled nuclear chain reaction was achieved at Big Rock Point on September 27, 1962. The first commercially generated electricity was introduced into the Consumers Power state-wide electrical grid on December 8, 1962.

On Aug. 3, Big Rock Point employees will have worked 15 years without an accident serious enough to cause any of them to miss work.

Day care: Just no easy answers

By L. Scott Swanson

In our hearts we set stern criteria. After all, these are our children. We want them to receive the best care possible.

Is there adequate day care available in Charlevoix to allow both a husband and wife to work? How can there not be? How many households in Charlevoix can afford to not have both a husband and wife working?

Day care in Charlevoix is, like so many things, a good news and bad news situation. There are some really wonderful people babysitting children. Just not nearly enough.

"Usually, the good ones are full and have a waiting list," explains Sandy Manning of the Community Coordinated Childcare Council (4-Cs).

Manning expects to receive about 40 calls this month from Charlevoix and Emmet County families who are trying to line up day care for their children. In addition to the calls Manning receives, several more calls will be made to the council's Traverse City office. August and May are busy months in terms of people looking for day care. Manning works as a cleaning officer for day care needs in the two counties. She not only has a list of the licensed babysitters, but also keeps track of which ones have openings. While there are generally not enough babysitters to meet the demand, some specific needs which are particularly lacking are evening and weekend care, care for infants and afterschool care.

The fundamental economic principal of supply equaling demand just doesn't fly in the issue of day care. Currently, demand exceeds supply and given the present structure of the situation, that is likely to continue.

In a normal economic situation a provider can boost profits by increasing the amount of product or increasing the price charged for that product. There are things which keep that from happening in day care. In Michigan, a licensed day care provider can only have six children per adult. And not too many of those children can be less

Good babysitters are always in demand

On most summer days, Danya Drost and Bonnie Dominic are not in the midst of a quiet home, but they have lively and fun homes where lots of little children come to play and learn.

Drost has four daughters of her own and has been babysitting other people's children for more than 10 years. A cork board next to her telephone is filled with pictures of smiling children she has watched during the years.

Dominic has three children of her own and has been babysitting for more than six years. She estimates that during that time she has babysat for at least 20 children. "I've had most of mine since they were babies," she says.

Neither of the two ever has a problem finding people who want them to care for their children. "I've never run an ad in my life," Drost notes. "I've always had a waiting list."

Both women enjoy their work. "I've always liked being home and I love kids," Dominic explained. She said that as a babysit-

ten. That's not to mention the additional problems caused by the higher numbers.

In a normal situation where demand exceeded supply, prices would rise. In day care, there's a limit to how much of that can happen. It's not a legal limit, but a limit of economic reality. Figures may vary from one day care provider to another, but for the most part day care providers in the Charlevoix area charge between $1.50 to $2 an hour for one child and if they give a price break for more than one child charge $2 to $2.75 per hour for two children. Many also charge some type of flat rate fee such as $15 to $20 a day or $60 to $85 per week.

For a person making between $6 and $7 per hour, day care can equate to a third or more of their net income. Then taxes take a bite. And there are transportation costs. When people start calculating and reaching their conclusion that having a second wage earner in the family really only equates to $50 to $120 per week in the household coffers, they begin asking themself the question: Why am I doing this?

If the adult day care provider has an aide who is at least 14 years old, then the number of children can increase to 12. That might seem like it would double the profit, but a little analysis quickly points out that it doesn't. The other employee's salary and benefits quickly eat up almost all of the revenue from the additional six children.

May carried the City of Charlevoix 420-321.

Charlevoix County voters narrowly approved a property tax increase for a 9-1-1 phone system by a vote of 2,458 to 2,329. However, they rejected higher phone rates to operate the system by a vote of 2,659 to 2,012. Both proposals had to pass for the system to be initiated.

Meggison and May fare well while voters reject 9-1-1

Don Meggison placed first among three first ward city council candidates. Richard May unseated incumbent prosecutor Kraag Lieberman. And voters hung up the phone on a 9-1-1 emergency phone dispatch system.

Meggison received 196 votes in Tuesday's primary election. Incumbent Bill Haggard received 114 votes. Meggison and Haggard will now face each other in the November general election. Ralph McRae received 45 votes in the primary election and will not be on the ballot in the general election.

In the most heated county race, Boyne City attorney Richard May defeated incumbent prosecutor Kraag Lieberman by more than a thousand votes, 2,356 to 1,311.

...finding day care can be a challenge

selves how much it is worth to them to have either the mother or father be the person watching the child.

In a way it's ironic, but on the other side of the coin a desire to be home with their own children is a factor in many people's decision to go into day care.

"I do it because I wanted to be home with my children and because I love kids," explained Danya Drost who has been providing day care for more than 10 years. "I went into it and just loved it," she says.

Bonnie Dominic, who has been providing day care for more than six years, offered similar sentiments. "I quit work and I was home and somebody called and asked me if I would consider watching their kids. I tried it and I enjoyed it," she adds. "I've always liked being home and I love kids."

Drost and Dominic are two of approximately 20 licensed day care providers in the Charlevoix area. There are also several unlicensed day care providers.

Marie Walker is the State day care inspector for Charlevoix, Emmet and Antrim Counties. She works out of an office in Traverse City and used to have seven counties. Walker says that for Charlevoix County, she gets about three or four inquiries each month from people who are considering going into day care. Of those inquiries, maybe one or two will result in someone beginning to provide day care.

Within 90 days of the time a day care provider begins providing day care, Walker will inspect the home. She will check for things such as the proper number of fire extinguishers, test the water and check other physical characteristics of the home. She will also check to see that the day care provider has the proper paperwork in order. To receive a license, day care providers must also consent to a background check to see that they are of good moral character and have not been convicted of any form of criminal sexual conduct, child abuse or neglect and a variety of other crimes. There are other requirements for licensing which are detailed in a State of Michigan booklet titled, Licensing Rules for Family and Group Day Care Homes. The booklet is approximately 20 pages long and takes less than an hour to read.

Walker said there is no charge for the licensing procedure and that it really is not that difficult to comply with. She says that unlicensed day care providers are breaking the law.

"It's for their protection and for the children's protection," she says.

Drost expressed one reservation about licensing. She said she doesn't mind having to be licensed, but fears that licensing might give some parents a false sense of security. She said a license indicates that a house is safe at the time of the inspection. Beyond that, parents still must ask questions and use good judgement.

Walker also noted that even though a day care home is inspected at the time it is licensed, it is possible for the next 10 years to pass with no more inspection visits unless there is some type of complaint. That's possible. However, licensing people may also stop in occasionally.

Dominic said she finds the licensing requirement to be in a way kind of reassuring. "It lets you know that you're doing things correctly," she said.

Cheryl Darnel, who is with the Charlevoix office of the State Department of Social Services, has a list of all area day care providers. One of Darnel's jobs at the department is to make payments to day care providers for people who are involved with programs such as Aid to Dependent Children (ADC). The Department of Social Services has programs through which it will help people with child care costs so that a lack of child care does not keep them from either taking a job or going to school for employment training. The amount of the day care bill paid by Social Services is based on a sliding scale related to the parents' income. Just this summer, the state has begun requiring people involved with the program to use licensed or certified day care providers. Obviously that has increased demand in the local day care market.

Manning said that right now is an exciting time in the day care field because day care problems are now beginning to get more government funding. She said also feels that somewhere down the road, businesses are also going to begin to help employees with day care problems. One of 4-Cs primary objectives is to recruit more people and improve the level of professionalism in the day care field.

Walker noted that day care providers are now getting more training and are required to take courses such as first aid and CPR.

...but there are good people in the field

ter, you kind of get to help raise the children. She finds it rewarding to see a child learn the simplest things such as how to play with other children.

Drost said that as a babysitter, she gets to be an extra mom. When people note that she has four daughters and ask if she regrets not having any boys to raise, she tells them she has lots of little boys at her house.

Drost and Dominic both said that they become very attached to the children they watch.

"When they move on and don't need you, it breaks your heart," Drost said. "You become attached. They're like your kids."

One of the requirements for licensed day care is that children have room to play outside. At the Drost home there is a big back yard with two swing sets and a little barn filled with toys.

Drost praises her husband and daughters for their help in making it possible for her to do day care. She said that after being in a house with half a dozen kids all day, she often needs half an hour or so in the evening to take a walk or do something to relax. She said that her husband has always been willing to watch the four girls for a while in the evening and give her that time.

She also praises her daughters. "I think it takes a lot to be a day care mother's kid. They share their toys, their mother and their home," she noted. Her older daughters not only tolerate having other children at their home, but help with them.

Different day care providers have different feelings about what activities the children will do in a typical day. Dominic said she likes more of a home environment as opposed to an environment which is too structured. "They play and color and we read stories. Just a variety of things," she explained.

Dominic and Drost both say that one of the key things for them in making their work enjoyable is that the children they watch have good parents to work with.

Editorial

Has anyone else been struck by the thought while watching the Olympics of just how incredible it would be to have a Charlevoix person competing? The Olympics wouldn't be any ho-hum thing then. This community would be focused.

One of these years that will happen. Some day, some way some how, somebody from Charlevoix is going to qualify for the Olympics. Maybe it will be in one of the glamour events or maybe it will be something obscure. But folks here in Charlevoix wouldn't care the event was the 200 meter pogo stick race. If somebody from Charlevoix was in the Olympics, the hometown folks would be watching.

Charlevoix has already had two runners come very close to qualifying. The late Jeff Drenth ran in the Olympic trials in 1984. Unfortunately, he didn't run his best race. The trials were held in Los Angeles and a day or so before he was to run, Drenth took in a ballgame at Dodger Stadium. He said he ate something there which didn't agree with his stomach and he still wasn't feeling right come race time. He was disappointed, but not too severely since his sights were set more on the 1988 Olympics rather than the '84 Olympics.

Currently, Bill Taylor is Charlevoix's prime Olympic hopeful. He competed in this year's Olympic trials. He finished less than four seconds behind the final Olympic qualifier in the 5,000 meter run. Like Drenth, this Olympics was not the one he was targeting as much as the one four years from now. He can rest assured that if he is successful, it wouldn't matter if his event took place at 2:30 a.m. by Charlevoix time, the community would be watching.

The Lake Charlevoix Farms Exceptional Riders program is preparing for its fall session. The program is designed to help people who are physically, emotionally or mentally handicapped gain confidence through learning to ride horses.

Riding program continues

Twice each year the Lake Charlevoix Farms Exceptional Riders Program hosts its eight-week long sessions. The program is open to students of all ages who are physically, mentally or emotionally challenged. It includes an orientation class, seven actual horseback riding classes, and seven horse science/care classes.

According to Barbara Lane-Harrington, Program Director and Head Instructor, "the students are actually taught to ride the horses, not just 'take for a pony ride'." Each student is assisted by a horse-leader and side-helpers but as their horsemanship improves, they are encouraged to do more and more on their own. Many factors are involved in running a program of this sort. First of all, there must be a riding arena and stable area large enough to accommodate the horses and riding activities. And thanks to Gentry Feevehouse, owner, and Corky Price, manager, of Lake Charlevoix Farms, this program has a near perfect location. Second, there must be a staff of willing and knowledgeable volunteers to do everything from saddling horses to making coffee and popcorn. Third, there must be the financial support of the local community - these classes are offered free of charge. And finally, and maybe most importantly, you must have suitable horses.

Each year, horses from the program are supplied by Frank Leist. This local horseman has several hundred head of horses pastured in nearby fields and from this assortment it is possible to find the five or six horses of appropriate size, age and temperament needed for the classes.

Earlier this summer the Lake Charlevoix Farms Exceptional Riders program was honored by receiving the R. Dale Fasseu Memorial Award, which recognizes outstanding service to benefit handicapped children of the community. Says Director Lane, "The program is a great asset to the community, and the community is an essential part of the program. Especially people like Gentry Feevehouse, Corky Price and Frank Leist who supply the horses and stable facilities needed to making the classes a reality."

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

We brought home a video for a family night the other evening. It was called "Hook." In case you are not up on the latest cinema trends, "Hook" is a modern day sequel to Peter Pan, one that finds the hero who never wanted to grow up all grown up: Hook, the villain, returns from the fantasy world of Never-Never Land and kidnaps the grown Peter Pan's children in a ploy to resume their childhood battles.

A lot of things have happened to Pan since he has grown up. He has become a successful corporate lawyer. He carries a cellular phone that never seems to stop ringing. He is on the social agenda of countless organizations. But perhaps most important of all, he has forgotten how to play. He has forgotten what it means to be a kid.

Without retelling the whole tale, his preoccupation with business begins to alienate him from his family. When the children are taken, he is emotionally paralyzed. His childhood sweetheart Wendy, now a grandmother, tries to get him to remember what it means to really live. Tinkerbell, the proverbial purveyor of pixie dust, takes him back to Never Land and gets him ready for battle.

The key to Peter's remembering how to fly, recovering his children, and defeating Hook was in thinking a happy thought: Pan's happy thought is the thing I want you to look on to. He remembered the whole reason he wanted to grow up, the heart of everything he had hoped for in life, was to become a father.

We fathers are not always as good as we should be about sharing our lives with our families. We do get caught up in the business of life and pack our schedules with all kinds of activities. All the while, our children are growing up and not going to be the kids that have so much fun and enthusiasm to share with us forever. It's not that mothers are blameless, guys. But having come them, fed them, and sustained them for so much of their early years, the mothers are far more sensitive to the changes that time brings.

I have known Dads who have said they don't have time. But time is all we have. I have known parents who lament the noise and the laughter and the clutter. Have we forgotten that we have to be grown ups seemingly forever? Our time as children lasts only a little while. We need to let our kids make the most of their childhood. We need to enjoy that childhood with them.

One day, people were bringing their children to see Jesus and his own disciples started to chase them away saying that the Master did not want to be bothered. When Jesus realized what was going on, he rebuked his disciples, telling them, "Let the little children come to me and do not hinder them for the kingdom of God belongs to such as these."

Time is precious. Life is precious. One of the best investments you will ever make is spending it with your children. Jesus would like that. You will too.

Artist defies definition

In many ways Thom Millsap's paintings defy traditional definition. The brush strokes and vivid colors of his still lifes and landscapes have a sense of the French Impressionists, an element of abstraction, yet a definite realistic quality. Millsap's works, which are in collections in Europe and the United States, push beyond simple analyses.

With the opening of his one-man show August 7 with a public reception at 4 p.m., at Charlevoix's Koucky Gallery, people will have an unusual opportunity to view a range of Millsap's work, meet the artist, and watch him work.

Gallery owners Chuck and Nancy Koucky announced that Millsap plans to remain in the Charlevoix area to paint throughout the show.

Trained in England, France, Italy and Switzerland, as well as the U.S., Millsap has taught at the university level, and held several "artist in residence" posts with museums and colleges.

Waterfront Art Fair celebrates 34th year

Charlevoix Art Fair considered to be among the nation's best Transformed into a dazzling outdoor fine arts gallery Saturday, August 8, Charlevoix's downtown park, fronting on Round Lake Yacht harbor, has been home to the annual Waterfront Art Fair for 34 years.

The second oldest art fair in Michigan has maintained its focus on fine art and is among the most prestigious major outdoor art fairs in the nation.

Works by a select 100 artists from around the United States and Canada are displayed for the intense one-day fair, drawing thousands of visitors, major collectors and gallery owners.

"It is extraordinary to realize that this fair in northern Michigan has become so respected," commented member of the organizing committee Suzi Reis.

"The people who founded this art fair saw it as a way to bring fine art to northern Michigan, then rather isolated from galleries and museums, and to stimulate local artists."

"How I wish they could see what this fair has become," Reis said with a smile.

The second Saturday of every August a mix of artists descend on Charlevoix. A core group of well-known artists receive invitations to show; the majority submit resumes and slides for spring juring.

Among the best-known regulars at Charlevoix are watercolorist Dee Knott, ceramicists and painters Sue and Russ Bolt, Canadian print maker Mathias Muleme, oil painter Stewart Ashlee, watercolorist Luke Buck, ceramicist Barbara Godwin, photographer Norm Darwish, and jeweler Diane Hubert.

Corinne Workmaster will return to the Charlevoix fair this year with her much sought white on white paper sculptures. As with many artists who have shown at Charlevoix over the years, Workmaster limits her shows to galleries and museums, and the Charlevoix show. For the past year, Workmaster has been creating limited editions for the Bradford Exchange.

Minnesota jewelry designers Robert and Helen Trisko return for their third year to Charlevoix, with their elegant gold jewelry combined with precious and semi-precious stones.

Among the younger and newer to Charlevoix artists is Italian born Petrus Yokanno whose distinctive, at times surrealist, watercolor nude portraits have been given shows throughout Italy, Canada, and the United States.

Among newcomers is Jennifer Linder, best known on the East Coast, who paints on "raw furniture," creating European high style accent pieces. She is also well known for vividly realistic wild fowl "decoys."

Jeweler and metalsmith David Vinson, who received his MFA from Cranbrook Academy of Art, will show in Charlevoix this summer. Karen Vroman, an Illinois native whose watercolors are in col-

"We've worked hard to stay true to our original purpose, to bring fine art to northern Michigan."

Waterfront Art Fair organizer Suzi Reis

eries around the country, will bring paintings which meld realism and abstraction to capture nature. Monika Watson works with paint, "improbable juxtapositions of color, materials, and motif," and traditional folk idioms in her work, reflective of her native Austria.

Sculptor Heidi Uotila Long's minutely detailed wild animals, cheetahs, lions, gorillas, white rhinos, kudus and others, are in collections of such luminaries as Jenni Michael, Cousteau, Ambassador Uwimana of the Republic of Rwanda, Ambassador Han Xu of China, and myriad zoo directors, not to mention Barbara Mandrell.

Abstract sculpted tables by Peter Czuk, experimental watercolors of traditional landscapes by Kathleen Conover Miller, aquatint etchings and original oils by Canadian impressionist Manfred Heine-Baux, serigraphs by Steve Hardy, folk dolls by Marlene Denn, wildlife assemblages of Morten Fadum, photography by Jim Galbraith, and painted rugs of Barbara Beckwith will be among the exciting new works displayed at Charlevoix Aug. 8 according to Reis.

"We've worked hard to stay true to our original purpose, to bring fine art to northern Michigan," Reis said. "We're proud that we've helped discover some young artists and we're especially thrilled that so many keep coming to Charlevoix long after they've left the art fair circuit."

Castle Farms Art Festival growing in popularity

By Laurie Lounsbury

In a pastoral setting that's picture perfect, Castle Farms will host its third annual Art Festival this Saturday and Sunday. The Castle Farms Art Festival will feature 126 art exhibitors from all over the nation.

The Castle Art Festival differs from other area art fairs in several ways. Kim Reibel, organizer of the festival, said, "We are trying to encompass all kinds of artists. That's why we include the performing artists." Continuous musical entertainment will be provided in the courtyard, featuring a variety of music performed by different musicians.

Reibel's enthusiasm and diligent efforts have made the Festival popular with the exhibiting artists. Reibel hosts a private reception for all of the exhibitors on Saturday night, giving the artists an opportunity to meet one another and compare notes on how the festival is going. Reibel also has an awards presentation for the artists. Anonymous judges stroll through the festival on Saturday, then base their decisions on the artists' presentation and artistic value. Cash awards are given for first, second, and third place. Honorable mentions with medallions are also awarded.

Reibel's method for selecting exhibitors for the Castle Farms Art Festival is based on a jury selection. Five to seven jurors, all professional artists, view slides submitted by the artists. Jurors give points to the artists and artists with enough points will be able to enter the art festival. Artists' slides are numbered and don't show the artists' names, so favoritism is not a factor. Once an artist is accepted, they are allowed to be in the show for two years before they have to re-submit slides and go through the jury process again.

If looking at art and listening to music whets your appetite, there will also be an abundance of food to sample. Real Food Catering will be back, serving vegetable pizza and spinach filo roll-ups, as well as food from Sara Beth's Kitchen of Traverse City and Ben and Jerry's Ice Cream.

The Castle Farms Art Festival will be Saturday, August 8, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Sunday, August 9, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Local artists enjoy exhibiting at Festival

Local artists Jan Glass of Charlevoix and Jan Vandenberg of Petoskey will be returning to the Castle Farms Art Festival for their second and third years, respectively.

Glass, who is very enthusiastic about the Castle Farms Art Festival, sites the layout of the festival and the lack of congestion as positive aspects to the festival. Glass also acknowledges that Reibel's efforts are largely responsible to the festival's growing popularity. "I like Kim's commitment to the artists. She's so enthusiastic about offering the community something really neat," Glass said.

Glass is a wildlife watercolor artist who is well known in the area. She is committed to the Castle Farms Art Festival, and is confident that the event will continue to grow in future years. "The quality is there, with nationally known artists. It just takes a few years to catch on," Glass said of the festival.

Pencil and watercolor artist Jan Vandenberg feels much the same way as Glass. "Every new art fair takes time to get going," Vandenberg said. She added that her sales were good last year at the Castle, and hopes they'll be even better this year. Vandenberg also likes to exhibit in the Castle Farms Art Festival because she can display and sell her prints as well as her original art work. "I rely on my prints to make a living," Vandenberg said.

Unlike the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair, which will only permit artists to sell original work, the Castle Farms Art Festival will permit artists to sell prints. Because of that, Vandenberg said that the Castle Farms Art Festival is more affordable to many people.

Local artist Jan Glass will be displaying her work at the Castle Farms Art Festival for the second consecutive year. Glass says she enjoys both the atmosphere of the Castle and the hospitality shown to the artists by festival organizers.

Local sculptor brings his pets to Charlevoix

Celebrated sculptor of whimsical animals, Todd Warner, returned to Charlevoix's Koucky Gallery, Aug. 1, for a two-week show of the newest members of the menagerie.

Warner, who has received national recognition for his tall, incredibly skinny and off-the-wall humorous wart hogs, meditating camels, clumped herds of racing zebras, and elongated elephants, has created two new series of wild and domestic creatures for this show.

The show kicked off Saturday night with an open artist's reception in the downtown Koucky Gallery.

A Michigan native, now living in Boca Raton, Warner has a wide following. He was recently commissioned by the Orlando Airport Authority to create distinctive animal inspired sculptural pieces for each of the six floors of the Orlando parking garage. His works are in the collections of Kelly McGinnis, Zaza Gabor, Charles Gibson (Good Morning America), architect Alden Dow, Herbert Dow, as well as in the USA Today headquarters.

Attributing his inspiration to an abiding interest in animals, ever since he filled his childhood bathtub with frogs, snakes, and toads, combined with an unusual sense of humor, Warner's animals range in size from 12 inches to 12 feet. Simultaneously life-like yet impossible, even the smallest armadillo commands attention.

The Koucky Gallery Show will include several new series of animals.

Warner's earliest works were five to 12 inches tall, but in the past decade he has become known for his close-to-life height animal caricatures. The demand and prices of his works have risen concomitantly.

This show reintroduces smaller pieces in a Barnyard Series and an African Series.

He will also present a new series of larger outdoor sculptures cast in resins and steel, many of which swivel, on steel bases, like giant weathervanes.

The outdoor series will include, Warner says, such creatures as a flamingo who wandered too far north and is flying hell bent for election south; a white leghorn rooster in full flight; and an unusually stoic bison contemplating world problems.

The Koucky Gallery Show will also include such well known indoor works in ceramic and steel, as the bemused water buffalo and his personal flock of egrets, a confused camel, a huggable brown bear, and a contemplative cow.

"We're bringing a lot of surprises north," Warner said. "Look for Admiral Byrd with an amazing mustache and stately birds on each shoulder. If you think the piece looks serious from the front, check the racing stripes down the Admiral's back," Warner laughed.

"Followers of Warner's work will be interested in the new directions he has taken," gallery co-owner Nancy Koucky said of the show. "With the re-introduction of smaller pieces, Todd has made his work accessible to more people," she noted. "The outdoor pieces are a great addition, as well."

The two-week Todd Warner show opened Saturday, Aug. 1.

The animals created by sculptor Todd Warner, a Michigan native who has gained widespread acclaim for his whimsical animal sculptures recently began a two-week show at Koucky Gallery in downtown Charlevoix.

In the tee-ball league the Maroon Sox and the Royal Sox played to a 25-25 tie, a real defensive struggle. The Raspberry Sox were just one berry better than the Green Sox at 15-14 and the Gray Sox and the Navy Sox concluded a 25-25 game long about dark.

In the boys' ages 11-13 league, the Rangers beat the White Sox 14-11 and then the White Sox righted themselves to defeat the A's 8-7.

July 28 (Women's City Tournament)

Nanny's beat Townhouse 16-5 behind the nine-hit pitching of Kelley Abbey. Amy Bartling had a home run for the winners.

Flight Deck Bar clobbered Kwikie Duplicating 19-1. Teri Wilson was the winning pitcher, giving up just four hits. Flight Deck had 17 hits.

Boyer Valley Hydroseed beat Mike's Glass 8-3. Boyne Valley had 14 hits and Mike's Glass seven. Kelly Carson was the winning pitcher.

In the boys' ages eight to 10 league, the Twins beat the Blue Jays 4-1 and the Tigers were one better than the Orioles 13-12.

In the girls' eight to 10 league the Reds beat the Pirates 9-6.

July 29

In the first of three ugly games that night Irish Boat Shop narrowly avoided the 15-run mercy rule in a 14-0 loss to Charlevoix Manufacturing. Darcy Phelps was the winning pitcher on a six-hitter. Charlevoix Manufacturing had 15 hits.

Pine Hill Nursery beat Flight Deck Bar 16-1 on 21 hits. The Bar could muster but five hits. Jason Towe was the winning pitcher.

In the closest game of the evening, Charlevoix Cinema defeated Paul Bunyan Lanes 14-6. Dave McCormick was the winning pitcher, allowing 11 hits. Charlevoix Cinema had 15 hits.

The girls' ages eight to 10 league featured two close games as the Mets beat the Reds 7-6 and the Pirates beat the Astros 12-11.

July 30 (Women's City Tournament)

I.M.R. pounded Nanny's 17-3. A Dawn Hankins home run led an 18-hit I.M.R. attack. Winning pitcher Deb Hamlin allowed only four hits.

Boyer Valley Hydroseed just edged Flight Deck 8-7. The winners out-hit Flight Deck 12-11. Kelly Carson was the winning pitcher.

Kwikie crushed Mike's Glass 17-3 behind the four-hit pitching of Linda Ciuk. The winners had 15 hits.

In the girls' ages 11-13 league the Braves took the wind out of the Marlins' sails 10-5 while the Pillies beat the Expos in the home stretch 13-12.

In tee ball games, the Royal Sox powered the Light Blue Sox 20-12, the Raspberry Sox distinguished themselves from the Red Sox 20-13 and the Maroon Sox beat the Green Sox by a touchdown 25-18.

Yachting Notes

Whew! Talk about a week chock-full of boating activities. In addition to the regular Wednesday night race July 22, many CYC members participated in the Venetian Festival boat parade and ladies and couples races on Sunday. With so many results to report, let's get right down to business: since Wednesday night came first chronologically, so shall its race results.

July 22, 1992 results:

Fleet A: 1) Gotcha, 2) Pygmalion, 3) Apprentice, 4) Slapshot, 5) Flash, 6) Mint Julep.

Fleet B: 1) Tireless, 2) Sandpiper, 3) Blasen, 4) Cabaret, 5) Cygnus, 6) Stalworth, 7) Original Sin, 8) Lost Vermonter, 9) Canusa.

Fleet C: 1) H.S. Moisture Missile (proving quite worthy of the name), 2) Humdinger, 3) Newsense, 4) Alons-y, 5) Bandit, 6) White Lightnin', 7) Mi-Joy, 8) Babe, 9) Vantage.

Jam Fleet: 1) Cheemaun, 2) Bald Eagle, 3) Booma, 4) Apothecary, 5) Our Thyme II.

In the lighted boat parade Saturday, July 25, seven of the 23 boats were from CYC. Babe took 15th place; Apothecary, 10th; Independence, 8th, the official CYC entry — Vantage, H.S. Moisture Missile, and the Love Muscle (which is really White Lightnin' in disguise) — captured a pretty honorable third place. Josh Barnes in his yet unnamed SeaRay provided towing for the Giant "C" "Y" "C" float.

The ladies of the yacht club had not one, but two races all to themselves Sunday, July 26. Read carefully or you may think the same results were accidentally printed twice.

Ladies race #1:

1) Humdinger, 2) White Lightnin' (make up your mind already!), 3) Newsense, 4) Lost Vermonter, 5) Babe.

Ladies Race #2:

1) Humdinger, 2) Newsense (only six seconds out of first), 3) White Lightnin', 4) Lost Vermonter, 5) Babe.

And, at last, we reach the couples race:

1) White Lightnin', 2) Lost Vermonter, 3) Vantage, 4) Mi-Joy, 5) Stalworth, 6) Cheemaun, 7) Newsense.

In the classifieds this week, one "a-nony-mouse" reporter, who's moving too far away seeks replacement to write weekly column on local yachting news. Interested? Contact Sue Miller some time while she's busy bartending at the Yacht Club — she can tell you more.

'til next week.

Doe permit applications available for deer hunters

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) application forms and guides for antlerless deer hunting licenses will be available Aug. 15 at more than 2,000 hunting license dealers throughout Michigan.

The applications must be received by the DNR and postmarked by Sept. 24.

The hunting guide includes a map of open units, figures showing the odds of getting antlerless deer hunting licenses in the deer management unit requested, and detailed instructions for filling out the application form correctly.

"We advise hunters to get their application cards, read the application guide carefully, and submit their applications early to have the best chance at getting these licenses," DNR Director Roland Harnes said. "A total of 268,331 antlerless deer hunting licenses will be available in about 100 deer management units where deer numbers need to be stabilized or reduced."

An antlerless deer hunting license allows a hunter to take a deer without antlers, or with antlers less than three inches in length, during the regular firearm deer hunting season, Nov. 15-30.

High School girls' basketball practice begins Aug. 10

BUSINESS

Office offers shared equipment and services

If you're just starting out in business and can't afford your own secretary, receptionist, copier, and fax machine, then you'll be happy to know that there is an alternative available in Charlevoix.

Executive Office Suites, managed by Resources Planning Corporation, offers office space, complete with a desk and chairs, along with a full complement of office help and equipment, for one rental price.

Office Manager Carol Elzinga explained that at Executive Office Suites, a person can have their own office, and share a receptionist and office equipment. The practice of having a private office and sharing a receptionist, secretary, and office equipment is common in larger cities, but Elzinga said that Executive Office Suites is the first one of its kind in Northern Michigan.

Executive Office Suites, which is located on the second floor above the Acorn Shop, is plushly appointed with eight foot mahogany doors, mahogany desks, and leather chairs. There is a conference room available for anyone to use, complete with a law library. A receptionist's services are included with the rental price of an office. A typist and secretary are available for an hourly fee. Phone systems are already in place, and office tenants need only bring their own phone.

The cost of an office at Executive Office Suites ranges from $475 a month to $675 a month. There are currently three tenants in the building, with four more offices available.

Shown in one of Grandvue Medical Care Facility's recently redecorated resident rooms are (from left) Sims Baker, Eliene Rouse and John Barber. The project to redecorate rooms was made possible by a generous gift from Round Lake Lodge and donations in memory of Arthur Rouse. Baker and Barber are past Noble Grands of Round Lake Lodge #293 I.O.O.F. Other projects the group contributes to include Boys' State, Boy Scouts, Charlevoix Little League and cosponsoring the annual Charlevoix Invitational Field Day in cooperation with the Masons and Knights of Columbus.

Local business expands into energy efficiency

(Editor's note: The accompanying story is one in a series of stories about area people and businesses being written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a former mayor and council member and currently is a member of the Charlevoix Industrial Development Committee.)

By Ralph McRae

Last January, an article appeared in this paper talking about a new $2 million simulator at the Big Rock nuclear plant. The simulator was designed and installed by Real Time Technology, a firm headed by C.A. Williams with its headquarters downtown in the Market Mall.

Today, Williams and his company are working with medium to large size manufacturing plants as well as on ships and aircraft to install simulator set ups to improve overall management and increase production. Having this training on site allows cost savings.

Another service Real Time has added is complete energy auditing on a plant premises. The goal of the audit is improve heating efficiency and lighting. The cost of the computerized auditing is recovered through reduced electrical charges.

In a related venture, Real Time is preparing to work with large grocery stores and other places requiring cold storage to install energy management systems. The goal is to reduce the energy costs and electrical charges by 30 percent. The Real Time system will allow energy savings by quickly detecting any faltering or problems in an energy using system such as a refrigeration unit. For a large grocery store, an average monthly refrigeration charge is around $15,000. The Real Time system could drop that to $10,000. Savings within a two-year period would cover the cost of the energy reducing system.

In addition to his work with Real Time, Williams is sharing his technical knowledge as a teacher with North Central Michigan College in Petoskey.

Petunia Party and Pool Auction raise $thousands

The Fourth Annual Petunia Party and Pool Auction took place Tuesday, July 28 at the Barn at Dumaglas. The dinner party raised enough money to assure adequate funding for next spring's petunia planting and the auction, which will help pay for construction and operation of a proposed community swimming pool, grossed more than $22,000.

Among the distinguished guests at the event were Lorei Ruppe, American Ambassador to Norway and Dr. Gordon Guyer, Interim President of Michigan State University.

At the auction the top bid of the evening was $2,000 for a Great Lakes cruise aboard the Medusa Challenger. The bid was made by Ted Wojan of Bay Shore Steel.

Ralph McRae was the top volume bidder. McRae purchased several items including his own 1981 Buick Skylark. Crown Motors had donated a brake job and South Point Auto had cleaned and polished the car. McRae purchased it at the auction and then redonated it to Boulder Park Terrace.

According to Gayle Genett, Kiwanis Club President, the auction would have fared better, but chilly weather prompted some bidders to depart before the end of the auction. Next year, the party and auction will begin earlier in the afternoon.

Historical Society to host underwater archeologists

The Charlevoix Historical Society will be hosting an Underwater Archeology Film Festival at 7 p.m. Aug. 8 in the City Council Room at the Charlevoix City Hall. The film festival will feature five of Michigan's foremost underwater archeologists. Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix shipwrecks, among them the Keuka which sank just off Ferry Beach, will be among the 19th and 20th century wrecks shown. Admission for the event is $5 at the door. For more information, phone the Charlevoix Historical Society at 547-0373.

Prosecutor to speak at alcohol program

The Emmet County prosecutor's office serves people every day who suffer from abuse of alcohol. "A very large percentage of crimes are related to alcohol," said Prosecutor Diane M. Smith.

Smith is the featured speaker of the Alcohol and Drug Awareness Hour at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, August 8, 1992.

For six consecutive Saturdays this summer, the Alcohol and Drug Awareness Hour brings information on the disease of alcoholism to our community. The doors of the McCune Arts Center open at 9 a.m. and the program begins at 9:30 a.m. There is no charge to attend, although free will donations are accepted at the door. Nursery care is provided free of charge at the Presbyterian Church.

Dozens of pamphlets are available for donations and many books on substance abuse are available for sale before and after the presentation.

Audio tapes of each of the ADAH presentations also will be sold.

ADAH is a local non-profit organization which strives to educate the public about the dangers of substance abuse and inspire hope for recovery from addiction.

Smith said public awareness about alcohol and drug abuse - locally and in general - is very important. Not only do people need to understand the legal aspects, but also, that it is a disease. When people do have that understanding, they are more able to help us confront the problem, Smith said.

Smith has been Emmet County prosecutor for four years. She earned her undergraduate degree at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, in communications. She graduated from Cooley Law School in 1980. Smith was assistant prosecutor in Lansing for three years before moving to private practice in northern Michigan.

Judge dismisses Reibel suit

Rules that City police officer acted reasonably

A federal judge has dismissed a suit filed against the City of Charlevoix and other parties by former District Court Judge Arthur Reibel.

A memo to the city council by city attorney James Young calls Judge Robert Holmes Bell's decision to dismiss the suit a "complete vindication of the City's actions and Chief (Police Chief Dennis) Halverson's handling of this incident." In a telephone interview with the Courier, Reibel said the dismissal in federal court isn't a surprise and that the door is still open for either an appeal to the federal court of appeals in Cincinnati or for a re-filing of the claim in state court.

The court action stems from a Feb. 28, 1991 incident in which Reibel was taken into custody by Charlevoix City Police Officer Peter Shrift and subsequently charged with operating under the influence of liquor, fleeing and eluding and resisting and obstructing a police officer. After more than a year, Reibel was found guilty in District Court of fleeing and eluding an officer, attempting to resist and obstruct a police officer and impaired driving. He was sentenced to one day in jail with credit for one day served, 10 days in the county work program, two years of probation, license suspension of one year with restrictions and fines and costs totaling $1,200. Reibel said that case is going to be appealed. He maintains that in District Court the visiting judge went forward with the case despite the absence of Reibel's attorney.

Reibel and the City Police offer different versions of what occurred when Shrift apprehended Reibel. Reibel alleges that Shrift pulled into the driveway behind him at his Castle Farms home, came running up to him and hit him in the forehead above the eye with a heavy object, presumably a large flashlight.

Shrift maintains that he began following Reibel when Reibel ran a stop light at the intersection of State and Antrim Streets. Reibel failed to pull over when Shrift signaled and consequently Shrift followed him to his home. After arriving at the home, Shrift took Reibel into custody and placed him in handcuffs. While escorting Reibel to the patrol car, he began struggling. Shrift took Reibel to the ground and in the scuffle Reibel hit his head on the ground or a snowbank, breaking his glasses and injuring himself.

Shortly after the Feb. 28, 1991 incident, Halverson requested a Michigan State Police investigation of Reibel's allegations of brutality. In May of 1991, the State Police officer who conducted that investigation wrote that he found "no basis for his (Reibel's) allegations against officer Shrift."

Reibel contended that the State Police investigation was not impartial because Halverson's father is a former director of the Michigan State Police. Reibel requested an investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). The results of that investigation were released in April of 1992 and concurred with the State Police findings.

Reibel filed the federal suit in February of 1992 in the United States District Court based in Grand Rapids. He named Shrift, Halverson, the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and Sheriff George T. Lasater as defendants. (Reibel was taken to the county jail when he was apprehended by Shrift. Although named in the suit, the county and Lasater were not served with papers and consequently were dropped from the suit.)

The eight count civil rights suit sought more than $44 million in compensation and damages. At the time the suit was filed, Young characterized the multimillion monetary figures as meaningless, saying that when a suit is filed, a plaintiff can ask for any amount in exemplary damages, but that it is up to the court system to decide.

...federal judge dismisses suit

first if there was any improper action on the part of the defendant and second, what, if any, damages should be awarded.

The City turned the defense of the suit over to its insurance carrier. The insurance carrier chose Peroskey attorney Gretchen Oleson to defend the case. In the motion for summary judgment, Oleson presented evidence from the City Police report, the State Police investigation and the FBI investigation. The evidence included medical opinions of Reibel's injuries by the doctor who treated the injuries and Dr. Stephen D. Cohl, a forensic pathologist. Both concluded that Reibel had been injured by his glasses and not from being struck by a blunt object.

As explained by Bell in his 12-page opinion, count one of the suit alleged that Shift used excessive force without due process and violated Reibel's constitutional rights by arresting him and using undue force. In count two, Reibel alleged that his detention in jail and prosecution on criminal charges were malicious and violated his constitutional rights. In counts three through eight, Reibel alleged various violations of state law.

Bell dismissed count one of the suit with prejudice, meaning that it cannot be brought again. He dismissed the remaining counts without prejudice.

Summarizing the ruling, Oleson said Judge Bell basically found ample probable cause for the arrest; found that Reibel presented no direct evidence for a claim of excessive force; and found that Shift used reasonable force and therefore had immunity from being sued.

"In laymen's terms, he (Bell) said that the officer (Shift) acted reasonably and therefore had immunity," Oleson said.

In his memo to the City Council, Young wrote, "The court dismissed Count One (which was the primary complaint alleging a violation of civil rights) with prejudice, which means that it cannot be brought again. The remaining counts were dismissed without prejudice, in part, because the court did not know that Mr. Reibel had ultimately been convicted in Charlevoix District Court of the various criminal charges and also, in part, because once the court dismissed the primary federal claims, the court believed that it should not make a decision on the purely state law claims. Some of the counts which were dismissed without prejudice may be brought again by Mr. Reibel in state court. There is nothing that the federal judge could do to prevent this."

Reibel offered a different analysis of the ruling. He said that federal courts normally have a full docket. Consequently, they try to send cases back to state court. He said he's confident that the criminal conviction will be reversed and added that he definitely is going to continue to pursue the civil case.

Summer school program emphasizes reading and math

By L. Scott Swanson
For the first time in several years, the Charlevoix school system is offering a summer school program. There are 54 students from the first through eighth grades taking part in the program which is funded by a Chapter One grant administered by the Michigan Department of Education. Elementary school counselor Gayle Gennett wrote the grant application and is coordinating the program.

Reading and math are emphasized and some social skills instruction is incorporated. The program is designed to help students who need some extra help in reading or math. As described by Gennett, it gives students an opportunity to polish their reading and math skills in the summer so that "when school starts, they'll be right in the swing."

Test scores and teacher recommendations were used to select students, however attending summer school is on a voluntary not a mandatory basis. Class sizes are

OPINIONS

by EDITH GILBERT

The summer people I talk to think of Charlevoix as home.

Even tho' they may vote in Maryland, Illinois and California, the families still reunite every summer in cottages that have been in the family for five generations. Alan Weston's family summered in Charlevoix since the turn of the century. He recently showed me a letter written by his great-grandfather on the former Inn Hotel stationery, which ought to count for as much in brownie points as graduating from Charlevoix High School. Evidently the people around here agree that it does, because Alan has been elected to serve on the board of the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

This is quite a switch from the conventional wisdom usually practiced locally in the past. Graduating from Charlevoix High School has almost always been a standard of recognition in running for any office such as the city council or mayor.

In fact, the local folk could have a lot of fun, if they cared to, scoring brownie points according to the following — 50 points is a perfect score.

Ten points if you were born in Charlevoix.

Ten points if you graduated from Charlevoix High School.

Eight points if you married a Charlevoix girl or boy (add a point if he or she was born in Charlevoix and another point if he or she graduated from Charlevoix High School).

Add five points if you played on the football, baseball or basketball team. Add 5 points if you were homecoming queen or Venetian Queen.

Add five points if you are a member of the Voluniter Fire Department.

Add five points for every child born in the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Add two points for participating in the Venetian Festival.

Add 3 points if you are a member on the Board of Education, Planning or Zoning Commission, City Council.

Add one point for planting petunias three years in a row, or two points if you were block captain more than once.

Summer people need not feel left out because they can play the same game. Here is a suggested list for resorters and 50 points again is a perfect score —

Ten points if you spent your first summer in Charlevoix under the age of one.

Ten points if your grandfather purchased the cottage prior to 1930.

Ten points if you have never missed a summer in Charlevoix.

Two points each if you contribute to the Charlevoix Area Hospital and/or offer your home for the annual House Tour, or contribute to United Way. If you contribute to a local church, attend the Potunia Party for Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, or if you are a member of the Crooked Tree Arts Council, the Charlevoix Historical Society, support the local Hospice, Humane Society, or if you enter your boat in the Venetian Festival Boat Parade.

Five points if you return in the fall for color and purchase your Christmas gifts during the sales on Bridge Street.

Five points if you return between November and April for hunting or winter sports.

Three points if you influence a friend to buy a second home in the area, or attend the Horton Bay Fourth of July parade.

Two points if you visit Mackinac Island or Beaver Island every summer or canoe down the Jordan River.

One point if you have one of the following: a copy of Bob Mile's book, "Charlevoix Glimpses", a copy of Edith Gilbert's book, "Summer Resort Life", a commemorative plate of Charlevoix scenes from the Shop of the Gulls, a T-shirt from the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair.

I know there are groups of people who have rented cottages, stay at motels and on boats and at bed and breakfast places who return year after year and care deeply about this area. To them I say, "hang in there!" One of these days your children may qualify in scoring brownie points in the local Charlevoix game of who was here first.

Letters to the editor

Student can't get classes

Editor,

The Charlevoix Public School system has some major problems, especially in the high school. As low-skilled jobs are disappearing from around the country, the necessity of higher education is becoming more and more obvious. Many of the students at CHS try to be enthusiastic about their education, but they often are forced to eliminate their favorite classes from their class schedules because they are compelled to take ones that, if not taken, would prevent their acceptance into college. I'm not saying that these required classes are bad; I'm just declaring the fact that if a student wishes to go to college (many of us do), they often cannot take the electives they may want because of their wish to advance. There has to be a solution to this problem. I realize that some teachers fear the thought of time being taken out of their classes to add an extra period to the day, but the teachers aren't even aware of all the possible solutions, and teachers aren't the only people that attend school. Teachers have already graduated from college and are getting paid to go to school. The students are not being paid except for the knowledge they are allowed to gain. If you're not allowing kids to learn to their full potential, the payoff for them isn't as great as it could be. It is very unnecessary for me to state that if the teachers didn't feel that they were getting as much money as they deserved they'd be dissatisfied with their jobs. Since the only reward for students is education, if you don't give them what they need to do well, they may become discouraged with the system. Someone needs to give the students a chance to succeed. Why not let it be you?

Sincerely,
Mark Schairbaum

limited to 15 students per class. Both a teacher and a teaching assistant work in each class providing the students with a lot of individual attention.

The eight people staffing the summer school are: Marcy Murdiek assisted by Mary Bascom in the first and second grade class; Linda Moore assisted by Donna Paul in the third and fourth grade class; Susan Martin assisted by Kay Campbell in fifth through eighth grade math; and Sally Sikavitsas assisted by Betsy Reynolds in fifth through eighth grade reading.

Classes take place from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. weekday mornings between Aug. 3 and Aug. 28. There is no charge for students to attend summer school and a school bus provides transportation to and from school.

Gennett said teachers are emphasizing hands-on learning and the classes will be taking at least one and possibly two field trips. She noted that the students don't seem to be too distracted by the nice weather. She speculated that having the classes in the morning has helped catch the kids when they're most attentive.

Charlevoix's summer school program is the only one of its type in this area according to Gennett.

Realize that God believes in you. So do a lot of his people, your friends. I always marvel at young children. When grown ups show any kind of confidence in them at all, it's like they suddenly have the courage to do anything. If we are willing to admit it, we adults really do need for folks to have faith in us too. Our confidence gets built up. We become more willing to try when we know that there are others willing to invest in our dreams.

If your plans did not work out the first time around, be willing to change. Sometimes, it is a minor adjustment that makes all the difference between failure and success. That's one of the lessons of failure that we need to take to heart. The little things get us far more often than the big ones ever do.

The preacher in me closes this with a little Biblical reminder. The apostle Paul wrote, "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me." God, the Creator of heaven and earth, believes in you. That's why Christ, His Son, stands available to live and work in your life. And as your friend and neighbor, I just want you to know that I believe in you too.

(Rev. Bruce Hamilton is pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Hamilton and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

SUMMER TIMES*How's the fishing?
It's always good whether you catch anything or not

By Laurie Lounsbury

A natural silence hangs over the Jordan River. The only sound is that of the stream as it flows and eddies around fallen trees. An occasional cicada drones in the warm summer air, and small birds chirp tentatively as they flit from pine to spruce. A lone trout fisherman blends in harmoniously with the river sounds as he wades cautiously upstream, casting his fly into small pools formed by the meandering river.

Fly fishing for river trout is not a sport for those who like to get together with their seven closest friends and throw a party while they dangle a line in the water. It's a sport for those who are not averse to wading through icy river water and spending long hours in complete solitude. The fly fisherman is just as likely to go down in defeat against the elusive river trout as he is to hook one of the slippery creatures. It's not a sport for everyone; but for some, it stands unrivaled as a recreational activity.

Lifetime summer resident Dave Loving is one of those devoted fly fishermen. For more than 35 years he has hiked into the Jordan River, garbed in heavy waders and fishing vest, to engage in a private competition with the brook, rainbow, and brown trout that inhabit the river. Loving is pretty much a self-taught fly fisherman. As a young boy he made his first trip to the Jordan River with a legendary old fly fisherman, Worth Matteson. It was a widely accepted fact that Worth Matteson taught many of the area boys how to fly fish. "Worth never taught us anything," Loving recalls with amusement. "He just gave us two pieces of advice: Fall forwards instead of backwards, and always get out on the right side of the river."

It wasn't much, but Matteson's advice was a solid start. River fishermen always fish upstream, so falling forwards will at least assure the fisherman that he will get pushed back upright by the rapid current. A fall downriver might leave a fisherman chills trying to right himself with his waders filled with water. Matteson's advice about getting out on the right side of the river is unique to the Jordan river. Service roads and entry paths are on the right side of the river as you face upstream, but no such roads exist on the left side, which remains unpopulated state-owned land. Loving said: "If you get out on the left side of the river, you may never be seen or heard from again."

Loving and other fly fishermen share the same basic feelings that pull them to the river year after year. "It's a sport you do alone in a spectacular setting," Loving explained. "You get to see things: a family of wild turkeys, herons, hawks, deer. You can even hear the grouse fluffing along the riverbank."

Fly fishing on the river is more than just a way to take in the serene sights and sounds of the stream. The fly fisherman is in constant motion as he continuously casts and wades upstream. He is always scanning the river er's surface, watching for a trout to rise to his cast. The instant the trout rises up for the fly, the fisherman tries to hook the fish with a quick flick of the wrist. "It requires a certain amount of hand/eye coordination, and an infinite amount of patience," Loving said. "And of course, a lot of luck." As often as not, when you cast, your fly ends up snagged in a tree nine feet overhead.

Sometimes you catch fish and sometimes you don't. But the fishing is always good. Dave Loving is one of the area fishermen who enjoy fly fishing on the Jordan River.

Loving likes to refer to his experiences on the river as a battle of wits between himself and the fish. "It's the wily trout in a fight for survival against the even wiler fisherman," he said. On one particularly nice day, Loving patiently works his way upstream, clambering over fallen logs and sidestepping around knotty clumps of grass protruding from the riverbank. His persistence went unrewarded for the better part of an hour. Loving finally climbed out of the river, saying, "The trout won unanimously today. I didn't catch a thing."

Not catching anything would never deter a hardy fly fisherman from returning on another day to try again. The pristine beauty of the river will always be there for them, even if the clever Michigan trout refuse to cooperate.

Carol Roszka enjoys the relaxed atmosphere of fishing from the shoreline in the Charlevoix channel.

The river's not the only place to fish

The relaxation found in fishing is not limited to fly fishing in isolated surroundings. Charlevoix natives and visitors both find pier fishing a nice way to unwind and enjoy the simple act of casting a line into the water.

Don Brown and Claude Pearsall are Charlevoix residents who sneak whatever few precious moments they can to drop a line off the pier along the channel. Both have been fishing long enough to remember when the south pier along the channel used to be lined up elbow to elbow with fishermen. Those were the days when lake trout were abundant in the channel waters. "There aren't any lake trout anymore," Pearsall said. Pearsall and Brown fish for small mouth bass in the channel these days.

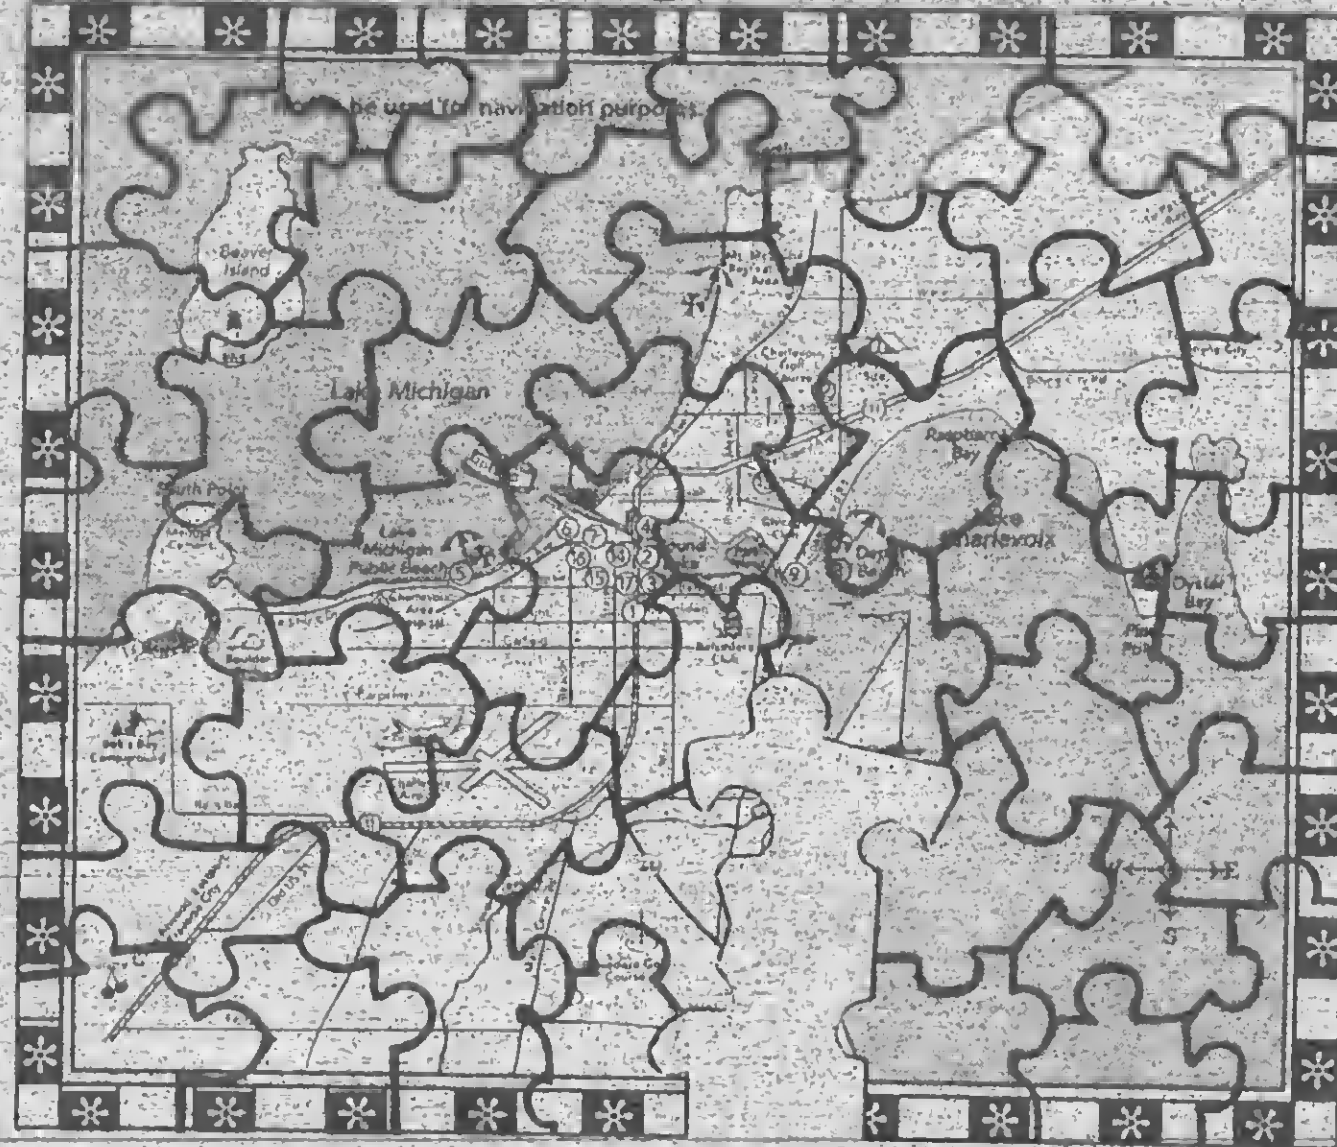

Brown says he likes the solitude of fishing, but also enjoys a little camaraderie at the same time. "You're not totally isolated. You can talk to people," Brown said of pier fishing.

Pearsall has his standard reply when asked why he goes pier fishing. "To get away from my wife," he says with a laugh. He also added, "I ain't got a boat. The pier is a poor man's place to go and sit."

Carol Roszka, a visitor from Grosse Pointe, has been fishing for 14 years. As a young girl, her father used to take the boys out fishing, but not the girls. "Dad never let the girls fish, so this is kind of revenge," Roszka said as she reeled in her line. "It's fun to get something for nothing," Roszka added as she kept fishing for her dinner.

Hal Burstein, a research chemist from Greensboro, N.C., is introducing his daughter and her cousin to the joys of fishing. "It's relaxing, really calm and relaxing," Burstein said.

BUSINESS

1992 sidewalk sales feature bargains

If you feel the earth move this Thursday, don't panic. It's not an earthquake, nor is it a supernatural experience. It's just the ground shaking as thousands of dedicated bargain hunters hit the pavement for Charlevoix's Sidewalk Sales. The sidewalk sales will begin Thursday morning, Aug. 13, and continue through Saturday. Merchants promise to feature an abundance of sale items for the three day event.

After polling the merchants, we came up with a list of the Best Bargains To Be Looking For:

Andrea Mathews, of Country Customs said, "I'll have fabric at reduced prices, at 35% to 40% off. That would be around $2 to $2.50 a yard. I'll also have wind-chimes at 50% off. They normally sell for $18, and they'll sell for $9. I only have a limited amount of them."

At Trademark Clothiers, Fred DiMartino said he'll have a lot of merchandise marked down by 50% to 75%. DiMartino added, "I'll also have a special $5 Rack with really good bargains."

American Spoon Foods is a relative newcomer to the Charlevoix Sidewalk Sales, but they'll be jumping into the spirit of things with their Cherry Chocolate Fruitcake, which will be on sale for $5. The cake is made with Grand Marnier, natural dried cherries and nuts, and is packed in a special folk art box.

Karole Couture, owner of Nautical Gifts said she couldn't pick one particular item as her best bargain. "Everything's half off. If it's out there on the sidewalks, it's half off."

Jackie Staley, manager of J. Phillips, said that they will feature $10 bargain racks, along with 40% to 70% reductions on all summer inventory. She added that Country Casuals will be having a "Major, Major, summer sale."

Alexander's Restaurant on Charlevoix's north side has had a busy summer. In fact the restaurant's waitresses decided that it would save time if they just set up camp in the parking lot and lived where they work. So, as a joke, they pitched camp. Pam Siwicki, owner of the restaurant, enjoyed the joke and got a laugh when she found her crew's new campsite. Waitresses in the tent are, from left to right, Martha Skeel, Jenae Silva, Melissa Boss, and Tracy Marshall.

The Charlevoix city streetsweeping vehicle broke an O ring last Friday, causing the truck's hydraulic line to leak oil on Bridge Street from Park Avenue up to Ainslie Street. Approximately 50 gallons of oil spilled, some draining through the bridge and into the channel. The Department of Natural Resources was promptly contacted to clean up oil that went into the channel, while the city fire and police departments tended to the oil spilled in the street. Material was spread onto the streets to soak up the oil.

Venetian planning takes a lot of time

By Ralph McRae

"More than 30,000 enjoy 1992 Venetian Festival." So this paper said following this year's festival. Any number in that range is hard to estimate, but regardless of the specific number the Venetian Festival is our city's biggest, best and most beautiful day.

But how does it happen? One day the town is more or less calm and quiet, with its normal summer visitors. The next day, the Saturday of the Venetian celebration, it is wall to wall humanity, all enjoying whatever is going on at any particular time.

The 1992 festival was the 62nd Venetian Festival. Started in 1930, the festival is older than the Cherry Festival in Traverse City and now considered among the top five in Michigan for its 12 hours of continuous entertainment.

But how does it happen? It takes almost 12 months of effort and planning. In fact, the Monday after the big Saturday, people are already inquiring about the next year's festival.

Most of the work is done in the Chamber of Commerce office. Every work week a few hours are spent arranging the details that will make the next year's festival a success. This year, Chamber Executive Director Jacqueline Merta and her staff spent hours answering inquiries and mailing out information.

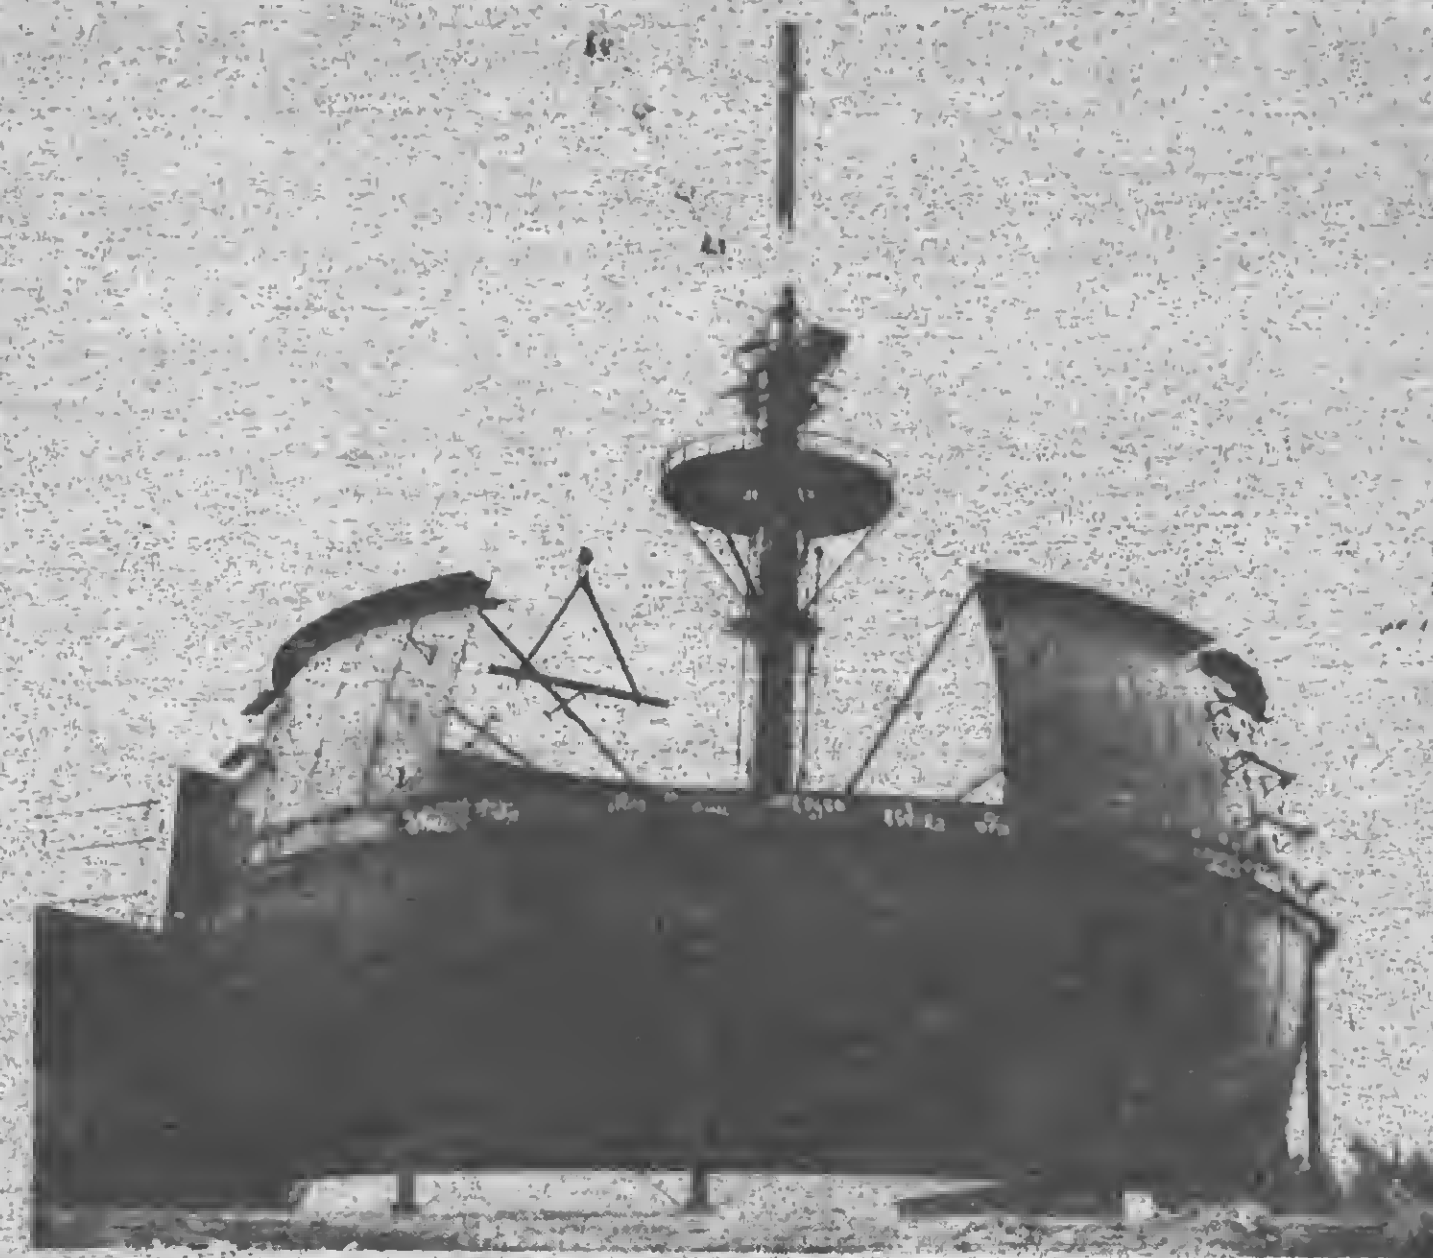

John Taylor of Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering was the overall Director of the 1992 Venetian Celebration. He spent uncountable hours as an unpaid volunteer bringing the festival all together. Taylor was assisted by other capable volunteers who were in charge of various divisions of the festival.

Several permits had to be secured from the City, County, Coast Guard and DNR. Mass gathering regulations had to be complied with. Much time was spent working with various media people to publicize the event.

Last January at the Midwest Convention of Drum and Bugle Corps, the Chamber presented an open invitation to the best corps in all of the near-by states. Several were accepted and contracts were signed. Some of the drum and bugle corps which appeared in the 1992 Venetian Festival have already requested a return appearance for 1993.

The drum and bugle corps groups are paid an additional

Porath to chair CF drive

Linda Porath has been named chairman of the Charlevoix cystic fibrosis fundraising campaign which will take place during the month of September. Money raised during the campaign will be used for research, education, diagnosis and treatment of cystic fibrosis.

Cystic fibrosis is a genetically linked respiratory disease which is the leading genetic cause of death among children and young adults. Although there is still no way to eliminate the disease, the life expectancy of people with the disease has been extended to the late twenties.

In addition to Porath, other local drive chairmen in Charlevoix County will be: Penny Schnelle, Boyne City; Helen Arman, Boyne Falls; Marge Kapanowski, East Jordan; and Patricia Johnson, Walloon Lake.

Young people attending Camp Quality enjoyed a ride aboard the Miss Charlevoix this past week. The boat trip was only one activity in a week filled with activities for the young cancer patients who attended the camp located between Boyne City and Charlevoix.

amount to stay after the Friday evening pageant and participate in the Saturday morning street parade. Before the parade starts, the lawns around the high school are filled with bands and marchers going through last minute rehearsals.

Joe Trojanek was in charge of this year's street parade, reviewing applications and assigning the various positions for the 74 entrants. In the last few moments before the start of the parade, Trojanek zipped about in a golf cart, making sure every float was in the proper place. The goal for the parade is quality of entrants, not necessarily quantity. Some of the parade spectators begin setting up their chairs for the 11 a.m. parade at 7 a.m.

Fireworks for Saturday evening are contracted many months in advance. The City contributes some of the money for the fireworks.

This year, music in the bandshell was dedicated to the memory of the late Charlevoix band director Clarence Odmark. One of Odmark's former students, Gary Stutzman, directed a band made up of Odmark's former students and fellow band directors. Fran Tollas and Evelyn Wojcik also helped organize bandshell entertainment.

Several of Charlevoix's service clubs, organizations and churches set up booths in the park to sell various food items. They were charged $100 to set up the booths, but aside from that kept all profits.

The 1992 boat parade was one of the most successful in memory. The parade chairman was Jodi Ager. After participating in the boat parade, the parade boats are given special docking privileges to watch the fireworks.

Other events at the festival included a carnival, tours of a tall sailing schooner, tours of the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Acacia, and the Drenth Memorial Foot Race.

Venetian Queen Jennifer Castro was selected at a pageant which took place in May.

During Venetian weekend many family members return for celebrations and graduates of Charlevoix High School often return for reunions. It is Charlevoix's biggest weekend for parties and celebrations. State, county and city law enforcement officers are brought in to keep control of crowds and traffic.

The chairmen of the various events had many volunteers to help them. Approximately 40 of these unpaid workers gave freely of their time to make the Venetian Festival a success.

You'll see our smiling faces more than once a year.

Fire Department issue rekindled

Hiring of nonlocal fireman prompts protests

By L. Scott Swanson

Despite complaints by several people at Monday evening's council meeting, the city council will not attempt to force the fire department to hire one of two local applicants as a full-time fireman.

Several people showed up at Monday evening's meeting and approximately 10 of them spoke in protest of a decision by Fire Chief Doug Carver to hire a Levering man rather than one of two local firemen, Tom Meggison or Curt Thompson, who applied for a city opening for a fulltime fireman. The position was created earlier this year when, following months of controversy, the city council voted to increase the fire department's fulltime staff from three to four members—a chief and three firemen, as opposed to a chief and two firemen.

"Our men have been ruthlessly eliminated for a chance for a job by our city manager."

Polly Verwys, protesting the hiring of a non-local person as a city fireman.

Advertisement of the position in various newspapers elicited 86 applications for the position. As advertised, the position required candidates with Firefighter I and EMT (Emergency Medical Technician) certification. According to a paper drafted by Carver explaining the selection process prior to screening applications Carver learned that two of the city's volunteer firemen have the necessary certification. He offered them the fulltime fireman position, but they declined and the selection process continued.

Of the 86 applicants, the six most promising were selected to begin a five-part selection process. The explanation by Carver noted, "Two local applicants, Curt Thompson and Tom Meggison, did not meet the criteria established, but were included in the testing process at the request of the City Manager, who felt that they should have the opportunity to participate."

"We have to allow the fire chief to do his job. We cannot usurp his responsibilities."

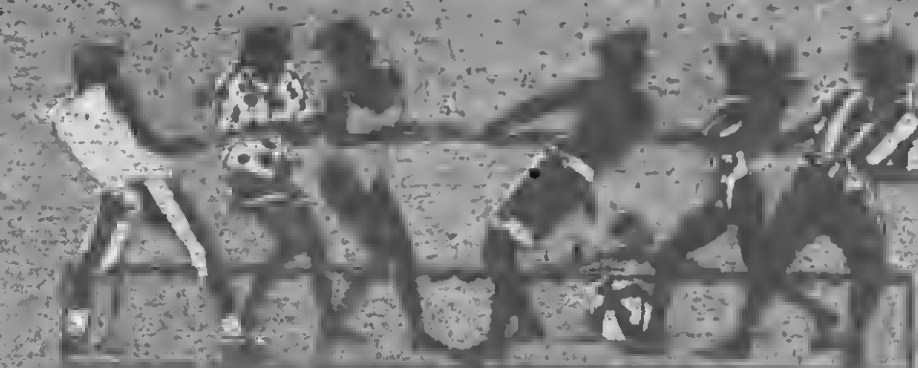

City council member Pat Gaskin, supporting the city hiring practice.

The five-part selection process included: 1. An entry level firefighter test designed by the International Personnel Manager's Association; 2. A physical performance test based on Michigan Municipal League guidelines; 3. An oral evaluation based on Michigan Municipal League guidelines before a board composed of Michael Wiklanski, Captain Petoskey Fire Department; Virgil Robinson, Retired Chief, Southgate Fire Department, and certified member of the Michigan Municipal League Fire Department Oral Board; and Lyle Gennett, Shift Commander, Charlevoix Fire Department; 4. A personal interview by Carver; 5. A psychological examination of the two highest ranked candidates by Dr. Andrew Sahara, East Jordan Medical Clinic.

The candidate offered the position is also subject to a physical examination.

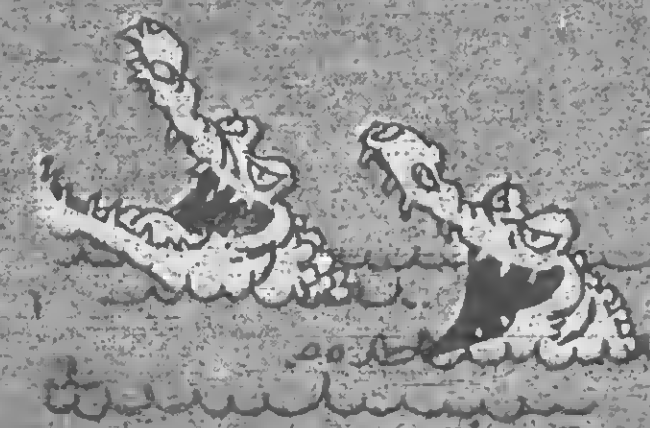

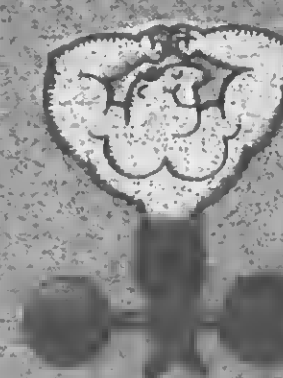

At the conclusion of the paper explaining the hiring process, Carver wrote, "In regards to the question, if a person is good enough to be a volunteer firefighter, why isn't he good enough to be a full time firefighter, the answer is in the different nature of the positions, and the training and background required. Basically a highly trained volunteer firefighter deals primarily with "hands on" situation, such as driving fire trucks, handling hose lines, raising ladders, etc. On the other hand, due to the needs of the department, our full time firefighters have been designated "Shift Commanders" who are in charge at fire scenes and emergency operations. The position requires advanced training and the selection process was dedicated to selecting the best possible person for this position.

...fire dept. hiring draws protests

"Lastly, I do feel that local people should be considered for hire first, but only if they meet the qualifications for the position. Also, I feel that it is my responsibility to prepare our interested volunteer firefighters professionally for promotion to the full time ranks, and prepare our full time personnel to be able to take over as chief of the department, and I will make every possible effort in this area."

Those who protested the decision refused to accept the criteria and blamed city manager Mike Wiesner for the decision not to hire one of the local candidates. Meggison, one of the two local candidates, called the firefighter test a cover laid down by Wiesner so that no local person could meet the criteria. He noted that Carver did not have a current EMT certification upon becoming fire chief, but was hired and is being allowed to get the necessary training. He said that Gennett was allowed to complete training requirements after being hired and that Police Chief Dennis Halverson has done extensive training work since being hired.

Polly Verwys, a resident who regularly attends council meetings, claimed, "Our men have been ruthlessly eliminated for a chance for a job by our city manager."

Meggison's wife, Kathy, read a certificate of commendation her husband received from the city council in 1985 after rescuing a four-year-old girl from a burning building. "My husband deserves the job. He's worked hard to get it," she said.

Volunteer fireman Doug Bergmann said that in the approximately two months that Carver has been on the job there have been at least three instances where there have been dispatch difficulties or brief response delays caused by Carver's lack of familiarity with certain geographic locations within the fire district. Bergmann said there is a direct relationship between the level of fire department service and somebody knowing where they're going within the fire department district.

Volunteer fireman Barry Wood criticized Wiesner for not hiring local people for city jobs. He said that during Wiesner's tenure there have been 26 or 27 city jobs come open and approximately a third of them have been filled by people who were not local.

Wiesner maintains that during his tenure as city manager there have been about 25 positions open and that 18 of them have been filled by local people. Of the other seven, five required some form of licensing or certification which no local person possessed. Wiesner said that he has always endeavored to hire local people.

Council members Cheri Hoffman, Pat Gaskin and Ted Felter indicated that while the city charter places responsibility for setting policy and hiring a city manager on the shoulders of the city council, the responsibility for hiring other personnel is delegated to the city manager and department heads.

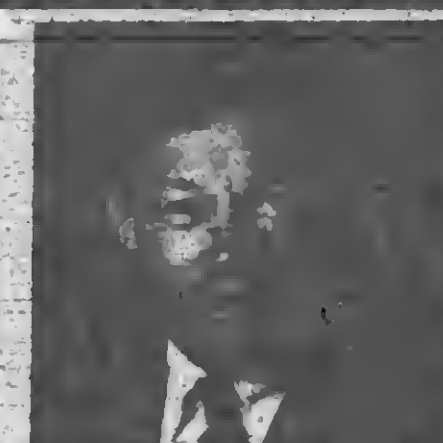

"We have to allow the fire chief to do his job. We cannot usurp his responsibilities," Gaskin said.

Hoffman said she felt all of the applicants for the fireman's position were dealt with objectively. She said she agreed with Gaskin and felt the council should stand behind the fire chief's decision.

Felter noted that other people from out of town have been hired in other city departments without creating a big fuss. He said he doesn't see why there should be a difference in hiring for the fire department.

"I am not in a position to do the daily hiring of the city," Felter said.

Councilman Butch Russell was the lone voice of dissent on the council. He said he agreed with the audience members and felt one of the local applicants should have been hired.

Editorial

City and County acted correctly

Credit is due both the Charlevoix City Council and the Charlevoix County Commissioners this week for deciding not to act rashly despite public pressure to do so. In the case of the Charlevoix City Council, the council wisely chose not to reverse, or otherwise become entangled in, a hiring decision made by the city fire chief. In the case of the County Board of Commissioners, the commissioners chose not to jump on the 9-1-1 emergency dispatch wagon and levy a millage despite reservations expressed by voters in a recent election.

Monday evening the Charlevoix City Council faced pressure from a group of protesters who were unhappy about Fire Chief Doug Carver's decision to hire someone from out of town, rather than one of two local candidates, for a fire department vacancy. Carver had outlined the hiring procedure in a memo the council received. (See story page 1.)

Monday evening's council decision regarding the fire department was less important in regard to the specific job vacancy than it was in regard to what the city's hiring policy and general decision making policy is to be based upon. By refusing to undermine the fire chief's decision, the council supported continuation of allowing city department heads to test, interview and hire the personnel for their departments. The alternative before the council was to establish a new policy of council hiring, based not upon testing and interviews, but based upon whichever candidate can round up enough people to create a fuss at a council meeting. Talk about a municipal operations nightmare!

If people have a problem with the way city government is operating, that's all right. Democracy allows for discontent. But there are ways to alter the direction of local government without creating new systemic problems in the function of city government. City policy and direction should be based upon election results, not en masse complaints at council meetings.

County commissioners acted wisely when they chose to show patience in deciding what direction to take next on 9-1-1. Prior to the recent primary election, voters were told that unless all four 9-1-1 proposals (two in Charlevoix County and two in Emmet County) passed, then the 9-1-1 proposal would not go forward. Two of the issues failed, yet the Emmet County commissioners now appear to be willing to go forward any way. That simply doesn't square with the message put out prior to the election. It damages their credibility with voters.

Charlevoix commissioners have chosen not to be rushed into making a decision. They are going to analyze the situation and look into alternatives before choosing a new direction. That improves their credibility with voters.

Letters to the editor

Natives, summer people and pilgrims

Editor:
The letter is written in response to Edith Gilbert's commentary of August 19, 1992.

Ms. Gilbert: Why are non-natives, such as yourself, always trying to figure out a way to be a Charlevoix native? Summer people are just that — summer people. They will never be natives. A native is someone born and raised in Charlevoix. Next, anyone who can spell Charlevoix will be a native. A person who moved to Charlevoix, but lives here year-around is a pilgrim! Where you shop and what you bought does not constitute getting on the Native List.

Charlevoix County Board analyzes 9-1-1 prospects

By Laurie Lounsbury

There seems to be increasing static on the 911 line. Charlevoix County Commissioners fielded questions and comments from the public on the 911 issue at their last regular meeting, Aug. 12. Only one thing is clear in regard to the public's opinion of having 911. The public is very unclear about the funding, the millage tax, and the user fee needed to support an enhanced 911 plan with a central dispatch system.

At the Aug. 4 primary election, two proposals were put to the voters to start a 911 system. Proposal A asked voters to approve a tax increase of up to one mill for two years, which would pay for the acquisition and initial months of operation of 911 equipment, and for a central dispatch service. Proposal B passed narrowly, by a vote of 2,458 to 2,329. Proposal B asked voters to approve a surcharge on their phone bill of up to a 20 percent increase on their basic monthly telephone service, which could amount to $2.25 a month. That would pay for ongoing operation of the 911 system. Proposal B was voted down 2,659 to 2,012.

The split vote has left county commissioners scratching their heads, trying to figure out why the millage passed and the surcharge failed. Commissioner Don Smith said, "The voters bought the Cadillac, but they didn't want to put any gas in the tank." Commissioner Phil Johnson said it might be that the voters were confused by the separate proposals, but the passing of Proposal A would indicate that they do want 911 service in Charlevoix County.

Johnson opened the discussion by giving a report from the Aug. 10 911 committee meeting. He said that the 911 committee has drawn up a four point plan. The four points include: 1) Encouraging Cheboygan County to go in with Charlevoix and Emmet Counties on a 911 system, which would reduce the cost; 2) Having Charlevoix County take whatever steps are necessary to levy one mill; 3) Legally establishing a 911 Authority as soon as possible; 4) Having Charlevoix and Emmet counties sign a letter of intent with the phone companies for implementation of a 911 system.

Johnson went on to say that a 911 authority would work to find out why the vote was split. He also said that the cost of the radio equipment should be much less than the projected cost, which was based on

Camp Quality touches the hearts of all who participate

(Editor's note: The following story is one in a series of stories being written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a former city councilman and mayor and continues to be active in a variety of civic affairs.)

By Ralph McRae

Although you may have heard of Camp Quality, hearing about the camp seldom adequately prepares a person for the impact of a visit to the camp. For at this camp, 54 children come to live for seven days. These are very special children in that most of them are afflicted with some type of cancer. They range in age from four to 17. They face an uncertain future. They have been and will continue to combat life threatening situations.

During the week at the camp, each camper will have a caring companion who will be at their side each and every hour of the day. These volunteers share with the children a multitude of activities at the busy camp. Campers and companions participate in hand-craft classes, using a potter's wheel, decorating tee shirts and doing simple science experiments. Some of the girls model grown up fashions, both boys and girls play an abbreviated game of golf, go fishing and engage in water sports.

Many of the campers are unable to participate in the more strenuous games. Six nurses and a physician are on stand-by. Medicines prescribed by the campers' own doctors are given on a schedule each day.

Camp Quality takes place at Park of the Pines, a beautiful 40-acre terraced natural setting on the shores of Lake Charlevoix between Charlevoix and Boyne City. The park is owned by a church organization, but it is leased for one week by Camp Quality. The park has several buildings in the woods and a sandy beach along the lake shore. There was ample housing for the 28 boys and 26 girls who were campers this year and for their companions. The buildings also include a mess hall which can seat more than 100 people and a large chapel.

In addition to the ever-present companions, there is a large support staff. The staff includes activity instructors, water sports supervisors, a large kitchen and dining room crew and a squad of women in golf carts who taxi people around the camp.

The camp has an exciting atmosphere of cheerfulness and natural enjoyment. It is like a fantasy land. The unpaid volunteers are eager to give out information and obviously proud to be a part of the program.

A tremendous amount of planning and attention goes into preparing for the once a year encampment. The Michigan version of Camp Quality was founded in 1988. The idea originated in Australia and has spread throughout the world. There are now several. The camp's present annual budget is approximately $45,000. Camp Quality does not publicly campaign for donations, however contributions are welcome. (Anyone who would like to contribute may phone 582-2399 after 6 p.m.)

Children attending the camp come from all parts of Michigan. (This year there were also two from Canada.) A network of doctors advises children about the camp. Although the camp itself is a one-week event, contact is maintained throughout the year. Reunions and special snow day outings bring many of the campers back to Northern Michigan.

The camp offers different things to different people. The children and their parents are offered a brief reprieve from the stress and worry of their battle with cancer. The people who staff the camp and work with the children take home a reward that defies any explanation words can offer.

Pat Johnson of Boyne City has been a camp helper for three years, the last two with the same little girl who is now six years old. She has grown very close to the little girl, staying with her day and night at the camp and keeping in touch through phone calls and letters during the rest of the year.

A young man named Chip Langer was another helper at the camp. He is a registered nurse. This was his first year at the camp and he was profoundly touched by his camper, a seven year old boy. Together, they tried to make each moment at camp a memorable one. The boy was frail and had to be treated gently. It took the boy a couple of days to get over being homesick and to accept his guardian. Then he began to have fun.

All of the companions attempt to transmit some of the energy from their life into the children. Motivation and the spirit of caring are what drive Camp Quality. Seeing all of the beautiful children and the people working to help them is a very moving and lasting experience.

Funeral service was held Wednesday, Aug. 5, at the First Christian Church in Sac City, Iowa with the Rev. Peter O. Sanderson and the Rev. Lari R. Grubbs officiating. Interment was in Oakland Cemetery, Sac City.

Mr. Kneebone was born July 25, 1906, in Flandreau, S.D., the son of James Harrison and Clara Hemanda (Knudson) Kneebone. He graduated from Washington High School in Sioux Falls, S.D. in 1928. He attended Dubose Memorial Church Training School in Tennessee from 1928-29 and graduated from Seabury Divinity School in Tennessee in 1932. He did post graduate work at the University of Wisconsin, University of Michigan and Michigan State University.

On April 20, 1933, in St. Paul, Minn. he married Marion E. Lodge. She preceded him in death in 1975.

The Rev. Kneebone was made a deacon in the Episcopal Church in 1933 and was ordained to the priesthood in 1934. He served both the Emmanuel Church in Petoskey and Christ Church in Charlevoix from 1940-42. Other parishes and missions he served, most including more than one church, were: Lake Andes, S.D.; Ionia, Mich.; Winner, S.D.; Sisseton, S.D.; Sanjee-Nio-brara, Neb.; Park Rapids, Minn.; Hinckley, Minn.; Duluth, Minn.; Fort Dodge, Iowa; Webster City, Iowa; Storm Lake, Iowa; Sac City, Iowa; and Carroll, Iowa.

The Kneebones moved to Sac City in 1971. The Rev. Kneebone was resident chaplain at Park View Manor/Care Center from 1979 until his death.

He was dean of the Rosebud Deanery in South Dakota from 1943-47, and superintending presbyter of the Sisseton South Dakota Indian Mission during the 1950s.

Survivors include two sons, Ted of Aberdeen, S.D. and Bob of Long Beach, Calif.; one daughter, Betty Criddle of Salinas, Calif.; eight grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; one brother, Milton of Sioux Falls, S.D.; and one sister, Evelyn Cline of Tyndal, S.D. In addition to his wife Marion, he was preceded in death by a brother, Verlyn.

The family suggests memorial contributions be sent to Ted Kneebone, 1408 S. Main No. 3, Aberdeen, S.D. 57501. Memorial gifts may be designated for either Park View Care Center Chapel or All Saints Church, Storm Lake, Iowa.

Arrangements were handled by the Farber & Ottman Funeral Home.

4-H members prepare for 1992 county fair

A variety of activities offered for a variety of kids

By Laurie Lounsbury

It's a kid's paradise. With a brightly lit midway, carnival rides, elephant ears and an abundance of animals to pet, the Charlevoix-Emmet County Fair is something that area children look forward to all summer.

Other area children have been looking forward to the fair for the better part of the year. These youths will be active participants in the fair. They are members of 4-H, and they have worked hard on their projects that they will display at the fair. And when the fair is over, some will take home blue ribbons for their efforts, but all will take home a sense of pride and achievement. "Kids come away feeling good about themselves," said Rose Hammerberg, a 4-H leader. "We try to make it a positive experience." Hammerberg has a club of eight children that raise pocket pets, rabbits, and farm animals. Her club also does arts and crafts, can jams and bakes. Hammerberg explains that all the children need to keep a record book for their animals. The record book tracks all the expenses related to raising and caring for their animals. The keeping of a record book teaches kids responsibility, record-keeping, writing and organizational skills. "There's a lot of benefit in it," Hammerberg said. Hammerberg is a devoted 4-H leader, which comes across clearly as she talks enthusiastically about 4-H and her club. "It's a wonderful thing," Hammerberg said. "If it keeps mine and one other kid off drugs, it's worth it."

Is this positive experience limited to kids in the country that live on farms? Not at all. 4-H has grown and expanded to accommodate the needs and interests of all children. There are categories for photography, painting, arts and crafts, baking, sewing, basketball, skiing, and a host of other activities. And if a category doesn't exist for a child's specific interest, there is a self-determined category, which allows a child to do a project on anything that interests them. Fran Phalen, a 4-H leader in Charlevoix, explains the principle of 4-H. "Everyone is allowed to pursue what they want to do. That's what's wonderful about 4-H; it's so flexible." Phalen's 4-H club works on craft projects and cooking, two things that interest Phalen. Phalen readily admits that she can't say enough good things about 4-H. She quickly names off some of the reasons she is so happy with the 4-H program. "There is no cost involved. The (4-H) staff in Boyne City is wonderful. It's fun for kids to work together with adults. The kids come to understand that learning is a life long process. Best of all, 4-H rewards kids for effort, not necessarily for the final result," Phalen said. Phalen told of how her daughter, Delaney had been studying piano and wanted to do a 4-H project about her piano playing. She entered in the self-determined category, and made a tape about piano playing, along with an explanation of what she had studied and learned. Delaney came away from the project feeling very proud of herself and her accomplishments.

The Charlevoix Emmet County Fair will begin August 22nd and continue through August 30th. For those attending, remember that the biggest attraction lies behind the midway, where the 4-H kids will be displaying the animals they've raised, the preserves they've canned, the quilts they've sewn, and the crafts they've made. Keep an eye out for the child that marches to the beat of a different drummer. Maybe he did a project on stargazing or bug collecting. Whatever the project, he'll be proud of his work, and 4-H will be rewarding his efforts. Perhaps that is really the greatest show on earth.

4-H leader Fran Phalen stands in her kitchen with Delaney and Thomas, two of her eight club members. Delaney is exhibiting her "dreamcatcher" a craft project she made for the fair. The dreamcatcher should be hung in a bedroom, so it can catch the good dreams in the web and let the bad dreams pass through.

list price figures provided by a consultant. He said that there would be competitive bidding for the equipment, which should bring the costs down.

After Johnson outlined the 911 committee's plan, Smith opened up the floor for discussion.

Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud said that he talked to many people before the meeting to get their opinions. "I'll tell you why Proposal B failed," said Stroud. "People don't trust Bell Telephone with a 20 percent surcharge on their basic phone bill."

Karl Waldner, a frequent critic of governmental units and their taxation policies, questioned the sensibility of going ahead with a 911 plan while the county is still involved in a lawsuit with Antrim County. Charlevoix County is suing to keep three of the county's telephone exchanges out of the Antrim county 911 plan. Waldner also wanted to know why the commissioners were unable to take competitive bids and determine the real cost of a 911 plan including the possible cost of erecting two new radio transformer towers.

Ed Holm of Marion Township said, "Everybody wants 911. We just don't want it run through too quickly." He said he would like to see the 911 plan put up for election again, but would like to see the true costs of the plan.

Police Chief Dennis Halverson spoke in behalf of the 911 plan. "We got excited about 911 because it will enable us to do a better job of saving lives and property," he added. "Obviously you know what side I'm on. You want me on that side. You want me, and the Sheriff, and the volunteer fire department to be on that side, to serve the public better."

Patty Sitzema of Charlevoix Heart Start also spoke in favor of the 911 system. "If you save one dad, one kid, one person, you've paid for 911."

Everyone who spoke at the meeting was in favor of having a 911 system, but doubts remained about the true cost and funding of 911. Commissioner Walt Hufford responded to the question of expense by saying, "We can have 911 cheap. All the big funds are for central dispatch. You don't have to have central dispatch to have 911."

Johnson said in a phone interview later that he would like to have the county take bids for the 911 equipment. "I think the cost would really be 35 to 40 percent lower than the figures quoted," Johnson said. Johnson believes so strongly in the 911 system that he will continue to maintain a very strong stand on the issue. "I'm convinced 911 will save lives and property," he said. He is willing to risk his position as a county commissioner for 911. "If I go out (as commissioner) on 911, but I get that through, I'll leave happy."

DDA board renews downtown coordinator funds

By L. Scott Swanson

The Downtown Development Authority (DDA) has voted to renew funding for the Downtown Coordinator position for another year. The position is funded by the DDA, but administered by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

At the DDA's Aug. 12 meeting, Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Jacqueline Meria requested renewed funding for the coordinator position. She explained that the purpose of the position is to identify and attract businesses to the downtown area which will complement existing businesses and create a better mix of businesses. She said the objective is to enhance the viability of Charlevoix's downtown area by attracting businesses which will be open year around or at least be back year after year.

Last year the DDA allocated $16,000 for the Downtown Coordinator position. They allocated the same amount last year. The DDA first agreed to fund the position in April of 1991. Rod Benson was hired for the job and began work in September, 1991.

At last week's DDA meeting, Meria presented the Downtown Coordinator's budget breakdown for 1991. It was as follows: Office Expenses - Office Supplies $781.52; Phone/Postage $680.27; Rent $1,650; Secretarial Services $1,179.24; Printing/Publications $680.32; Coordinator Fees/Expenses - Employment Advertising $624.87; Coordinator Fees $8,380.64; Meetings and Travel $894.33; Miscellaneous $30. Total expenses - $14,901.19.

Benson, who has worked in the field of downtown development for 25 years, told the DDA board, "Downtown is healthy at the present time. Bridge Street is 100 percent occupied." He said that downtown coordinator's office can't take all of the credit for that, but noted that the office has served as a clearinghouse for information about vacant space downtown.

Accomplishments Benson listed for his first year as Downtown Coordinator included the following: conducting a survey to identify perceived needs in the downtown area; developing a 62-point action agenda, which was adopted by the Chamber of Commerce board of directors; publishing five Bridge Beat (a business newsletter) publications; advertising Charlevoix in the Guide to Northwest Michigan; improving distribution of the Charlevoix and Beaver Island Chamber Guide so that it now is given to all boat passengers to Beaver Island; organizing downtown petunia planting in conjunction with the City and Keep Charlevoix Beautiful; and acting as a sounding board for the concerns of downtown business people.

Benson said much of the growth that has occurred in the downtown area has come through the expansion of existing businesses. "The best growth that's going to occur in downtown is somebody getting bigger," he noted.

DDA member Dale Troppman asked Benson how many of the storefronts that were filled were directly attributable to him. Benson said that it's hard to say exactly how much he was responsible for. He said he played a role in filling each of the vacant spaces, whether that role was five percent or 50 percent is difficult to say. He mentioned that one of the purposes of the Bridge Beat publication is to let people know when property becomes available.

DDA chairman Hugh Mason asked Benson what he envisions as goals for 1992. Benson said he would like to see continued work or closure on some major projects such as the Kusina parking lot, Bridge Park improvements and new street lights.

DDA member Jeannine Wallace supported the renewal of coordinator funding. She described the past year's accomplishments as "invaluable" and said the project has provided the downtown area with a

Yachting Notes

Saturday, the 15th of August, 17 yachts sailed from Charlevoix to Northport using only 2-person crews in the Third James Duke Memorial Cup Race. This race commemorates the memory of Young Jim Duke, who only a few years ago was a regular competitor of CYC's Wednesday night triangle races. Race rules mandate that only two people may work the yacht, whether sailing with spinaker or not. In contrast to 1991's storm-filled day, 1992 brought soft, light winds, a flat lake and blue skies. Bill and Claudia Kenefick in Humdinger were the first to reach the Northport buoy, but Terry and Judy Edger in White Lightning repeated their son's 1991 win on corrected time. In the Jib and Main division, Ken and Jeanne Heininger in Cheemaun took the blue flag in their first attempt in this off-shore race. A CYC get-together, hosted by George and Joyce Duke in Northport provided an evening of camaraderie between the club's power and sail boaters.

August 19 will be the last race of the summer series on Lake Charlevoix. The closest dogfight is currently between Tireless and Blasen in Fleet B with only 0.75 point separating the Carlands from displacing Karl Jurries from first place. It looks like Pygmalion has wrapped up first in Fleet A with Humdinger and Cheemaun holding a clean edge in their fleets. On the lake Wednesday, Pygmalion took a corrected first by only 13 seconds from Apprentice after nearly 90 minutes of racing. Dylan Stewart captured the first gun of the year for Cygnus in Fleet B with a close win over Blasen and Vermonter. Newsense took their first gun in Fleet C with a clean win over Humdinger and Bandit, and Frank Ochs seems to have found the groove in the JAM fleet. That old P-26 should be with her sisters in the B-Fleet.

August 26 will be Ladies Night on the lake for the second of three planned women's races. The annual Red Fox Regatta is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 5-6, a nony mouse

Hole in one scored by occasional golfer

Darren Dawson of Central Lake recently had a hole-in-one at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course. The ace occurred on the 205-yard seventh hole. Dawson, an occasional rather than a die-hard golfer, made the shot with a five wood. It was his first hole-in-one and he did what he could to make up for it during the remainder of the round, finishing the day with a total of 50 strokes for nine holes.

CHARLEVOIX CITY COUNCIL SPECIAL MEETING August 11, 1992 SYNOPSIS

The Charlevoix City Council met in special session on the above date and time with Mayor Novotny presiding and all Councilmembers present except Councilmember Felter. The purpose of the meeting was discussion concerning the C & O Club project.

After a lengthy discussion concerning the grade of the road, Council agreed that they would like the road grade lowered a foot, and a shallow ditch and a culvert with a small manhole structure with a beehive grate on top be utilized. The developer has already lowered the road some but agreed with the Council's wishes and agreed to bring a print of the new plan back to Council at their August 17, 1992 meeting.

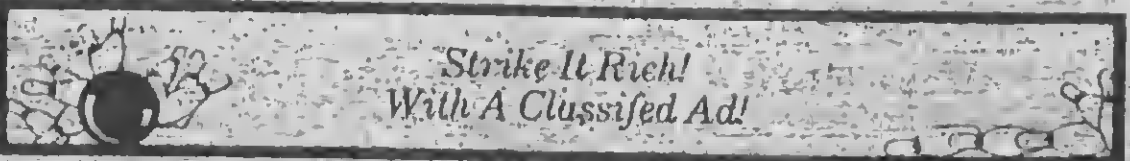

Motion carried tabling the C & O Club discussion until Council meets on August 17th when the developer will bring a print for the new plan.

Motion carried to make the access from Cherry Street to Depot Beach be via stairs instead of stairless access. The developer to present a drawing at the August 17th meeting.

Meeting adjourned at 9:40 p.m.

Taxpayers pay thousands just before deadline

By L. Scott Swanson

During the final two weeks of August, between $300,000 and $400,000 will cross the desk at the treasurer's office in City Hall. The Charlevoix Township treasurer will collect even more than that, approximately $600,000. People will be bringing in or mailing in money to pay summer property taxes prior to the Sept. 1 city and Sept. 14 township deadline.

Many people will wait to pay until just before the deadline. "We get a lot of payments right around the weekend of the first (of September)," noted City Treasurer Rick Brandt.

"In the last two weeks before they're due, probably about 40 percent (of the number of billings) comes in," Township Treasurer Theda Williams said.

Some people will choose to withhold their summer taxes and pay property taxes for the whole year by the winter tax collection deadline Feb. 15. However, unless a property owner has received a deferment, waiting until February will result in a penalty of one percent of the summer tax fee per month between Sept. 1 and the time the tax is paid.

To have summer taxes deferred until February without the one percent penalty, a property owner must fill out a deferment application form and return it to City Hall by Sept. 15. To be eligible for deferment, a person must have a household income of less than $25,000 for the preceding calendar year and be either: 62 or older; a paraplegic or quadriplegic; an eligible serviceperson, veteran, widow or widower; a blind person, or totally and permanently disabled. Forms are available at the treasurer's office.

Taxes which aren't paid by Feb. 15 are considered overdue. Brandt said that in the city of Charlevoix normally between 85 and 87 percent of the property owners have paid their property tax bill by the February deadline. Some people consider that payment percentage figure to be an economic indicator. Charlevoix's payment percentage hasn't varied much dur-

Why winter and summer taxes vary

Although property taxes are collected twice during the year, the two billings aren't equal. Why is that? Because the summer tax bill and the winter tax bills aren't for exactly the same things.

For city taxpayers, the summer tax bill is for half of the school taxes and all of the city taxes. On their winter tax bill, city taxpayers pay the other half of the school taxes plus the county taxes, county transit

Tax terms in English Market Value - The price you could theoretically sell your home for.
State Equalized Value (SEV) - Half of market value.

A Mill - $1 for every $1,000 of SEV. To figure out how much each mill costs you, find the SEV figure on your tax bill. Rather than saying the figure in thousands of dollars, just say it in dollars. For example, if the SEV is $20,000, each mill costs you $20 per year.

Tug of War outcome subject to dispute

A northside perspective

By Laurie Lounsbury
The Charlevoix northside residents pulled off a surprising victory against the southside last Sunday in Charlevoix's second annual tug of war.

As the northside and southside residents prepared to pull against each other on opposite sides of the Pine River Channel, it appeared that the southside would have an other easy victory in hand. The multitude of brawny southsiders was an ominous sight for the handful of less-than-beefy northsiders as

A southside perspective

By L. Scott Swanson
Anchored by a utility pole, the northside tug of war team dug in their heels Sunday afternoon hoping to salvage at least a smidgen of dignity as they prepared to pull against the overwhelming superiority of the southside team.

The contest began and the northside team grunted and groaned, puffed and pulled and strained for slightly more than 60 seconds. Despite the northside efforts, the southside team and the rope they held failed to budge.

During the construction, all hospital services will be delivered as usual. Visitors and patients may park in the front parking area nearest the emergency entrance. The north half of the lot will be closed.

It will also be necessary for visitors and patients to use the emergency entrance. The main entrance will be closed during construction. No one will be allowed near the construction site which will consist of a large, dangerous excavation during early stages of work.

Administrative offices located in the lower level will be moved to the physicians' office building behind the hospital and to the annex building at the rear of the hospital. The lower level will be extensively re-modeled for the new maternity unit.

...people parade in to pay summer property taxes

ing the past five years, Brandt said. The city turns over a list of unpaid taxes to the county March 1. The county pays the city the total of the delinquent taxes and then initiates the process of collecting the taxes from the property owners.

From a property owner's standpoint, the interest and penalty meter starts running and continues running as soon as the taxes become overdue. However, after March 1 the county, rather than the city, is entitled to that interest and penalty money. That money is derived from interest on unpaid taxes of one percent per month plus a four percent collection fee.

If property owners don't eventually pay their property taxes, the property is sold at a county tax sale. However, before the property owner loses the property on taxes, he will receive several notices during a three-year period.

County treasurer Joan Balch offered the following scenario for what would occur if someone's property went on the delinquent tax roll in March of 1992. The property owner would receive a first notice shortly after July 1, 1992. Subsequent notices would be mailed: July 1, 1993; Aug. 1, 1993; Nov. 1, 1993; and April 1, 1994. The property could then be sold at the May, 1994 tax sale. Even if the property is sold at the tax sale, the property owner would still have until April 30, 1995 to pay the taxes, penalties and interest and get the property back. A Jan. 1, 1995 certified letter would inform the property owner that he was about to lose the property. After the property is sold at a tax sale, there are also interest charges the property owner would have to pay to the person who purchased the property.

Balch explained that in recent years, Charlevoix County has normally had about 1,000 pieces of property initially listed on the tax sale list which is published in March. (The list is normally published for three consecutive weeks in March in the Courier.) Usually, the delinquent taxes on about 800 of the 1,000 parcels listed are paid prior to the May tax sale. Consequently, there are usually only about 200 parcels of property available at the Charlevoix County tax sale.

they gazed across the channel waters.

As the tug-of-war commenced, for some reason, a tall power pole bobbed and weaved uncertainly every time the northside heaved on the rope. Northsiders pulled the rope and the red ribbon to the point of victory in approximately a minute.

For Charlevoix Township taxpayers, the summer tax bill is simply for half of the school taxes. The winter tax bill is for the other half of school taxes and everything else; everything else being township taxes, county taxes, county transit tax, county medical care facility tax and intermediate school district tax. Continued from page 1

For all their work, the only thing the northside accomplished was taking the slack out of the rope. And, they declared that good enough. They threw down the rope, declared themselves the winners and went home.

As the northside team dispersed, the southside team stood at the edge of the channel and wondered. Where are they going? They pull on a rope for a minute and then have to rush off to redo their fingernails, or what? We were just getting ready to fetch them over to a better side of life.

Although the northside is declaring victory, that victory is being appealed. The southside is going to address this matter with the International Tug of War League and file a complaint with the League Commissioner, whoever that may be.

OPINIONS

EDITH

A pilgrim? Perhaps.

by EDITH GILBERT

Of course summer people will never be Charlevoix natives!

And I never intimated in my previous column that this could be so. Everyone knows that a native is a person who is born and raised in a place. What I did say is that many summer people think of Charlevoix as home. It's where many couples choose to get married and where family reunions, birthdays and anniversaries are regularly celebrated almost as often as in St. Louis, Chicago or Cambridge.

Pleasant vacation memories of Charlevoix are stored in the cupboard of one's mind. Childish pastimes of watching the bridge go up and down, gathering Petoskey stones, digging in the sand and then when one becomes older, there's water skiing, tennis and golf or working as a busboy or waitress in a local restaurant.

In response to some recent phone calls and the letter in the Courier, I am puzzled by the unfriendly attitude expressed by the readers regarding my earlier humorous column. The letter referred to me as a pilgrim: A PILGRIM? My dictionary says that a pilgrim is a Latin word describing a foreigner, one who journeys in alien lands or one who travels to visit some holy place or a first settler or a recent immigrant, a newcomer.

Well, could be that's right. Since I was born in New York City and left it at the age of three, I hardly can call myself a New York native. I journeyed to several alien lands (Germany and China) and arrived in Charlevoix in the summer of 1940 by way of San Francisco, Beverly Hills and Detroit.

A Charlevoix native I am definitely not, either. A pilgrim, maybe. Yet, I hardly feel like a recent immigrant or a newcomer! Especially since I'm flattered that there are people in town who have come to think of me as one of Charlevoix's historians. Since this is my home where I vote and pay taxes, I guess I'm a person who lives in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix has always been a popular summer resort ever since the turn of the century. Charlevoix people have been receptive to the growth of tourism. Much more so than our neighboring community of East Jordan, for example. Many, many native Charlevoix people have for years opened their hearts and minds as well as their hills and beaches to summer people and more recently retirees. It's time that a few stragglers amend their closed minds, go-away, keep quiet, just pay your bills, you can't tell us anything attitude.

Fortunately there are enough native Charlevoix people who have often told my how much the so-called "pilgrims" have contributed to, defended and supported the enhancement and enrichment of this lovely area. Would that were more mutual understanding and respect between both groups, who have so much in common — Charlevoix, the Beloved!

Letters to the editor

Two art fairs healthy

Editor,

This concerns the two competing "Art Fairs" in Charlevoix. My wife and I are both professional, award-winning artists. Most recently we were invited to and participated in the "Festival of the Masters" at Disney World in Florida.

I am writing in the name of many of the artists who participated in the "Castle Farms Art Festival". As the name indicates, it is an Art Festival, not an art show. An art show is for the visual arts (show - visual - fine arts). An "Art Festival", celebrates all the arts, including performing arts (music, dance, mime, etc.).

There seems to be a segment, organized or not, which objects to the Castle Farms Art Festival. This is evidenced by the removal or destruction of advertising signs and rumors about its promoters and participants.

It seems to me that art is the one place in which we should not be overwhelmed by competition. Art is an expression of oneself, and therefore what each artist produces is unique. The Charlevoix Waterfront Show and the Castle Farms Art Festival should work together, for together they give the residents and visitors to Charlevoix a rare chance to see artists from all parts of the country. Giving them the opportunity to see, not just 200, but 400 high quality artists, makes this one of the most unique art weekends in Michigan and the country. In the end, both art shows, and likewise, the community, will benefit.

I believe anyone who champions art must champion all the principles underlying all arts and all society whom arts benefits. True art leaves no room for selfishness, greed or dishonesty, it must be free, independent and unrestrained. To constrain means to inhibit, to censor, to repress.

Let us work together, to promote both art shows for the good of Charlevoix, the artists and society as a whole.

Both shows are excellent, and the artists who participate are quality artists.

FAMILY

Newton - Wright

Cynthia Newton of Las Vegas, Nevada, and Carl D. Wright of Charlevoix were married on July 24th, in an afternoon wedding.

The bride is the daughter of Randall and Maxine Newton of Derby, Kansas. The groom is the son of Sarah Wright and the late Carl S. Wright of Charlevoix.

Reverend Craig Adams performed the single ring ceremony at the Horton Bay Methodist Church, witnessed by a dozen friends and family members.

The bride wore a street length English floral dress with a sweetheart neckline. She carried white and soft pink roses, surrounded with baby Queen Anne's lace.

Pamela Wright Kirtley served as the maid of honor, and the best men were the groom's sons, Mathew and Mark Wright.

Lee Thomas Kirtley acted as ringbearer.

A reception was given by the groom's mother, Mrs. Sarah Wright, with assistance from Mrs. Byron Wright and Mrs. Evonne Wright. The reception was held in the home of the groom's mother.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted at the Argonne Supper Club by Leroy and Pamela Kirtley.

The groom is employed by Advance Medical/Metpath, and the bride is self-employed.

The newlyweds will make their home in Charlevoix, and plan to take a honeymoon at a later date.

Biggerstaff - Scholey

Robert Scholey & Kelly Biggerstaff

Mr. and Mrs. John Curtis of Charlevoix announced the engagement of their daughter Kelly Sue Biggerstaff to Robert W. Scholey.

The groom elect is the son of Roberta Scholey and the late George Scholey of Charlevoix.

The bride to be is a 1991 graduate of Charlevoix High School and is currently employed at Shop Of The Gulls. Her fiancé is employed at J.R.'s of Charlevoix and will be going into the Marine Corps this coming February.

A December 12 wedding is planned at the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene.

Play performed for children

"The Dancing Princesses" - a play for children performed by children - will be presented at 2 p.m. Friday and Saturday, August 28 and 29, and at 7 p.m. Friday, August 28 at East Jordan High School.

The play, based on the fairy tale, "The Twelve Dancing Princesses" was written by East Jordan playwright Lenore Bechtel and is directed by Paula Vollbach, who recently directed the highly acclaimed EJHS production of "My Fair Lady."

Actors consist of a cast of thirteen junior members of Jordan River Players, the theatrical arm of Jordan River Arts Council. Howard H. Ellis, arts council president, is producer, and Doug Carter is stage manager and assistant to the director.

Written in rhyme, the plot revolves around four princesses who mysteriously wear out their shoes every night while they are supposed to be sleeping. Their father, the Duke, who is going broke from buying new shoes every day, calls in all the kingdom's princes to discover what happens in the princesses' bedroom each night. When each prince who tries to solve the mystery disappears, a fairy godmother helps a poor orphan boy come to the princesses' rescue.

The festival is supported by a grant from Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs and a donation from East Jordan Iron Works.

Francis Peters fiddles 94th birthday party

Francis Peters of Charlevoix recently celebrated his 94th birthday at a party hosted by Francis Durance. Born in Charlevoix Aug. 15, 1898, Peters is well known as an old time country fiddler. He entertained party guests by fiddling their requests. He also did some fiddling beneath his knee and behind his back. Peters' father gave him his first fiddle when he was just 10 years old. A neighbor loaned him a bow, telling the young Peters, "Just return it when you're tired of fiddling." The bow still hasn't been returned.

SUMMER TIMES

Not everything leaves with hotel/motel patrons

By Laurie Lounsbury

Esther woke Henry just after the sun rose over Lake Charlevoix. "C'mon, Henry, we have to check out and get on our way. The kids are expecting us in Grand Rapids at 10:00 this morning."

Henry roused himself, and dressed hurriedly with his eyes half open, squinting against the sunlight reflecting on the lake. Thank heavens he could go back to sleep as soon as he got in the car, he thought to himself. Esther can do the driving this time.

Three hours later, Henry and Esther pulled into the driveway of their children's home, where the grandchildren raced to greet them. "Hi Grammy. Hi Grandpa!" they shouted enthusiastically. Henry, now fully awake, grinned and waved at the kids. The youngest grandchild gazed quizzically at her grandfather and asked, "Hey, grandpa - where's your teeth?" Esther stared at Henry with shock and disbelief. "My gosh, Henry, you must have left your teeth in the hotel room!"

In Grosse Pointe, a well dressed accountant prepared for his first day back at work, after spending a pleasant week's vacation in Charlevoix. He rummaged around in his suitcase, which was still unpacked, for his dress shoes. He wished he could go to work in the comfortable boat shoes he'd worn all week, but hey! Where was his other wing-tipped shoe? Searching frantically, he couldn't find the mate to his size 11 black wing tip. Meanwhile, a housekeeper at a Charlevoix Hotel was wondering what to do with one very large, wing-tipped shoe. It might make a nice petunia planter, she thought to herself.

These incidents are everyday experiences for people who travel and stay in hotels. The hotel and motel housekeepers in Charlevoix have discovered many items left behind in rooms. Usually the forgotten items are pretty forgettable. No housekeeper in Charlevoix reported finding money clips loaded with hundred dollar bills or diamond tiaras. The most common items to be left behind are articles of clothing, particularly those smaller clothing items that never see the light of day.

In hotels with kitchenettes, food is often left behind. One housekeeper in a local hotel was very surprised to have a guest return to pick up some food she had left behind, hours after she had checked out. The housekeeper would have been happy to help her, except she'd already eaten the abandoned food for her lunch. Oh well.

Garden variety medicines, such as aspirin, cough medicine, and allergy pills are frequently left behind. And no small wonder. Who wants to bring home reminders of the wretched head-cold they had during their summer vacation?

Cindy Farrell, co-owner of the Maple Leaf Motel with husband Brian, doesn't speculate as to whether people leave things behind intentionally. She carefully boxes up any forgotten items and sends them back to the owner. Imagine the surprise of vacationers when they receive a package in the mail containing a carefully wrapped up piece of underclothing. "I return everything, even undies," Farrell said. "Who knows? It could be a very special pair of undies."

Things that did NOT get left behind intentionally in Charlevoix hotels this summer were: wool sweaters, windbreakers, boxes of Muddick's fudge, wetsuits, warm heavy socks, indoor board (or is it bored?) games, extra blankets, and flannel pajamas.

hind because they never left their suitcases were: Backless sundresses; number 30 sunscreens; fans; ice packs; tank tops; and Slip and Slides.

Cold spring chills business

Hotel and motel owners in Charlevoix agree that business this summer was down slightly from last year. The decline was largely due to an unreasonably long, cold spring. The cold spring extended well into the month of July. Tracy Sell, manager of the Edgewater Inn, said that many of their guests chose to check out early. Guests would typically arrive on a Wednesday, with plans to stay through the weekend. By the time Friday rolled around, they decided they'd had enough of the unseasonably cool weather and would head for home, cutting their vacation short by two days. "We had to work hard on selling last minute rooms," Sell said.

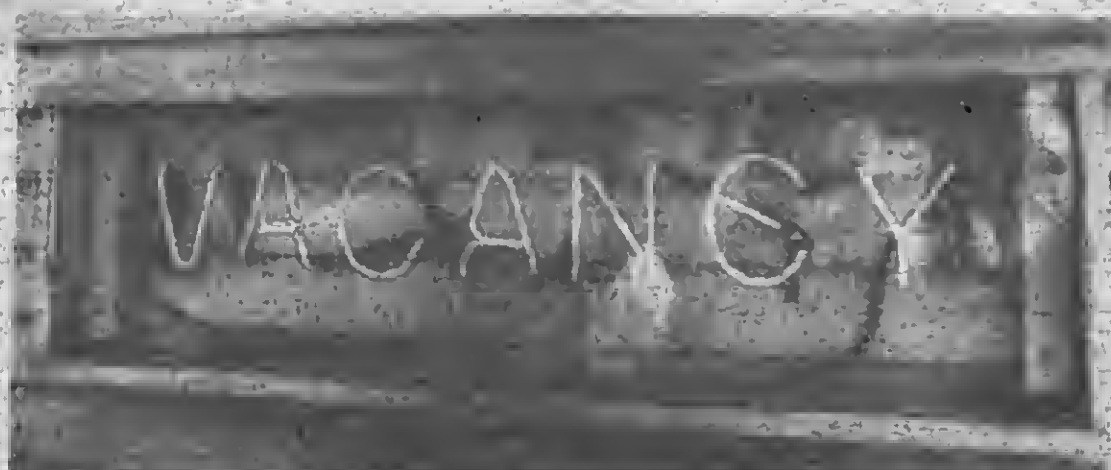

Harold Krusch, manager of the Weathervane Terrace, said that their summer business was down slightly, but their winter business had been up, so they were probably up overall. Krusch said that the Charlevoix Convention Bureau of Tourism helped their business. The Convention Bureau has a new display board and set up a booth at many of the tourism shows in Detroit, Grand Rapids, and Chicago. This helped bring business to Charlevoix in the winter months as well as the summer months.

Cindy Farrell of the Maple Leaf Hotel said that her May and June business was down slightly, but she did well after that. "We have a lot of regular customers that return, and they tell their friends about us, so we have a lot of referral business," Farrell said. She added that a few of her regulars left early because of the weather. "It was so cold, they didn't even put their boats in the water," said Farrell.

"Another motel owner who didn't wish to be identified said her business was down some this summer, however, 'I figure I take the good years with the bad years,' she said philosophically.

All hotel and motel operators are crossing their fingers and hoping for a good fall season, with temperatures comparable to the ones we've had in the last few weeks.

Charlevoix Senior Center plans open house

By L. Scott Swanson
It's a happening place. After four years of work, Charlevoix senior citizens have converted the old Charlevoix Township Hall into a beehive of activity.

To celebrate the progress of the establishment, the Charlevoix Senior Center will host an open house and pig roast Saturday, Aug. 29. There will be a ceremony at 4 p.m. with a potluck dinner beginning at 5 p.m. and lasting until the pig runs out. People attending the dinner are asked to bring their own table service and a dish to pass.

There will be music, fun and good food. Donations will be accepted to help offset costs.

During the open house, tours of the new center will be given.

"We're very proud of our building and we like to show it off," explained Sherry Black, the director of the center.

The center got its start four years ago when Charlevoix Township donated the old township hall at the corner of Carpenter and Norwood to the senior citizens. The township had built a new hall at Shanahan Field and no longer needed the old stone building.

It took about a year for the conversion to get off the ground. A new addition at the north end of the hall was constructed in 1990. The office area, which is where the old township hall portion of the building was ready to be used in January of 1991. For the past year and a half the seniors have just been trying to finish up things.

Hooking into the sewer line, carpeting the dining area, equipping the kitchen and finishing the basement and bathrooms have been just a few of the challenges. According to Black, by now there has probably been more than $100,000 put into the center and help for the project has come from a variety of directions. People who use the center raised about $21,000, two state grants totaled about $17,000, the county came up with a $6,000 loan, the County Commission On Aging came up with between $3,000 and $4,000. A local real estate business provided siding for the building. The Rainbow Shoppe provided major help in equipping the kitchen. One local bank purchased meat for a fundraising event and another local bank provided an interest-free loan. Roast beef dinners to raise money have become a popular monthly event.

"It's really just been nickle and diming it," Black said.

The project has given Charlevoix senior citizens their own space, and quite a bit of it. The old township hall area is about 20 feet by 30 feet and serves as an office and craft area. The main section of the new addition is about 30 feet by 60 feet and holds lots of tables and chairs and still has enough room for a small dance floor. Another 12 feet by 18 feet section contains the kitchen and the stairway to the basement. In between the addition and the old building is a 20 feet by 20 feet space which houses two spacious restrooms. The basement isn't finished yet, but there is a pool table there which gets occasional use.

The building is home to the Community Education program in the winter. There are usually anywhere from one to five senior citizens working toward their high school diplomas. They are joined by other adults working toward the same goal. The Community Education program pays the bulk of the wages for two staff members and also helps pay heating costs.

"If not for Community Education, we probably couldn't have made it," Black noted.

Although the Charlevoix Senior Center is not supported by the County Commission on Aging in the same manner as the East Jordan and Boyne City centers, the Charlevoix center does serve as a Commission On Aging meal site. Monday through Friday between 20 and 30 senior citizens have lunches at the center for $1.50.

Other activities include smokeless bingo preceded by salad luncheons on Thursday afternoons, a Monday exercise class geared toward senior citizens, toenail and blood pressure clinics every six weeks, a flea and farm market every Friday through the summer and a variety of special events such as last Friday's Zany Zucchini Day which featured among other things zucchini design and recipe contests indoors along with a fortune teller and table games out in the yard. The center also serves as an organizational headquarters for a senior citizen travel club and golf and bowling leagues. The center also sets up events such as progressive dinners with the East Jordan and Boyne City centers and coordinates publication of the Senior Highlights monthly newsletter.

The center has a board of directors along with a core group of volunteers who lend a hand whenever it's needed. But more people are always welcome.

The Mysterious Madam Marge (Marge Warner) tells John Barber's fortune at one of the booths which were part of the Charlevoix Senior Center's Zany Zucchini Day.

Local names in business

After 33 years Lee Moerland will retire as General Manager of the Belvedere Club. His official title is Warden and assistant Secretary/Treasurer.

Moerland was approached by the job in the late 1950's when he was working for one of the members who owned a local business. Moerland's job includes supervising an office staff, a maintenance crew to take care of 89 summer homes and 150 acres, two foodservice operations, a marina with slips and bathhouses, and operations at the Belvedere Golf Club. The position is a year-round one, particularly in recent years when more and more members are occupying their residences during the winter.

Effective Oct. 1, 1992, Lieutenant Commander (Retired), Thomas Ford Conlan will become Warden. Conlan and his family have been Charlevoix residents for the past seven years. He commanded the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter based in Charlevoix from 1986-1989 prior to his retirement from the Coast Guard in 1992.

Conlan has a strong background in the supervision of maintenance operations, financial planning and general management. His three children are enrolled in the Charlevoix school system, and he is active in local affairs.

Upon his retirement, Moerland plans to continue to live in the Charlevoix area. He and his wife also maintain a home on nearby Lake Louise.

John Johnson of Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtors, Petoskey and Richard McEnaney of Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtors, Charlevoix recently participated in the Coldwell Banker Affiliate Commercial Enhancement Business & Networking Conferences hosted by Coldwell Banker Dunham Realtors in Sioux Falls, S.D.

The three-day conference included extensive training focusing on many of the most critical factors in today's commercial real estate market. Rick Wolf, a senior manager in charge of REO sales (bank/financial institution-owned properties) for the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC), spoke on "How to Work With the RTC."

Much of Charlevoix was without electricity for a short time Monday afternoon. The outage was due to a broken cable in a vault near the intersection of Bridge and Clinton Streets. The break occurred at approximately 1 p.m. Due to an electrical fire which occurred in the vault when the cable broke, the fire department was called. The south side had electricity restored in approximately 20 minutes. Power to the north end of town took longer to restore.

Beaver Islander arrives to pull man from lake

The right boat in the right place at the right time along with appropriate action by several people kept an unfortunate accident from becoming a tragedy Friday afternoon.

As the Beaver Island passenger ferry was making its early afternoon trip to the mainland Friday, Captain Kevin McDonough spotted a sailboat having problems. Fanny Corrington was aboard the boat, but her husband Richard had fallen overboard. The couple had managed to secure Richard with a life-line, but they were having trouble getting him back into the boat. Corrington had been bobbing in the three to five foot waves about 20 minutes when the passenger ferry found the boat.

Tom Burzyk, an Islander crew member, and Lee Cobb, a passenger on the Islander, both are certified lifeguards and volunteered to go into the water and help the couple. They put on life jackets and when McDonough positioned the Islander upwind of the sailboat, they dove into the water and swam to assist the couple. Cobb climbed aboard the sailboat to pull Corrington aboard while Burzyk stayed in the water to help lift the man.

Corrington was cold, wet and fatigued. He had injured his right arm and bumped his head, but the injuries proved to be minor. Upon arriving back in Charlevoix, he was taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was treated and released.

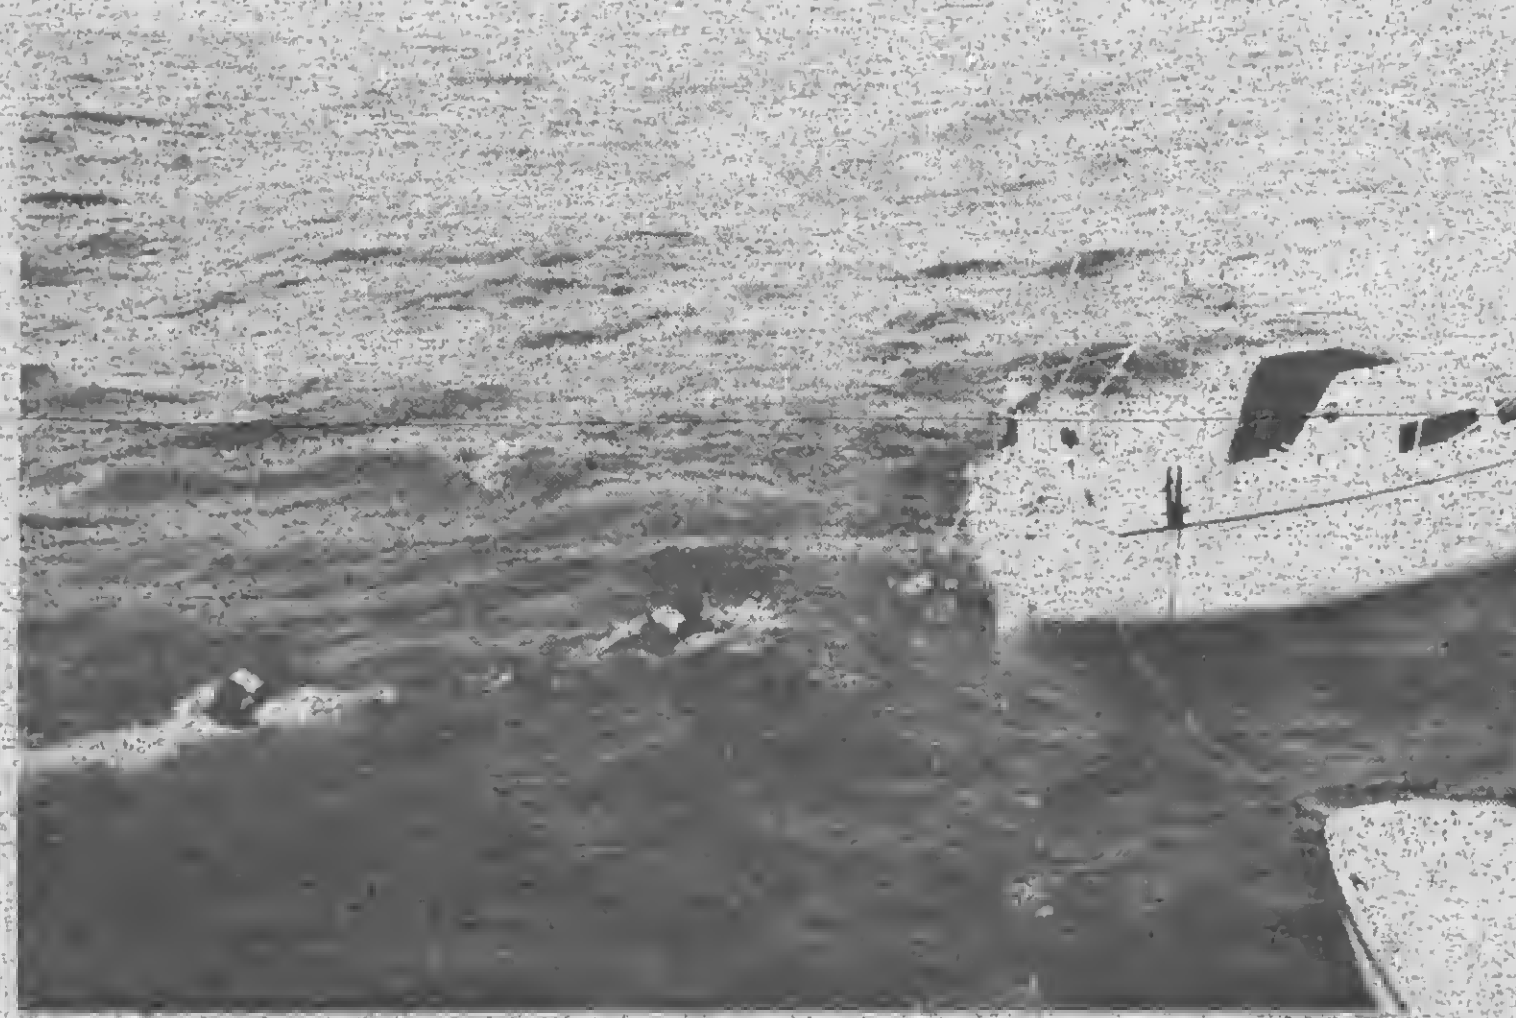

The incident occurred as the Corringtons were on their way to Beaver Island in their 27-foot sailboat, Londonderry. Mrs. Corrington was at the helm on the high side of the cockpit. Mr. Corrington had been down below. When he returned to the cockpit, he attempted to take a seat on the low side. Just as he did, the boat hit a wave and he was pitched overboard. Mrs. Corrington released the sails, started the motor threw Mr. Corrington a lifeline. Together, they were able to get Mr. Corrington up to the boat, but were having difficulty getting him into the boat. They were attempting to figure a way to get him into the boat when help arrived.

McDonough notified the Coast Guard of the problem and as Burzyk and Cobb helped the Corringtons, the Coast Guard dispatched two boats from the Charlevoix Lifeboat Station. The Charlevoix City ambulance was notified and met the boat at the dock. Ambulance attendants checked Mr. Corrington at the dock and took him to the hospital.

1. Lee Cobb and Tom Burzyk diving off of the Beaver Islander to help Richard Corrington, who had been thrown from his sailboat.

2. Corrington, with the assistance of his wife, had managed to get back to the sailboat, but was having difficulty getting back on board.

3. Cobb and Burzyk arrived at the boat to help.

(Beaver Islander passenger)

4. Cobb went aboard the boat. While Mrs. Corrington handled the boat, Cobb pulled and Burzyk lifted to get Mr. Corrington aboard.

5. City ambulance personnel met the boat at the dock in Charlevoix. Corrington's injuries proved to be minor.

Lakes on the rise

July was a wet month in the Great Lakes Drainage basin with all lakes receiving above average rainfall. The 30-day outlook published by the National Weather Service projects moderate to heavy precipitation for the Great Lakes region for the month of August.

The forecast, published in the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels for the Great Lakes, projects Lakes Superior and Michigan-Huron to be below their long-term average levels for the next six months while Lakes St. Clair and Erie will likely remain above their long-term average levels. Lake Ontario is expected to drop below its long-term average level towards the middle of the forecast period.

A more detailed summary of Lakes Michigan-Huron levels follows. All elevations are referenced to International Great Lakes Datum 1985.

Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of July were at elevation 579.22 feet (176.55 meters) above the mean water level at Rimouski, Quebec, or 21 inches (53 cm.)
4 inches (10 cm.) below what it was a year ago, and about 2 inches (5 cm.) above one month ago. The July monthly mean level of 579.23 feet (176.55 meters) was about 4 inches (10 cm.) below the long-term average for July. The lakes, however, remained about 31 inches
(79 cm.) above their all-time low July monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1964. The forecast shows that at the end of August, the level of Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about 1 inch (3 cm.) below what it was at the end of July. The lakes are expected to begin their seasonal decline in August. The water level in January 1993, is expected to be about 2 inches (5 cm.)
below the long-term average for that month, and about 4 inches (10 cm.) below what it was in 1992.

McRae honored at Boulder Park Terrace

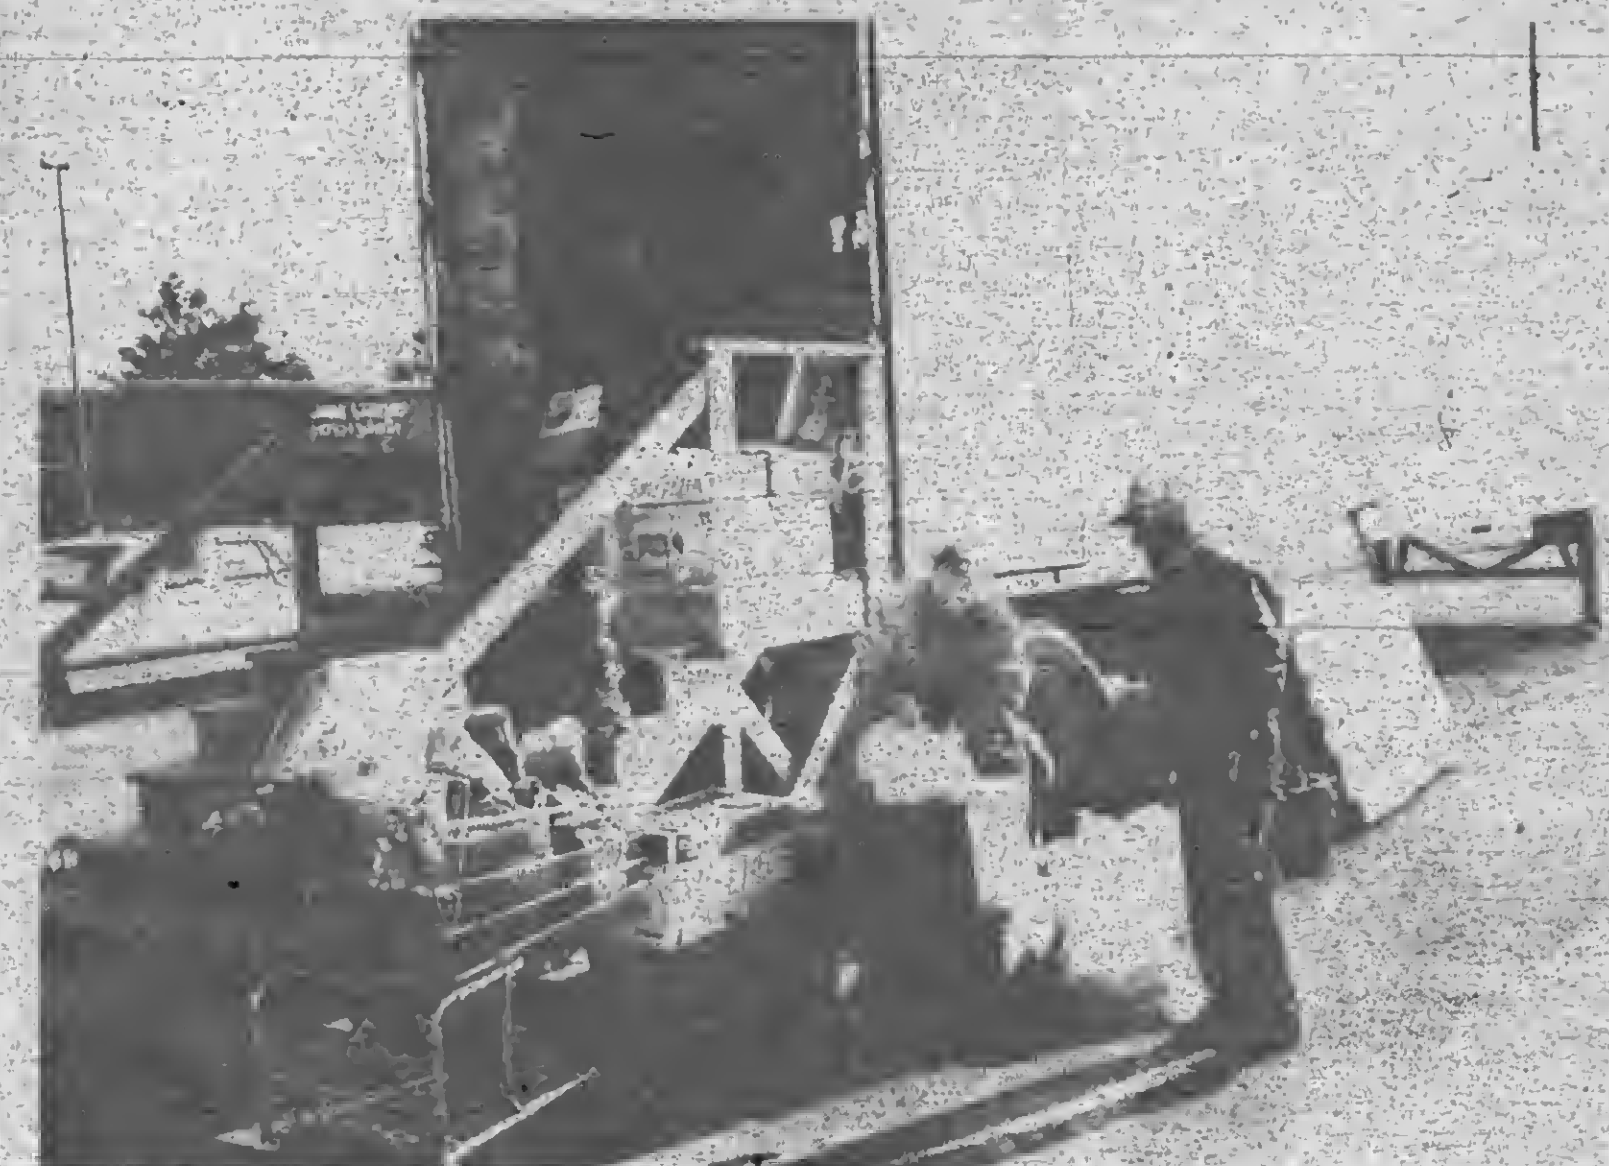

By L. Scott Swanson

At the end of long, difficult trail which held more than one peculiar twist was an upbeat ceremony and celebration which held many smiles. The library of the Boulder Park Terrace Medical Care Facility was dedicated in honor of Ralph McRae Friday afternoon. In November of 1983, McRae decided Charlevoix needed a medical care facility. It took the better part of eight years and the wading through of quite a bit of red tape, but today Charlevoix has a medical care facility.

"Ralph's the kind of guy who doesn't see problems and questions as obstacles. He sees them as challenges," said Charlevoix Area Hospital Administrator Richard Krueger at the ceremony. "He gets an idea. He commits himself to it. And he follows through."

McRae said he was on his way to the Grandvue Medical Care Facility during a blizzard in November of 1983 and he missed the turn. Grandvue is a county run facility located on the peninsula on the other side of East Jordan. McRae said he did some checking around and determined that Grandvue is located where it is due to something of a political compromise. There are three main communities in Charlevoix County - Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan. Of the major county installations, Charlevoix is the home of the County Building. Boyne City has the County Road

Charlevoix people have contributed cash and a truckload of goods to help Louisiana victims of Hurricane Andrew. Lawrence and Jeanette Boss are shown helping to get items marked and organized. The truck should arrive in Louisiana sometime Friday.

Charlevoix fills truck for hurricane victims

Why must Charlevoix people take everything so personal? Perhaps it's because they're a caring and compassionate lot.

Hurricane Andrew blasted the Florida and Louisiana shorelines more than a thousand miles away, yet for Charlevoix people it also struck home and they have taken the disaster to heart. This past weekend local people contributed a semi-truck trailer full of items to help Louisiana victims of the hurricane.

Doug Way of Way Transportation and Charlevoix County Emergency Services Director Earl Muma will be leaving Wednesday evening. They will be hauling a load of human warmth and concern.

For Way, this is not his first mission of mercy in response to a hurricane. Approximately two years ago, when Hurricane Hugo hit the Carolinas, Way and his brother Dawson hauled a similar load of items which had been collected by a local church.

Monday afternoon, Way was in Toledo, Ohio, but in a phone conversation with the Courier he recalled how eager people were to receive the truckload of assistance after Hurricane Hugo. Beyond that he noted that while Hurricane Hugo was bad, from everything he's heard on the TV and radio, Hurricane Andrew was even worse.

"There were whole blocks that were just completely wiped out," Way recalls from the Hugo trip. He said it kind of puts a tear in your eye when you're there and you see that everything people have is gone. Their homes are gone, their jobs are gone. "Everything they own is just strewn all over the place. It's just total devastation," he said.

In regard to Hurricane Andrew, Way noted that in the Cajun Country of Louisiana, there are many people who even in good times are poor.

Rather than have the local relief effort organized by one of the local churches this time, it was organized by Muma and the County Emergency Services Department to broaden the base of support. That has been effective. The semi trailer was parked in the parking lot of Glen's Market of Charlevoix this

Big Brother and Sister group looks to get off the ground

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Northwestern Michigan is holding a joint meeting of the Board of Directors and persons interested in helping to develop and define Big Brothers/Big Sisters service in the Emmet and Charlevoix county areas. The meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, September 9, 6 p.m. at the United Methodist Church at 104 State Street in Charlevoix.

The agency has just completed a service and needs evaluation. Results of that evaluation will be available to the public at the meeting. "As a result of the evaluation," said Kay Vandervolt, Executive Director, "we have a better sense of the needs of children in the two county area and of how Big Brothers/Big Sisters can meet those needs."

Big Brothers/Big Sisters is a mentoring program that aids single parents in providing developmental opportunities for their children. Each child is matched one-to-one with an adult for an ongoing friendship. In addition to facilitating the matches between adults and children, the agency provides volunteer training, referral, and supervision of the matches so the relationship remains healthy and beneficial. The agency coordinates programming with other child service agencies so that the specific service offered to a child enhances that of other agencies or school professionals working with the child.

The September meeting is open to the public. Persons interested in referring children, concerned about prevention services for children, or interested in assisting with program development in Emmet and Charlevoix Counties, are urged to attend. For further information, call 946-2723.

Commission and East Jordan has Grandvue.

Shortly after deciding there should be some type of medical care facility in Charlevoix, McRae approached Krueger and the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board. They offered their support and put him touch with other people who helped him get the ball rolling.

One of the people McRae was put in touch with was Jack Liberatore of Liberatore Health Care Inc. out of Columbus, OH. Liberatore agreed to build a 107-bed facility if the project could win the necessary approval of various regulatory agencies. (At Friday's ceremony, Boulder Park Terrace Director Deb Sauer wryly noted that next to the nuclear power industry, nursing homes are the nation's most regulated industry.) McRae noted that just preparing the application form for a certificate of need request normally costs between $10,000 and $25,000. The Boulder Park project submitted a 120 page request which included 40 letters of support from people in the community.

A regional health care organization recommended approval of the Liberatore proposal in December of 1985. Early in 1986, with the help of the Charlevoix Township Board, Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud and the donation of a small piece of land by the hospital a new road, which ran past the front of the proposed medical care facility, was built. During his speech at the ceremony, McRae, a former city councilman and mayor, called Stroud Michigan's best township supervisor. "He had a building named after him before he died," McRae quipped.

But just when things were going well, the Boulder Park project received a setback. Nov. 12, 1986, the Michigan Department of Health turned down the Liberatore application and instead gave project approval to a competing firm. At the time of the decision, McRae said, "I was shocked beyond belief."

McRae sought help from State Representative Ralph Ostling R-Roscommon and former State Senator Mitch Irwin, D-Sault Ste. Marie. The politicians worked with the people in Lansing and the two buildings talked and in 1987 a compromise was worked out to let the project go forward.

By early 1988, construction plans had been accepted and sent out to bidders. Things were moving along well, but then on Sept. 26, 1988 the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) declared the proposed building site to be a wetland. Another hurdle. This one was also overcome. After discussing the matter with DNR officials, another compromise was arranged. Earlier in the process, two additional acres had been added to the purchase agreement. Now those two acres became important. They allowed the building to be shifted slightly to accommodate the wetland concerns. As McRae put it Friday, "We moved this building a few feet east. We moved the frogs a few feet west."

In 1991, Goodin-Bigelow, the general contractor selected for the project moved the first few yards of dirt. More importantly, in 1991 an agreement was reached in which Northern Michigan Hospitals and Charlevoix Area Hospital agreed to joint ownership of the facility once it was constructed. Northern Michigan Hospitals owns 75 percent of the facility and Charlevoix Area Hospital 25 percent. On a cold and blustery day in March of 1992 ground was officially broken and construction began in earnest.

"I had received a good education in the health field. I got to know how the system works," McRae said of the lengthy process. "There were many setbacks and numerous delays. Progress was slowed, but never stopped."

McRae said that despite the setbacks, Boulder Park Terrace has become what he wanted it to be, a "facility of care and comfort for our community."

past weekend and by Monday was well on its way to filling up.

Muma began working on the project shortly after the hurricane. He contacted local media and spread the news by word of mouth. And local people answered the call, contributing a variety of goods as well as cash. Monday morning Muma was busy handling various details and arranging for items which wouldn't fit on the Charlevoix truck to be shipped down with goods from other area communities.

The help came from both individuals and businesses. Way was at the truck trailer prior to leaving for Ohio. He said it was touching to see people who had needs themselves bringing in items to help people in a far off state. He said that several people came down and worked to help box, label and stack the items contributed. In addition to providing a visible and convenient location for the truck, Glen's Market was allowing people to buy canned foods at wholesale prices and then wheeling the food out to be put on the truck.

"It really is a nice outpouring of feelings from people in the community to people down there (in Louisiana)," Way noted.

The shipment should arrive in Louisiana sometime Friday. It'll let those southern folk know that even though Charlevoix is way up here in the North Country, that doesn't mean we don't know just a little bit about words like hospitality and kinship.

A local resident's recollection of a visit to the Cajun Country struck by Hurricane Andrew

By Ralph McRae

This was my second visit to New Orleans. It was quite a trip. The stop in New Orleans was preceded by stops in Las Vegas, Los Angeles, Guadalajara, Mazatlan and Juarez, El Paso, Phoenix and the Grand Canyon.

My New Orleans taxi driver suggested a moderately priced hotel on Bourbon Street. On paying my bill, I was somewhat astonished at the very high room charges. But I did have a very good location. My window opened onto that crazy and wild street which is the center piece of the Mardi Gras celebration. Only pedestrians use this famous avenue.

All night long impromptu musical combos play to moving audiences. New Orleans is internationally known for its fine food and brass bands. It is home to jazz groups, especially those high stepping musicians who lead funeral processions. New Orleans' music has spread throughout the world.

Never closing, every place on Bourbon Street seemed to be either a bar room or a restaurant. One night at 3 a.m. I went to a restaurant that specialized in blackened red fish. Just a few blocks away was that mighty river, the Mississippi. The river naturally flows south, but within the confined banks of the city, the water in the center goes south, but the waters next to the banks swirl and push back toward the north.

One of the big attractions of the city has been the conversion of a gigantic brewery into a very sophisticated mall.

Suddenly, I decided to leave the city and head for the southwest part of Louisiana - Cajun Country. At a tourist center I picked up a state map and let my fingers do the walking. They stopped on a small town on the Bayous Lafourche.

Next day I got off the bus, the only person to get off at Raceland.

I walked across the street to a gas station, for directions to a motel. The station owner, pointing to a motel a block away, advised me not to stay there. It was a rough joint. He suggested that I stay at his home. Closing the gas station, we drove to his house. I did not take my bags out of the car. Through the open doors I could see I would have to climb over the beds in the living room to get to the bathroom. I said perhaps there was another motel. There was, but it was closed. So I asked him to drive to a bigger town.

Houma was 16 miles away, but this happy, gracious man was happy to take me there. Houma, population 30,000, was the seat of government for Terrebonne Parish. In every other state it would have been called Terrebonne County. Southwest Louisiana was settled by people with a carefree spirit that has flavored the swamps and bayous with lively music and spicy foods. These Cajuns, the French-Acadians from Canada, have preserved their culture and heritage in

The Emmet County Lakeshore Association represents the interest of over 600 property owners residing between Harbor Springs and Cross Village. At its August 11th Board of Directors meeting a resolution was unanimously approved which stated:

"The Emmet and Charlevoix Boards of Commissioners should follow the recommendations of the 9-1-1 Advisory Committee, to institute as much of the 9-1-1 Emergency System as possible utilizing the passed millage."

It is our recommendation that immediate steps should be taken to implement the 9-1-1 Program. The Char/Em 9-1-1 Advisory Committee has recommended a four-point plan which in summary is:

1. Encourage Cheboygan County to join the system.

2. Collect the voted tax revenue now.

3. Sign a letter of intent with the phone companies.

4. Legally form an authority to manage and administer the system.

Now is the time to support this vital service.

Paul Linahan, President
Emmet County Lakeshore Association

As a "summer person" I truly envy you to live in a place year round that we covet for a brief time of the year. I respect and love the place you call HOME.

During our stay we take in every moment of every day. We rise early to walk on the peaceful shores of Lake Charlevoix we ski and swim in the afternoon sun. After dinner we relax by the fire or visit a park. At the parks and playgrounds we are constantly picking up trash and litter left by people who do not respect this lovely town. We are kind to the store employees for we envy them. Seeing a help wanted sign in my favorite shop's window (Northern Possessions) made me think about not returning home to the southeastern shores of Lake Michigan I call home!

Yes Shirley you are a native - I envy you and all the rest.

Most sincerely,

The first day of school often isn't in kindergarten

Several pre-school programs are available in Charlevoix

By L. Scott Swanson

When school opens in Charlevoix next Tuesday, many kindergarten students will already be wise to the program, having already had their first brush with formal education at the nursery school level.

Charlevoix has a variety of pre-school programs. Some are governmentally funded, others are private. Educational emphasis and schedules also vary from one pre-school program to the next.

Following is a brief synopsis of the Charlevoix programs:

Ironton Head Start/Child Development - The Ironton program is a governmentally funded program for children between the ages of three and five. There is no charge for the program which serves 30 children each year. Program funding is divided between Head Start (federal funds) and the Michigan Department of Education (state funds).

"It's different than most programs because it is federally and state funded, so we have a lot of criteria that we have to go by," explains Phyllis Hess of Northwestern Michigan Human Services.

Although there is an income criteria for admission, up to 25 percent of the children in the program can come from families exceeding the income guidelines.

This year's program begins Sept. 29 and runs through the end of May. Classes meet three days a week, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday with 15 children in the morning session, 9 a.m. to noon, and 15 children in the afternoon session, noon to 3 p.m. Each session is taught by a teacher and an assistant. Morning students are fed breakfast and afternoon students are fed lunch. Transportation is provided.

Although there is no charge to parents for the program, parents are required to play a role in the program. Six home visits take place during the course of the year, where people from the program visit the parents and child in the home. Parents also must attend parent meetings and there is volunteer work for parents at the center.

The program encourages the child to develop good educational habits as well as learning through play.

Students are selected for the program from a waiting list on a needs basis. Applications are always available. For more information phone 347-9070.

The Growing Tree - One of Charlevoix's newest pre-school programs is The Growing Tree, a private school opened by Renee Golovich-Keie just last year. The program is open to children from 2 and a-half to five years old with most children starting at age three. At the eldest end of the spectrum is a young five kindergarten prep class.

Keie says she emphasizes hands-on learning and tries to provide enough experiences in the class to take in the interests.

...recollections of a visit to the Cajun Country

It is the most different of all our states' different accents etc. Twenty-five percent of the state is Cajun land. It is like visiting a foreign country.

Unfortunately, Louisiana, in the early months of 1986, had a disastrous depression caused by falling oil prices. On the main street of Houma many stores were closed. The real estate market was at an all time low with unsellable condos. Oil rigs had been pulled out of the Gulf of Mexico. Scores of them rested in drydocks around Houma.

I had heard that Louisiana had the worst school system in the United States. Curious to know the reason for this situation, I went to the court house. There, the very courteous women clerks explained the problem. In Louisiana, owners of homes valued at less than $85,000 paid no property taxes. I asked to see the records and they had difficulty finding homes worth more than $85,000. In Louisiana, assessors are elected officials and very few of them are inclined to assess homes for their true market value. This lack of property tax revenue was responsible for a real shortage of funding for education.

At my motel, the security guard had leather heels. Every two hours he tramped past my room. A restaurant close by served real Cajun food, specializing in crawfish. They have crawfish farms. For some reason, in processing for the restaurants, all of the crawfish are dyed red.

Wanting to see more of the Cajun country, I called a tourist bureau booking rides on roads going down to the Gulf. A woman answered the phone and said she would be around in the morning with a white Cadillac, including two women passengers.

The white Cadillac arrived at 9 a.m., without the two women. The woman who had answered the phone was the driver and owner of the Cadillac. We set off on Highway 67, taking us down to the Gulf. This part of Terrebonne Parish had hundreds of lakes - most of them very small. Gale force winds often flooded the low lands on the Gulf coast. Most of the scattered homes were perched on poles high above the ground. There were many oyster and shrimp raising beds, owners staking their claims by very visible markers showing individual territories.

The countryside seemed to be deserted. Coming to the end of Route 67 there was an excellent restaurant. Evidently the driver had called in a reservation. It served a delicious dinner of softshell crabs.

We returned to Houma on Highway 66. On the way back, the driver informed me that she was the president of the Houma Tourist Commission and that very night they were having an important meeting. About 15 people attended the meeting. I was asked to give my impression of their community. I told them I was amazed at their low tax structure and suggested they advertise it in cold cities like Minneapolis. Retired citizens might come down and buy some of the bargain real estate offerings. I said that Louisiana had lower taxes than Florida and that fishing was very good, but what they really needed was more golf courses.

After the meeting my driver hosted a dinner party. I was invited and with four other guests enjoyed a seven course meal and interesting conversation. The hosts' home was a large, beautifully furnished residence. It all set on an oversized lot with boat docks on a river. The hostess admitted that they paid no property taxes.

The next day I was driven to a river, in the middle of a desolate swamp. With a dozen other out-of-state spectators, a launch took us slowly up the bayous. In the water, partly submerged were a few alligators. On the banks scurried numerous nutria - an oversized rat from South American that has infested many wetlands of the southern states. On branches overhanging the river, several snakes were silently sun bathing.

All in all, Louisiana is a very interesting state. I was lured there by that beautiful song sung by Linda Ronstadt, the "Blue Bayou." I would like to return to the Cajun land.

...several pre-school programs offered

Students attend either a morning or afternoon class. Each class meets for two and a-half hours. The tuition fee is $48 per month. Parents transport the children. Keie noted that some of the parents make arrangements to take turns bringing their children and other children to and from the school. The school's schedule is similar to the public school schedule.

There are still a few openings available for this year. For more information, phone 4835.

Charlevoix - Cooperative Nursery - The Charlevoix Cooperative Nursery program is not technically a part of the Charlevoix Public School System, but the program operates out of a classroom at the Charlevoix Elementary School. Being able to have the program at the school is a tremendous plus for the nursery school children according to Cooperative Nursery School Vice President Danya Drost. While at nursery school, the children get to know the school building and the people there. When they enter kindergarten, they're in familiar territory.

The Cooperative Nursery School accepts children from three to five years old. Children have to be potty trained. Children must be three by Sept. 1 for the two day a week program and four by Sept. 1 for the three day program.

The two day program meets on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The three day program meets on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Morning classes are from 9 a.m. to 11:15 a.m. Afternoon sessions are from 1 p.m. to 3:15 p.m. Tuition for the two day program is $175 per semester ($350 per year). Tuition for the three day program is $225 per semester ($450 per year). Classes are taught by teacher Pam Lameraux and teacher's aide Gail Levengood.

The Cooperative Nursery program is cooperative, meaning parents help make the program go. Parents work on committees which make decisions about the program.

Blackwood concert scheduled Sept. 4 in Charlevoix church

Jimmy Blackwood, singer and evangelist, will be at Charlevoix Assembly of God in concert, Friday night, Sept. 4, at 7 p.m. He has a rich heritage in Christian music. His father, Dr. James Blackwood, is the only living member of the original Blackwood Brothers Quartet. Jimmy Blackwood has been singing since 1963 and travels in a full-time solo ministry.

In March of 1984 Jimmy was healed of cancer. The account of his testimony has been widely circulated in the book "Deliverance... in the Valley of Death" written by Rev. Dan Betzer.

He has been a guest on TBN, PTL, the 700 Club and many other Christian television programs. He has ministered in many churches across the nation singing, sharing his testimony, and preaching the gospel in an exciting evangelistic style.

The public is invited. A freewill offering will be received. Charlevoix Assembly of God is located on M66 Highway North in Charlevoix, 547-6430.

Former Charlevoix family injured in California traffic accident

A Laotian family who lived in Charlevoix from 1979 to 1982 was recently involved in a fatal traffic accident in California. Tong and Yia Cheng and their family were sponsored by the First Congregational Church and lived in Charlevoix for three years after coming from Laos. In recent years they have lived in Colorado.

The Cheng family was visiting California Aug. 20 when they were involved in a traffic accident. Yia Cheng and a six-year-old son, Andrew, were killed in the accident. Tong Cheng suffered a head injury and broken ribs while seven-year-old son Jason suffered a broken leg and hand. Tong and Jason are now home from the hospital.

The Cheng's current address is 6525 W. 114 Avenue, Westminster, CO 80020.

Church study groups initiated

Two new study groups will begin in September at Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix. The study groups are open to any interested people in the area.

The first group is entitled, "How To Manage Your Money." It is based on the beginning of "The Christian Financial Concepts Series" written by Larry Burkett. The series studies Christian principals for money management: how to make it, spend it, save it, invest it and share it. The study makes use of a workbook, video presentation and class discussion. The 12-week class begins Sept. 15 and finishes before Christmas. It will meet from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday evenings.

The second study group is called "Precept Study" and will help people get more out of Bible study. The study group includes homework, discussion and a lecture time. Class length is two hours and 15 minutes and classes are offered at two times: Wednesday at 9:15 a.m. and Wednesdays at 6:45 p.m. Classes begin Sept. 9. The fall study will focus on Second Timothy.

For additional information about the study groups, phone Betty Walker at 536-2466.

Altar Society meetings begin

St. Mary's Rosary Altar Society monthly meetings will begin again on Wednesday, September 9, in the Parish Center, at 7:30 p.m.

Starting in October, the meetings will be held every first Wednesday, at 7:30 p.m., in the Parish Center.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

Imagine sea gulls who are not interested in snatching the picnic food right out of your mouth. Think about temperatures so warm that you sweat without even making a real effort. Consider waves breaking over your head. No, we aren't talking about Lake Michigan. I took the family crew to Florida and the Atlantic Ocean last week.

We went to Cocoa Beach thinking we were fully prepared. We knew as far skinned northerners that we had better use some heavy duty sun screen if we didn't want to be bright pink. You would think that SPF 30 would be plenty strong. We assumed it was. We just forgot to read the fine print on the back of the bottle. SPF 30 is great as long as you stay out of the water. In the water it has a time limit of eighty minutes. We were out there about five hours.

You can guess what happened to us. We looked like the luncheon special from Red Lobster. On the way back from the beach, my daughter discovered the heretofore overlooked fine print that told why the SPF seemingly failed.

In the never ending quest for "things that will preach," you should already be able to sense more than a few possibilities for an imaginative soul. I love the Psalmist's reminder concerning God's directions for our lives. "The word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path." I don't think there are too many of us who couldn't use a lamp to gain a little insight for living.

God's Word can help you right where you are. If you are not sure which way to go, He can orient you and show you some options. He knows you so well and He appreciates the hopes and dreams you have. His Word will tell you that He has even better plans and possibilities if you are willing to trust your heart's desire to Him.

God's Word will help you once you start the journey. There are hidden pitfalls (remember how we overlooked the sunscreen time limit?) that He can bring to light. He has special instructions to help you even in the most difficult moments. Should you get hurt, His Word contains good medicine for healing the wounded soul.

When was the last time you really got into the Word? Most of us have all kinds of medicines we keep for physical ailments. The Word will help all kinds of problems. But you have got to read it, really cover the fine print, to get the greatest benefit from its care.

(Rev. Bruce Hamilton is pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Hamilton and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

SUMMER TIMES

There's plenty of Labor Day fun in the Charlevoix area

By Laurie Lounsbery

The summer of '92 will go out with a flourish as many area events pack the Labor Day weekend schedule. We will have one event by sea, two by land, and three by bridge.

The Red Fox Regatta will draw sailors from all over Michigan for the two day race on Lake Charlevoix. Charlevoix's new classic car club, the Street Legends, will host their first cruise night at Charlevoix's Burger King on Friday, Sept. 4. Boyne City will be hosting a two day car show Sept. 5 and 6, featuring street rods and muscle cars. Three bridge walks will take place on Labor Day, ranging from a quick 16-foot walk across the Horton Bay Bridge, a 50-foot walk across Memorial Bridge in Charlevoix, and the five-mile Mackinaw Bridge walk. This Labor Day weekend, you can be on the street, on your feet, or on a boat, so enjoy yourself.

Bridge Walks:

There are bridge walks and then there are bridge walks. For the truly avid bridgewalker, the Mackinac Bridge Walk will begin at 7 a.m., Sept. 7. Walkers will traverse the five mile bridge starting at the St. Ignace side. Buses will be available at 5:30 a.m. to transport walkers from Mackinac City to St. Ignace. Buses will also be available to take people back to St. Ignace after the walk, for anyone that drove to the St. Ignace side of the bridge. No one will be permitted to start the walk after 10 a.m.

If the Mighty Mac Bridge Walk is too high, too early, or too long for you, then consider the Charlevoix Memorial Bridge Walk. With a 12:05 starting time on Labor Day, the walkers will be finished with their arduous trek by 12:08. Laurie Brown, Bridgewalk chairman, promises to lead the crowd in rigorous warm-up exercises so that no one will incur an injury during the ordeal. Last year's warm up exercises included a pair of toe touches and one jumping jack. Charlevoix Bridgewalkers can pick up their numbers (elaborate jobbies made of construction paper and string) at the Townhouse at 11 a.m. T-shirts will be on sale with all proceeds and donations going to the Charlevoix Humane Society.

If you like your bridgewalks short and your hoopla long, then the Horton Bay Bridgewalk will appeal to you. This year's Horton Bay Bridgewalk will have an international flavor to it, with representatives from Horton Bay's sister village of Zell am See in Austria in attendance. Wolfgang, Helga, and Franz will be crossing the bridge with their national flags and will sing their national anthem. The Horton Bay Bridgewalk will begin with a stage program at 8 p.m. Labor Day evening.

The keynote speech will be delivered by a politically active Horton Bay resident. At 9 p.m. the bridgewalk will commence. Walkers are encouraged to dress in labor worker clothes. Alligator shirts and polo clothes are strongly discouraged. Walkers should also bring their own candles for the event. Jon Hartwell, a Horton Bay resident, says of the bridgewalk, "Looking back at the procession of candles is a better sight than the Fourth of July fireworks in Monte Carlo." For anyone unfamiliar with the Horton Bridge, it is an impressive affair whose construction costs ran into three figures (if you count the numbers that come after the decimal point). Walkers are required to walk over the bridge and then back across it to return, so fitness training is recommended.

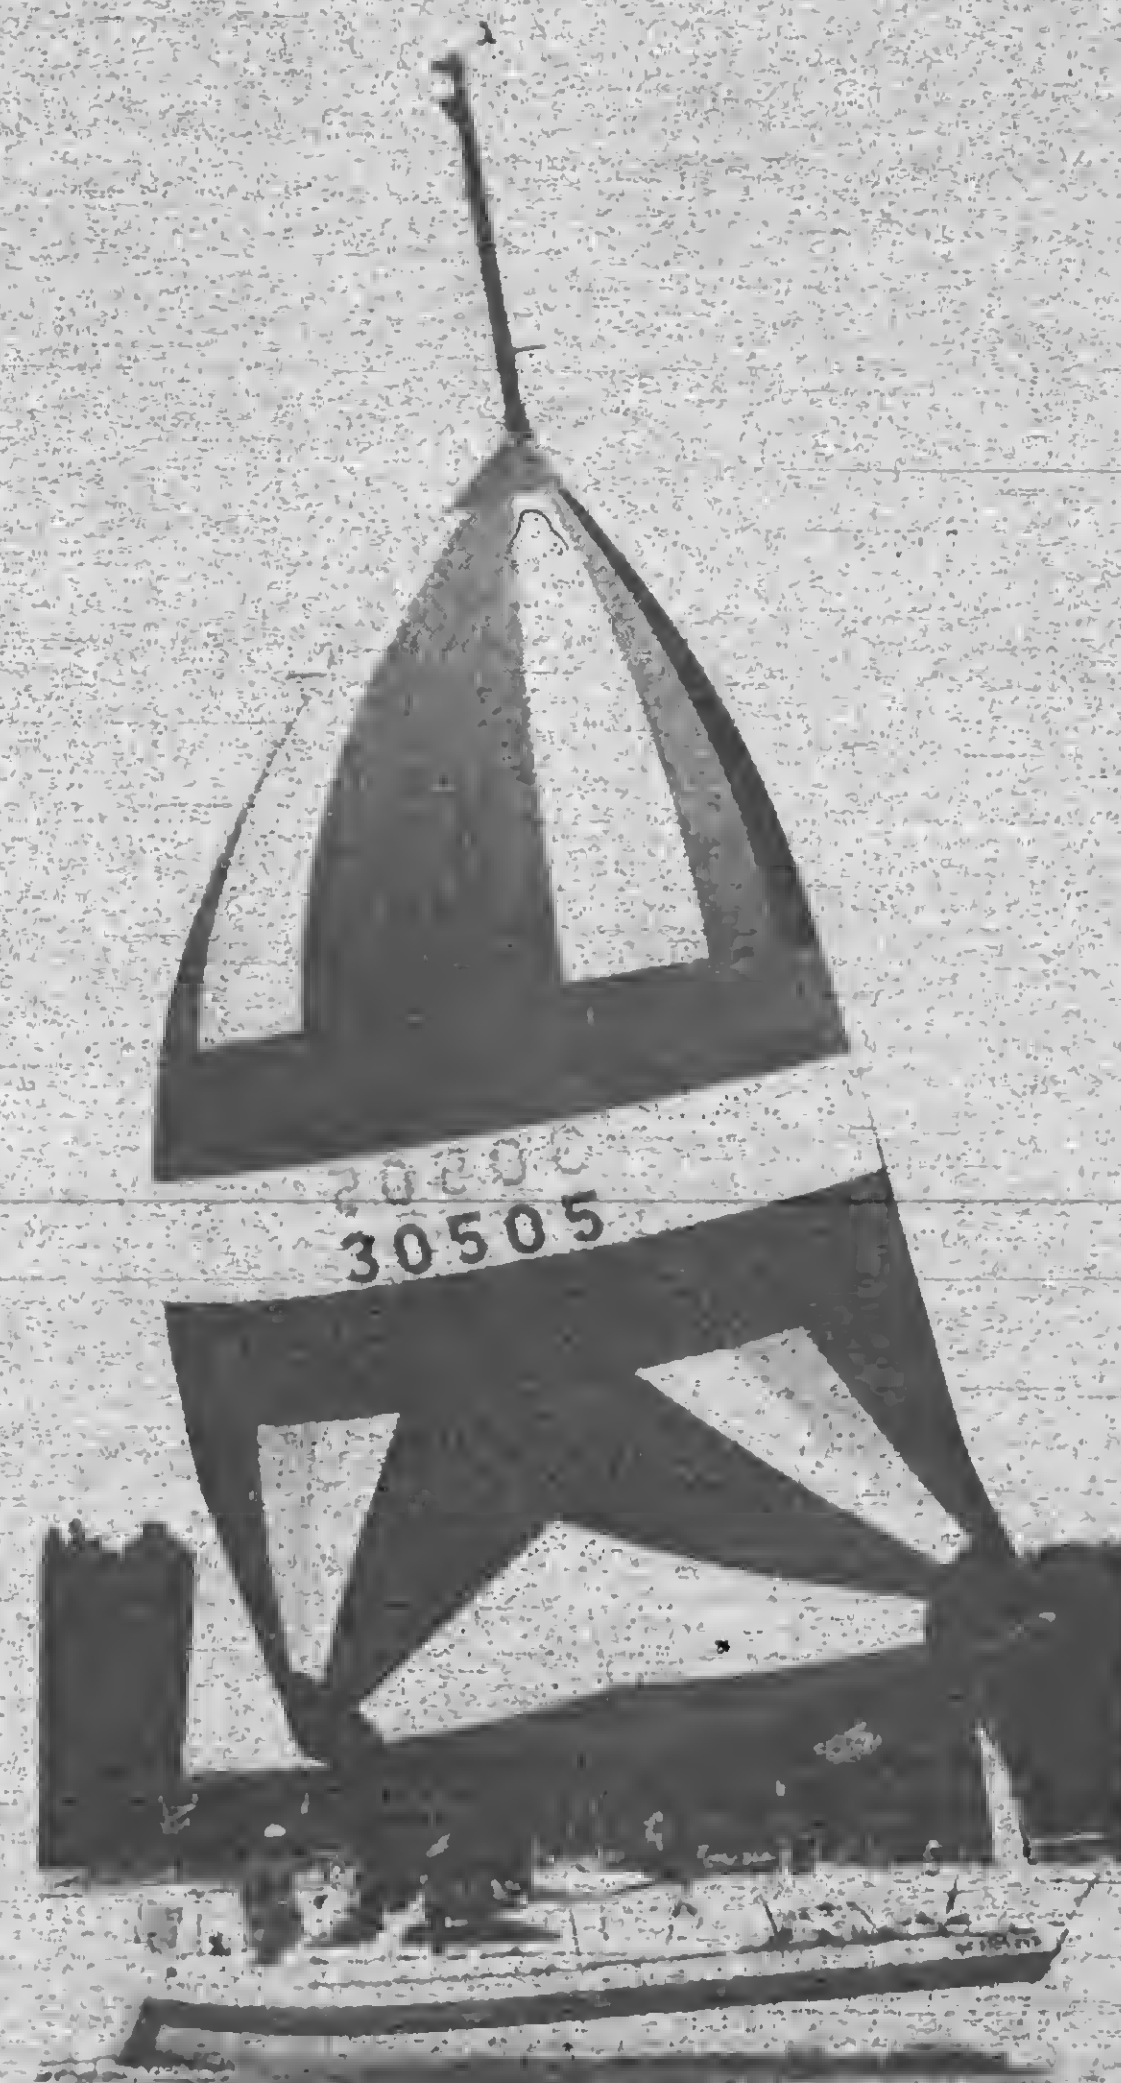

Car Shows.

With more than 100 members in their new club, Charlevoix's Street Legends Classic Car Club is already making an impressive jump into the arena of classic car shows and events. The Street Legends will host their first event Friday, Sept. 4 at the Charlevoix Burger King. The cruise-in will be open to anyone, and will begin at 6 p.m. There will be a $3 registration donation for anyone wishing to display their car and to be eligible for trophies. Trophies will be awarded in the categories of manager's choice, driver's choice, and people's choice. Dashboard plaques will be awarded to all registrants. There will be a 50-50 drawing, and 50's and 60's music will be provided for entertainment. Any unique or classic cars are welcome.

Following Charlevoix's Cruise-in, Boyne City will be hosting the Second Annual Boyne Area Custom Street Rod and Muscle Car Show, Sept. 5 and 6. Cars will be on display starting at 8 a.m. both days. Saturday night there will be a 50's and 60's dance in Boyne City's park, with the live band Rawhide providing the entertainment. In case of bad weather, a 40 by 100 foot tent will be set up in the park. There will be an awards ceremony for participants at 2:30 p.m. Sunday. Kids games and door prizes will be offered both days.

Red Fox Regatta

It's always a breathtaking sight when 70 to 80 sailboats pop their colorful shutes and head down Lake Charlevoix during the Red Fox Regatta. The regatta will begin Saturday morning at 11 a.m. in front of Ferry Avenue Beach and sail to Boyne City. That evening, a picnic and party will be held in Boyne City's west park. The boats will begin their return race to Charlevoix Sunday morning at 11 a.m. An awards ceremony will be held at the Charlevoix Yacht Club Sunday evening.

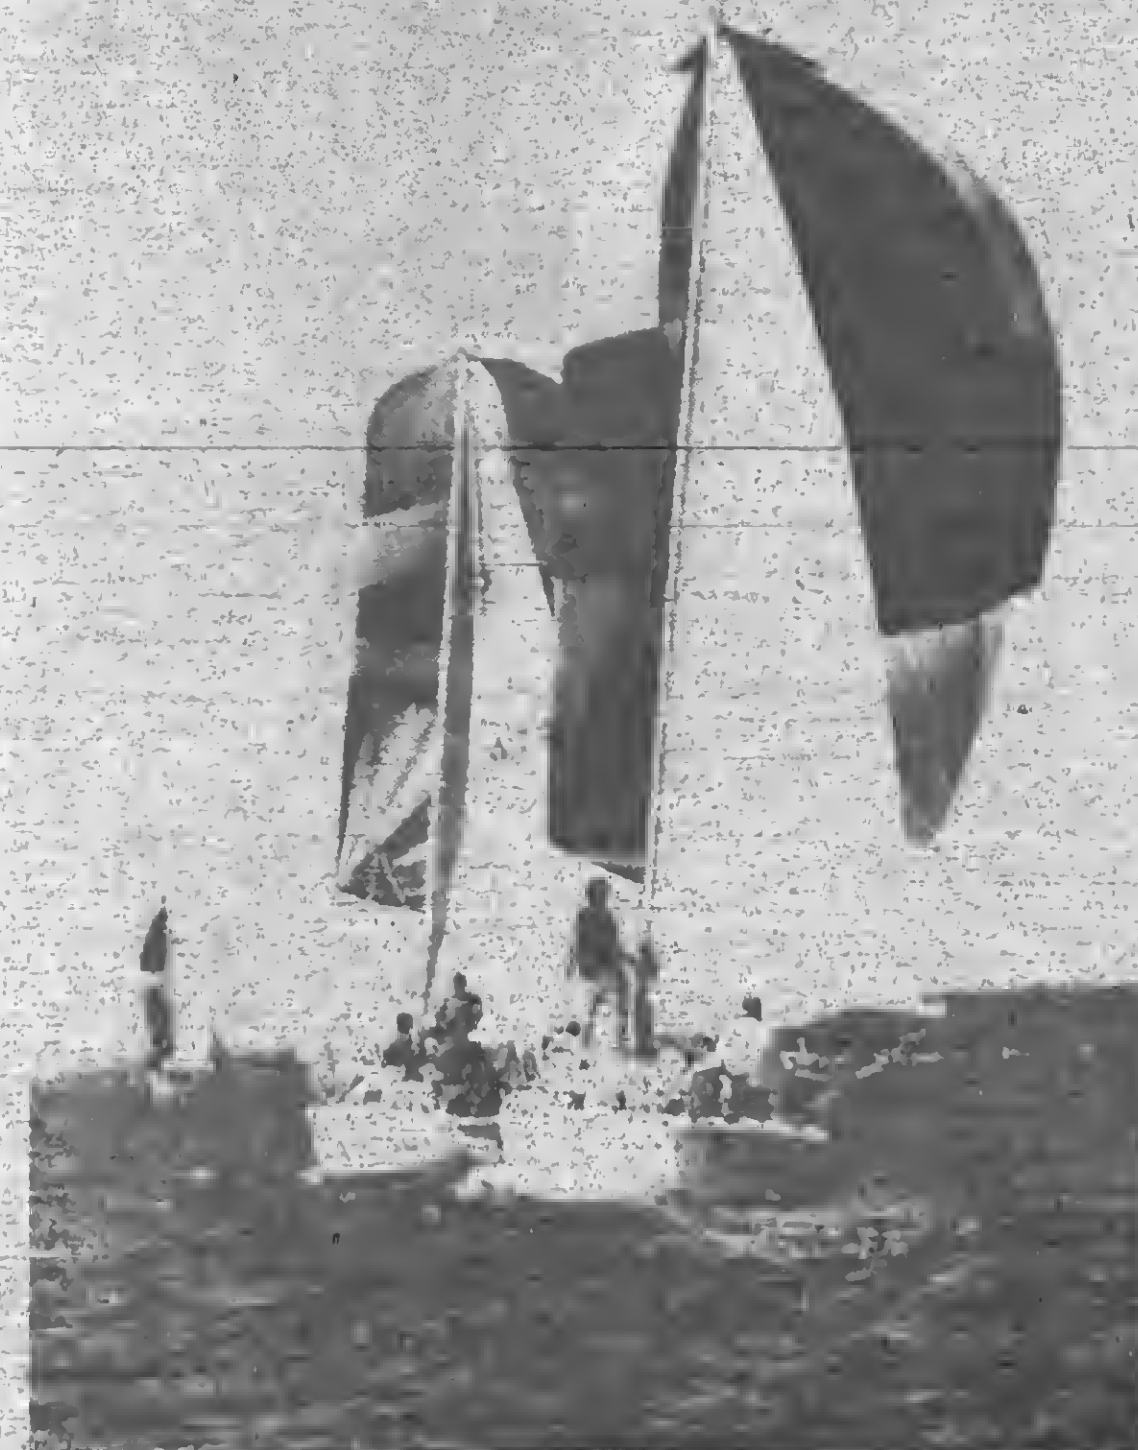

Perhaps wind gusts that are northern remnants of Hurricane Andrew will push Red Fox Regatta racers across the waves of Lake Charlevoix in record time this weekend.

Between 70 and 80 area sailboats are expected to participate in this weekend's Red Fox Regatta which begins in Charlevoix Saturday morning.

Red Fox Regatta sailors race to Boyne City on Saturday and back to Charlevoix Sunday.

9-1-1 back on November ballot

By Laurie Lounsbury

"If you build it, they will come." This line from the movie 'Field of Dreams' is Commissioner Don Smith's comparison to the way that the county commissioners are approaching the 911 system. Last week, the Charlevoix County Commissioners voted four to two in favor of putting a millage on the November ballot of up to one mill for two years. If it passes, the funds will be used to buy radio equipment and create a central dispatch center. That means the system will be in place, but there will be no funds available for operating a 911 system.

Smith and Howard Hosler were the two commissioners voting against putting the mill increase back on the ballot. Smith explained that he voted against the mill increase for several reasons. "I think we should take our time and come up with a comprehensive program," Smith said, comparing the notion of buying equipment and building a central dispatch center without the funds to operate it to the 'Field of Dreams' philosophy. "I guess they think if they build it, (a 911 system) the voters will come around."

Smith also said that he thinks the voters need all the information regarding costs of a 911 system before they vote. "There was a lot of confusion that needs to be cleared up," Smith said. Smith doesn't want the 911 system to be property tax funded, either. He would like to see it funded by a user fee. Hosler voted against putting the mill increase back on the ballot because his constituency strongly voted it down the first time. Many of Hosler's constituents would like the county to consider a single county 911 operation.

Commissioner Phil Johnson, an advocate of the 911 system, was happy that the 911 funding issue will be back on the ballot. "We're asking for the same thing the voters already gave us," Johnson said. If the mill increase passes, Johnson hopes that the county can operate the system using the county's rainy day funds. The rainy day funds are generated from the county's delinquent tax account. "I'd like to see the county operate it for one year using those funds and see exactly how much it costs, then we can ask the voters how they want to fund it," Johnson said.

Emmet County decided to levy the tax increase for 911 that passed on their August ballot, even though they originally said they would not go ahead with one proposal (A or B) unless both passed. Unlike Emmet County, Charlevoix is not levying the mill increase that narrowly passed in August. Instead, they are giving the voters another chance to vote for the mill increase for 911 equipment without voting for the operational funds.

Cheboygan is putting a mill increase similar to Charlevoix County's mill increase on their November ballot. If Emmet, Charlevoix, and Cheboygan counties operate a joint 911 system, the cost could be considerably less than originally anticipated with a one or two county system. In conclusion, Johnson said "I hope that some of the people who voted yes on the 911 mill increase in August will help me get this going."

and do projects to help the program. Parents also provide snacks for the class on a rotating basis and each parent is asked to help in the classroom approximately four times per school year. Parents are also responsible for transporting their children.

The program is licensed to have up to 20 children in each class, however with the younger children class sizes are usually kept down to between 12 and 15 children. The nursery school's calendar year is essentially the same as the public schools in regard to snow days and vacations. This year the nursery school will open Sept. 14. There are still openings in the program. For more information, phone 547-6632.

Charlevoix Montessori School - The Charlevoix Montessori School is a nonprofit parent-owned school system. It is for children from age two and a-half through whatever age they are at the completion of kindergarten. (The Montessori School is the only local pre-school which includes a kindergarten program.)

Parents who are involved in the ownership of the school participate on committees and work on fundraisers and help supply school snacks. Parents who don't wish to participate in such things may still enroll their children, but at a higher tuition rate.

The Montessori School offers a variety of timetables for parents to choose. The five day morning classes run from 8:45 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. The tuition cost for that program is $1,540 for participating parents and $2,040 for nonparticipating parents. (Tuition is paid in 10 payments from August to May.) There is also an extended program which runs from 8:45 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Tuition for the extended program is $2,065 for participating parents and $2,565 for nonparticipating parents.

Beyond the extended program, there is also a daycare program available for Montessori students at $2 per hour. Currently the daycare program goes until 4 p.m., but if there is enough demand, it will be extended to a later time.

Heather Woods is the Montessori teacher. She has an assistant. The Montessori educational philosophy views each child as an individual, rather than as a member of a class. The philosophy emphasizes the individual development and growth of each child.

Although some children use the county transit busses, for the most part parents transport their children to and from the school on Mercer Road.

The school schedule essentially coincides with the public school schedule, but has a few extra days that the public school doesn't. It closes for the same snow days as the public schools. However, on days when the public school has snow delays, the Montessori School closes for the whole day.

The school is licensed for up to 26 students. They have fewer than 20 enrolled for the coming school year and are looking for more. For additional information, phone 582-9273.

Kids Corner - Kids Corner is taught in the lower level of the First Congregational Church. We were unable to contact organizers last week for additional information.

At one time, Round Lake was lined with boat yards instead of condominiums. Can anyone tell where this boat was resting? The year was 1929, if that helps. Photo courtesy of Del Proctor.

Ideas considered to make changes in school system

By Laurie Lounsbury

It's hard to please all of the people all of the time. Probably no one knows that better than the people serving on the school's STB Committee. STB is an acronym for the Scheduling, Time, and Bus committee. The newly formed committee is looking into the possibility of adding another class period to the high school schedule, among other things.

"At this point, we're still in the data gathering stage," said Roberta Jackson, Superintendent. The committee will address the concerns of the community regarding:

*More vocational education opportunities.

*Enabling students to take all of the classes they would like to take.

*Offering tech prep classes to students who are bound for a two year technical associate's degree.

Parents in favor of adding another period to the existing six period schedule point to the scheduling difficulties facing some students. Some classes, such as band or advanced French, are only offered at the same time. Students must choose one or the other, even though they would like to participate in both.

Adding another class period to the existing school day is a complex matter. Considerations must be given to bus transportation schedules, teacher availability for teaching extra classes, and conflicts with after school activities if the extra period were to be added to the end of the existing school day. The situation calls for creative ideas from parents, teachers, and administrators.

High School principal Dave Smith is working to involve teachers, parents, and students in the decision making process of adding another class period. Smith said there are many options to be considered by all three groups. Summer school and evening classes are some options that have been suggested. Smith also said there is an option of having four long periods each day, and covering a year's worth of material in one semester.

With that system, students could take a total of eight classes a year.

Vane Smith, who is the current elementary school principal and a former high school principal, thinks that a strong curriculum study needs to be done before changes are made. "The whole spectrum of parents, teachers, and students should be covered," Smith said. Smith pointed out that while a few high achieving students might benefit from an additional period, many students currently aren't even utilizing the six class periods available. "You need to develop a curriculum that keeps them busy for all the periods," he said. Smith added that a current dual enrollment program with North Central Michigan College has been very successful in handling the needs of students wanting to take additional or accelerated classes. Those students may take classes at NCMC in

Fire truck bids sought

The City Council plans to fine-tune the specs on a new fire truck once they have some price figures in hand. Tuesday evening the council approved soliciting bids from three companies for a new fire truck.

A total of $195,000 has been budgeted for the truck. A committee made up of council members Ted Feller and Jackie Cross, volunteer firemen Doug Bergmann and Barry Wood and former fire chief John Martin spent several months drafting truck specifications contained in a 27-page booklet. Recently hired fire chief Doug Carver reviewed those specifications and suggested 11 modifications.

At Tuesday's meeting Carver explained the reasoning behind his suggestions, and Bergmann explained the reasoning behind the original specifications. A suggestion by Feller to have bidders give a price for the original specifications and also list prices for modifications met with council approval.

AHEAD LINES

Charlevoix Rotary to host Porky Putter golf outing

The Charlevoix Rotary Porky Putter pig roast and golf outing is scheduled for Tuesday, April 15. The event will take place at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course, a legendary course which players such as Jack Nicklaus, Arpold Palmer, Gary Player and Lee Trevino somehow just never seem to work up the courage to tackle.

Alexander's Restaurant will serve as the launch and landing site for the 9-hole outing. Sign up will be from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. on the day of the event. The price of $15 per player plus greens fees (which for this event will be reduced from $12 to $8) will cover golfing and a dinner of roast pork and side dishes. Various prizes will be awarded. Male, female and mixed groups of golfers are all welcome to participate.

Unlike many wimpier golf events, the Porky Putter will not turn its curly little tail and run if faced with hostile weather. The Porky Putter will take place rain or shine. If the weather gets ugly, the event will simply skip the golfing and go straight to the eating and other festivities. If the event becomes an indoor matter, gifts donated by local people and merchants will be auctioned off.

Not one, but two prime porkers will be making the supreme sacrifice for the Porky Putter. Proceeds from the event will be used for Charlevoix Rotary sponsored projects such as improving Charlevoix recreational opportunities, awarding college scholarships and providing school clothes for area children in need.

addition to their high school course load and have the credits apply to their high school education.

Smith said that staffing rearrangements would have to be made in order to add an extra period. Since contract negotiations for teachers begin next spring, Smith said that this year is the logical time to lay the groundwork for changes.

Connie Ford, performing arts teacher at the high school, said the committee needs to figure out how to loosen up schedules in order to accommodate students wanting to take extra classes.

Gale Sheldon, a parent serving on the STB committee, would like to see the committee create a more varied schedule as well as extending the schedule. Sheldon stresses the importance of having parents, teachers, and administrators working together on the project. "The key to making things work is empowering the teachers in the decision making," he said.

The committee has come up with several options and proposals to be reviewed by teachers, parents and students. Changes and suggestions may be added to the proposals by anyone in those three groups. After the proposals have been reviewed, the committee plans to meet Sept. 28 and review the input they've received.

Superintendent Jackson said that this committee is just one part of many action teams currently being formed. Action teams will review and assess many aspects of the current educational system. Anyone wishing to participate with an action team should contact one of the three school building offices or the superintendent's office.

Mrs. P.D. Campbell (front, second from left) and Bette Hoffmann (front, second from right) did the honors at a Sept. 2 ribbon cutting ceremony in Hoffmann Park. The stone beneath the ribbon is one of two recently added to the park.

Ribbon cut at Hoffmann Park

Approximately 25 people gathered for a brief ribbon cutting ceremony Sept. 2 at Hoffmann Park. Cutting the ribbon were Bette Hoffmann and Mrs. P.D. Campbell.

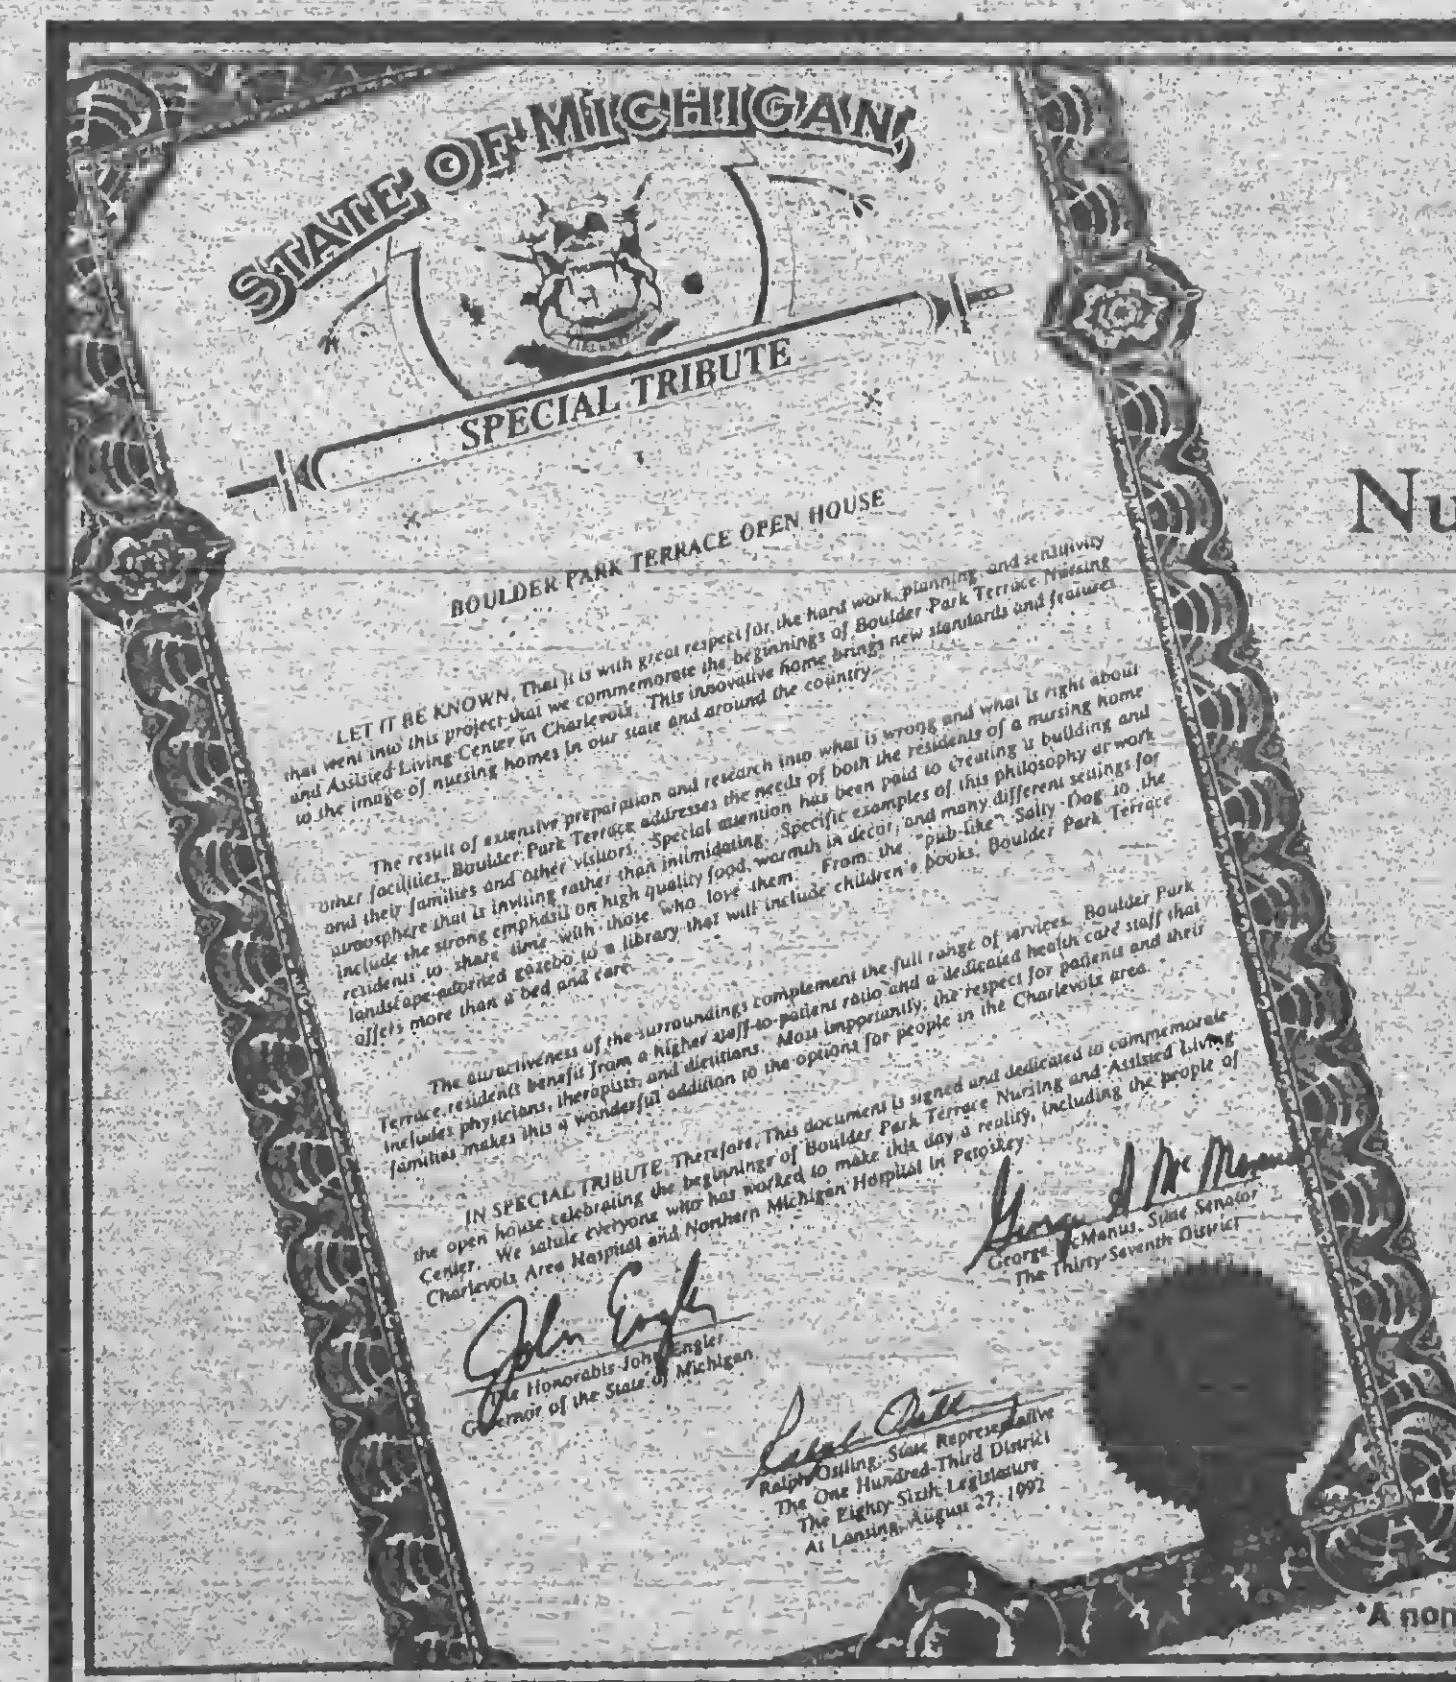

Hoffmann and her late husband donated the property between Park Avenue and the Pine River Channel which the city made into a park. Campbell donated the fencing which came from the old bridge and now lines the eastern and western borders of the park.

In addition to the fence, two stones with plaques were recently installed in the park. The plaques explain the history of the bridge and of the fencework.

Several City Council and Downtown Development Authority members turned out for the ceremony. Mayor Dave Novotny noted that the park has been a wonderful addition to the community.

Feel free to express ideas to improve school

As most local people should be aware, the Charlevoix School System is involved in an ongoing school improvement effort. One aspect of that effort is in its early stages. People are tossing around ideas which would allow high school students greater flexibility in choosing classes (See related story on page 1). Reviewing the school's program in an effort to assure that the students and teachers are being given every opportunity to maximize their learning and teaching potential can only be construed as healthy for the community. Granted, Charlevoix is a small community and resources, both financial and otherwise, are not infinite. But if by getting our heads together and brainstorming we can come up with better ways to utilize those resources and consequently improve our community's educational system, by all means let's do it.

Unfortunately, one of the things the Courier encountered when contacting some people about the story was an uneasiness. Part of that uneasiness seemed to stem from the proposals in question being only in the formative stages. So let's make it clear, according to the people the Courier talked to, at this time the proposed school system changes are only ideas that are being discussed. But let's also be clear, the discussion of ideas should lead to action - action in the form of changes and improvements.

The other source of uneasiness was almost certainly a feeling that any talk of change and improvement is likely to make some people uncomfortable. That may be, but regardless of that, ideas should not be squelched. Remaining open and receptive to the free exchange of ideas in the pursuit of greater knowledge is a cornerstone of education. If ideas for educational improvement die before they ever see light because of fears that new ideas will offend someone, then education is doomed.

So let's not be afraid to present ideas. Let's not divide ourselves into factions such as parents, teachers and students. Granted, there may be some different interests and priorities, but there's also plenty of common ground. We are a community. We all have much to gain and much to lose.

Let's get all of the ideas out on the table. Let's talk them over and sort out what we want to keep and what we want to throw away. Some ideas won't be worth adopting. That's fine. At least we will have considered the possibility. But other ideas will be worth adopting. And as you hear and read about these ideas being discussed, one thing you might want to keep in mind is that keep in mind is that for a new idea to be worth adopting, it doesn't have to be perfect. It just has to be better than the status quo.

Now I suppose there are worse things than having insensitive houseguests, but come Labor Day some provocative stories surface over the coffee cups.

A banal question such as "how was your summer?" brings hot sparks to the eyes of a usually cool female.

"My brother and his family visited us for a week and when I suggested we go out for dinner one night his wife said, 'Oh, no. We'd rather stay home with the children!'"

Sympathetic gasps are heard from the group.

A second voice adds, "At my house, one of my daughters suggested they take me out for dinner and her husband said, 'No, let's eat at home. It's free!'"

More groans.

"Can you believe my houseguests invited their friends to my home for the weekend?" another voice sighed.

"These are some of the stories making the rounds over Labor Day weekend and I can sympathize having hosted houseguests for more years than I care to recall. My prayer at the beginning of each summer is that everyone arrive safely and stay healthy. No emergency runs to the hospital for quick stitches, attacks of croup, or bee stings. (I have long ago given up the hope that there will not be socks under the bed and shorts in the dryer to be mailed back after people leave.)"

Thanks to the airlines cut rate fares this summer, I was privileged to host three separate family reunions. Twenty-four people visited from both coasts and stayed a week or ten days.

But I must say this summer's group rates a 10 when it comes to being thoughtful, helpful, and cooperative. Besides being invited out to dinners by all, there were so many extra little niceties that come to mind. My niece Janet mailed a box of toys and video tapes ahead. That kept the tricycle set amused for many hours in the playroom. My nephew Larry and his wife, Maryellen, found their own cottage to rent for a week and even invited us all for a picnic lunch! My nephew, Walter, bought a fishing pole and tackle box and donated it for the next group to enjoy. My nephew, Peter, videoed my birthday party and my daughter-in-law, Vicky, weeded my rose garden. My step-son, Jay, fixed my wristwatch. All it needed was new battery, but such a relief to know the time again. Somebody noticed that my can opener was limping and bought me a new one. Everyone went marketing on demand, tossed a salad, husked corn, or set the table.

Now as I pick up the shopping bag of used tennis balls, and return the 142 empty cans of pop - pleasant vignettes of the summer of '92 flash across my mind. Good one-on-one conversations on the front porch. "What can I do to help?" offers in the kitchen. Happy hours on twilight cruises on the boat. Day trips to Mackinac Island and canoe trips down the Jordan River. Never mind that there were times over the last two months that this house seemed like a cross between a busy laundromat, a fast food establishment and an overbooked Club Med! Appreciative thank-you notes, telephone calls and an unexpected basket of flowers erase any memory of temporary stress.

If someone were to ask my for helpful hints on how to be the perfect guest, here are some suggestions -

Tell your host when you expect to arrive and also your time of departure.

Bring a treat with you such as candy, nuts, cheese, fruit, etc.

Do not bring animals or children unless previously agreed upon.

Adapt yourself to the rhythm of the household. This pertains to bedtime, mealtime, playtime, and on-your-own time.

Offer your help, but not your advice.

Pay for your own long distance telephone calls.

Keep your belongings in your room.

Invite your host out for a meal.

Ask if your bed should be made up or the bed stripped when you leave.

Make a phone call or write a thank-you note when you return home, or both.

Letters to the editor

Mrs. Rowe is a wonderful gardener

Editor,

An adventure to Mrs. Rowe's gardens; one reason why Charlevoix is Beautiful! The walk down Park, past fairytale gingerbread houses. The sparkling blue Lake Michigan through dense trees with shimmering leaves. The quaintness of her weathered signs: "cut flowers, rhubarb," and "I'm in back." The rainbow of the cutting garden - the former delighting sight and smell, the latter delighting the heart.

But most of all, I love the gardener, Mrs. Rowe. The smile, the hat, and the stories from 85 years make her handful of beautiful flowers simply the dessert.

"That's your bunch, my hand can't hold anymore!" The flowers bring a smile for a few days - the memory of their gathering will tangle a lifetime of smiles. Mrs. Rowe, the flower pixie of Charlevoix - YOU are a delight.

Millions - perhaps tens of millions - of Monarchs were destroyed last winter by illegal logging. These beautiful butterflies that hibernate in the forests of the Sierra Madre Mountains of Mexico are the parents of the Monarchs that come North each spring. Altho reserves are being established to protect the monarchs the destruction of their habitat is an ongoing problem. Leaders of one Mexican environmental group reported the ground was covered with dead butterflies. Hopefully mankind will soon learn how to share this earth with nature - if not we all will suffer the loss of these and other natural beauties.

Plans are being made for the Fall Session of the Lake Charlevoix Exceptional Riders' Program. The program is designed to help people with various handicaps learn to ride horses.

Riding classes organizing

Preparations are now being made for the Fall Session of the Lake Charlevoix Exceptional Riders Program. Classes are scheduled to begin Thursday, Sept. 10th, with orientation for volunteer helpers at 6:30 and student orientation at 7 p.m. If you are interested in volunteering to help with the classes or would like to register a student, please call Barb Lane at 347-3300.

Students are wanted. The classes are open to the physically, mentally, and emotionally challenged of all ages. Students are taught to ride a horse, not just taken for a "pony ride."

Each student is assisted by a volunteer horse leader and, depending on the student's ability, one or two side helpers. Safety is emphasized. The classes are one hour long, and are held in the indoor riding arena at Lake Charlevoix Farms, located on the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. They run for seven consecutive Tuesdays starting on September 15.

There is not fee for these classes, but students should arrange their own transportation. If you would like more information about this program, please contact Barb Lane at 616-347-3300.

Kid's Corner pre-school has openings for '92-93

(Editor's note: Last week's Courier contained brief summaries of Charlevoix-area pre-school programs. However, since we weren't able to contact directors of the Kids' Corner program, it was left out. Since last week, we were able to touch base with them and gather the following information.)

Kids Corner is a cooperative pre-school program for three to five-year olds. Parents assist the teacher on a rotating basis.

The non-profit program offers two-day-per-week and three-day-per-week programs. The two-day program meets from 9 a.m. to 11:15 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. The three-day program meets from 9 a.m. to 11:15 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Tuition for the two-day program is $270 per school year. For the three-day program, it is $350 per year.

This year Kids' Corner will open Sept. 21 with the school year ending May 14. Aside from the opening and closing dates, the school's vacation and snow day schedule is the same as Charlevoix Public School's.

Kids' Corner is housed in the bottom floor of the First Congregational Church; however the nursery school is open to children of all religious denominations. The school is taught by Sue Sheets.

The school's educational philosophy reflects a belief that children learn by example and the program utilizes hands-on learning activities which stress creativity. For example, last year the children worked together to create their own little map of Charlevoix. Children also take field trips during the course of the year.

Kids Corner is licensed by the state and has 12 children per class. Currently there are openings for the coming year in the three-day program. For additional information, phone 547-6862.

Ninth annual CROP Walk scheduled Saturday, Sept. 12

Participants for the ninth annual Charlevoix County CROP Walk will meet at Charlevoix High School at 9 a.m. Sept. 12 to raise money for world and local hunger relief.

Last year 125 CROP Walkers from Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan raised $6,719. One-fourth, $599.95, was returned to each local food pantry for use within the county.

The route for Charlevoix CROP Walkers will be May street to Stover road to M66 to the Ironton Congregational Church, approximately six miles. At the church they will meet the walkers from East Jordan and Boyne City for hot dogs and soft drinks before being transported back to the high school.

Sponsored by the Charlevoix County Ministerial Association, this CROP Walk is unique in Michigan in that the three cities cooperate for the one-day event.

Anyone interested in walking or sponsoring a walker may contact co-chairpersons Mary Helen Riggle, 547-9515 or Kay Smith, 547-2920. Local ministers also have CROP Walk information.

Street work continues

Middle school buses will be loading and unloading on Clinton Street during the first few weeks of school as construction work continues on Mason Street. The buses are expected to be able to switch back over after Mason Street is graveled, curbed and guttered sometime during the week of Sept. 21. Paving is expected to be completed by Oct. 9. Work on Mason Street included replacement of the water main and water services and portions of the sewer lines. The street will also be repaved and will be widened between State and Grant and to a lesser degree from Grant to Park. The Mason Street work is part of a summer street project which also included work on Huribut and Upright Streets. The cost of the entire project was approximately $560,000. Funding was derived from the city's infrastructure tax.

Hunter safety class a must for hunters

A Hunter Education Clinic will take place Sept. 12, at the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club, located north of Charlevoix on U.S. 31.

Registration will begin at 8:45 a.m. in the clubhouse. The day's activities will conclude at 4:30 p.m. Registrants are required to have their social security number available at the time of registration.

There will be a lunch break and registrants are asked to bring a sack lunch.

This clinic will be the only clinic held in Charlevoix and is open to all area residents 12 years of age and up, or who will be 12 prior to purchasing a 1992 hunting license.

A testing session, for those who complete the Sept. 12 clinic, will be held in Boyne City, Boyne Falls, and Charlevoix, with the time and dates to be announced at the Sept. 12 clinic.

Attendance is mandatory at both sessions (clinic and testing) to receive the Hunter Education Certificate.

Charlevoix soup kitchen serving meals

By Ralph McRae

At one time, homeless people and soup kitchens were something identified exclusively with urban areas. But now all over our nation, smaller towns and rural communities are having many of the problems associated with the major population centers.

Places like Petoskey now have noon time free meals for unemployed people and their families. And since last May, Charlevoix has had a soup kitchen. Years ago, only a bowl of soup was given, but now a well-balanced meal is served.

Some of our local pastors were aware of the Petoskey program which started last December and is under the direction of the Salvation Army. It seemed to be a worthy project for the local churches of Charlevoix so last spring the Charlevoix Ministerial Association began sponsoring a soup kitchen.

The lower level of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church was selected as the site of the soup kitchen, not only because of its convenient location, but because Methodist minister, Pastor Benton Heister was a leading advocate of the undertaking.

There are 15 churches which participate in the Charlevoix Ministerial Association. However not all of them participate in this particular ministry.

Marguerite Ikens is the coordinator for the soup kitchen project. An excellent cook herself, she has been the one person responsible for daily operations.

Presently, the Kiwanis Club also helps with the program. It is hoped that eventually there will be enough churches and clubs involved in the program so that each organization is only responsible for one day each month.

The most surprising aspect of this project is that it is individual people who prepare and donate the food. The meals distributed are home-cooked.

Last Wednesday, Merle Vandenberg and Agnes Lockland, volunteering on behalf of the Kiwanis Club, set up the tables, placed the food on plates and served it to the people. The menu included: roast beef, steamed vegetables, a molded salad, muffins, ice cream and milk and coffee. On this particular day the soup kitchen served five adults and two children.

The next day, Thursday, members of the Congregational Church served a meal consisting of a ham and cheese casserole, a five-bean salad, rolls and a carrot cake. Fifteen people were served.

Meals are served on weekdays from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Portions served are generous. Should food run short there are hot dogs and canned hash on reserve. All food is cooked at home by individuals who donate it. Many individuals have generously and repeatedly donated their time and food.

A daily record is kept of the number of people served. So far the average has been about nine. In Petoskey, the soup kitchen is open six days a week and serves an average of about 32 people per day. In Petoskey, the Manna Project provides the food.

OF BLESSINGS

The first day of school comes this week. It boggles the mind to think about the number of new blue jeans, sneakers, backpacks, and other related paraphernalia that we parents have gone out and purchased recently. Then there is the rite of passage some families will make for the first time as their kindergarten or first grader goes out to the curb and boards the bus all by themselves. Consider the shock to the system of other families who will send their sons or daughters off to high school in a family car.

What do you remember about your own school days? It's been so long ago now that I don't remember what she looked like. But I can still hear Miss Roland, my first grade teacher, telling me "Tap your brush, Bruce." I was a very messy painter. There was excitement in our fourth grade class at Christmas time because Miss Campbell was a cousin to Walt Disney. He sent her Disney books and games for her kids every year. There was Mr. Newby, my fifth grade teacher, who was big on sentence writing as a form of discipline. You will never guess why, after all these years, I can still remember this sentence, "I must learn to recognize the efficacy of circumspect conduct." Rumor has it that I occasionally talked too much.

I could tell you stories about being on the high school newspaper. There was the college romance that I used walkie talkies to communicate from one dorm to another to keep close to the current love of my life. My first real job was a challenge to balance school work with. All kinds of memories flood my mind. My question for you is a simple one. You haven't stopped learning have you?

You may be out of formal schools as such, but your education is always supposed to continue. If you are a believer, then you need to remember that God had even given you a teacher. His name is the Holy Spirit. According to the Bible, His job is to help you remember all the lessons that giving your life to Christ has taught you and how to apply them. But perhaps His most important task is to "bring you into all the truth."

We send our children to school because we want them to be equipped to get the most out of life that they possible can. God sends us His Holy Spirit because He wants us to get the most out of our faith that we possibly can. It should be a given that a truly fulfilled life never stops learning. It holds true for our spiritual pilgrimage too. God's Spirit can help you find things about yourself that you never knew were there. He can take the familiar words of scripture and shed light on meanings you never imagined applied to you. In the moments where it seems like you are facing life on your own, like some of the special teachers you had in your life, you will find that God's Spirit can be one of your closest friends.

(Rev. Bruce Hamilton is pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Hamilton and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

Volunteers prepare to storm beaches

They plan to storm our beaches this Saturday. They will strike from as far south as Manistee and range north as far as Charlevoix. Even as you read this, they are gathering and planning their offensive.

No piece of litter will be safe as volunteers participate in the second annual "Beach Sweep" clean-up this Saturday. The event is being coordinated by the Inland Lakes Seas Education Association out of Suttons Bay, but several people from Charlevoix will be participating. The objective is simple — get as many volunteers as possible to turn out and pick up the summer's litter from the Lake Michigan shoreline.

Last year more than 150 people participated. A similar event this spring drew 300 people. Among the more peculiar things beach sweepers found were a car bumper and an all terrain vehicle. The Northern Michigan effort is part of the Great Lakes Beach Sweep which takes place in conjunction with the Center for Marine Conservation's International Coastal Clean-Up. Last year more than 4,000 volunteers from eight Great Lakes States and Ontario, Canada picked up more than 20 tons of trash on the Great Lakes' shorelines.

Last year in this region volunteers picked up more than 15,500 items, including the following:

Plastic items - 7,166 pieces. Included in those were 2,667 plastic cigarette or cigar filters and 885 straws.
Plastic foam - 810 pieces.
Glass - 853 pieces.
Rubber - 1,317 pieces.
Metal - 1,323 pieces.
Paper - 3,765 pieces. Of those, 2,404 were cigarettes.
Wood - 137 pieces.
Cloth - 247 pieces.

Local Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts are spearheading this area's efforts, but other volunteers are welcome to join in. To coordinate efforts with the Scouts, phone Jennie Martinus at 547-9269, Jeanne Eaton at 347-6577 or John Pfeuke at 547-6144. Volunteers may also simply show up at their favorite beach with a garbage bag.

The Inland Seas Education Association is making an effort to again keep track of what is picked up. Volunteers who wish to have their litter recorded may contact Sally Somset at either 938-1305 or 271-3077 for a data card.

Although the data is helpful, the real mission of the clean-up is simply keeping Northern Michigan's beaches beautiful.

"I'm trying to promote families to get out there on the beach," Somset said. She hopes the clean-up effort will allow parents to pass on the concept of stewardship of our area to children.

Clinic hours changed

Charlevoix area Hospital has announced a change in the hours for its After Hours Clinic. In order to provide times that are more convenient, the clinic will be open from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on weekends and holidays.

The clinic offers treatment for minor medical problems at reduced rates during times when doctors' offices are closed. A physician is on duty at these hours and 24-hours a day to provide emergency care at the hospital.

Basketball team beats Ellsworth

Rayders open season with 53-31 win

It wasn't all that pretty, but opening with a win is always the way you want the season to start. Charlevoix's girls' basketball team beat Ellsworth 53-31 at home Sept. 1 to get the Rayders' season off on the right foot.

Both teams had some early season rough edges, particularly in terms of traveling violations and telegraphed or flopping passes. Charlevoix sophomore Liz Grunch was the only player on the floor willing to utilize the bounce pass with any consistency.

Despite the final margin of 22 points, Ellsworth stayed within striking distance for much of the game. Ellsworth attempted to utilize a height advantage and work the ball inside while Charlevoix compensated by being quicker to the ball and running the floor.

At the end of the first quarter, Charlevoix led 15-8. Opening the second quarter Charlevoix center Jodi Allison made a basket in the lane which was quickly followed by a three-point basket from Mary Jane Grunch prompting Ellsworth coach Ike Boss to call time out. Charlevoix extended its lead to as many as 13 points early in the quarter, but by halftime Ellsworth had closed to within seven at 24-17.

Charlevoix extended its lead to approximately 10 points and led by that margin for much of the second half. Last year Gina Webster was Charlevoix's go-to player, but this year's she's in New York playing. Continued on page 16

Mary Jane Grunch shoots over an Ellsworth player during the Rayders' season-opening 53-31 win last week. Grunch led a balanced scoring attack with 12 points.

Becky Bragg finishes off a fast break against Ellsworth. Bragg's anticipation on defense and ability to run the floor played a major role in the second half of the game.

Varsity football team off on the right foot

Charlevoix began this football season on a better note than they ended the last one, beating, rather than losing to Rogers City.

Charlevoix began their 1992 season with a 25-12 win at Rogers City. They finished the 1991 season with a 47-30 loss to Rogers City at home. The loss knocked Charlevoix out of contention for post season play.

This past Friday evening, Charlevoix scored midway through the first quarter and never trailed.

Defense led to offense as Jody McGlinch recovered a fumble near midfield, setting up an offensive drive which culminated with a one-yard touchdown run by Chris Pease. Vince Voisin kicked the extra point to put Charlevoix up 7-0.

Early in the second quarter the Rayders stretched their lead to 13-0 on a three-yard pass from Don Jess to Voisin. The extra point attempt was blocked.

Rogers City opened the second half scoring with a 15-yard touchdown pass.

The Rayders immediately answered the challenge. After the extra point attempt was thwarted, Brandon Jess returned the Rogers City kickoff 50 yards. Charlevoix then scored on a 40 yard pass play from Jess to Voisin. An attempt at a 2-point conversion failed and Charlevoix led 19-6.

Charlevoix's final touchdown came on a one-yard run by Webb

college basketball. Coming into the season, the key question mark for the Rayders is how do they pick up the slack created by Webster's graduation? The answer - everybody contributes. Coach Toni Felter had 10 players available against Ellsworth. They all played.

Early in the second half, Allison was working underneath with junior forward Jamie Doan. Later, senior Marianne Pfister worked with junior forward Becky Bragg. At the beginning of the third quarter, Allison took an early pass in the lane and quickly moved it to Doan who had spotted up for an open shot. Pfister and Bragg were simply more physical and aggressive than their Ellsworth counterparts. Pfister scored the majority of her points off of rebounds of either her teammates or her own missed shots. Bragg anticipated well on defense, stepping into passing lanes and intercepting passes. She and Liz Grunch, who led the team in steals, ran the floor well together on fast breaks. Bragg also led the team in rebounds.

In preseason practices Felter emphasized defense and looked for balanced scoring. The Rayders held Ellsworth to 31 points and had seven of 10 players score. Mary Jane Grunch led the Rayders with 12 points while Liz Grunch had 11.

Charlevoix's junior varsity team also won, 40-20. Melissa Anderson led the Rayders with 14 points.

Following a Sept. 8 game at Grayling, the Rayders will travel to Petoskey Sept. 10.

(Editor's note: Ralph Hamilton sent us the following letter in regard to a photo which appeared in the Sept. 2 Scrapbook. We weren't sure where the photo had been taken, but Hamilton and several other longtime Charlevoix residents recognized the setting.)

Regarding the picture of the boatyard in the Sept. 2 issue of the Courier, the place is Hamilton & Sons Boatyard and existed from 1905 to the late '60s. It is now the LaHarve Condominiums. It is where I spent my early childhood. The picture must have been taken from the yard arm that existed on the dock, for replacing masts in the sailboats after dropping them in the lake in the early spring. The masts were stored in the large building at the left of the picture. The small structure seen attached to this building was the "Paint Shed". The insurance required this because of the fire hazard. The residence pictured on the right was the family home and on the left, my brother's home. He was a former Mayor of the City.

You indicate that the picture was taken in 1929. I was 25 years old at the time and it was a depression year and I remember that Dad would not put the boats in the lake until the storage was paid. That probably is why the four boats shown were not in the lake. The railway to haul the boats up is clearly indicated as is the shed housing the "Donkey" engine that was used for this purpose. The boats were skidded on heavy timbers to their place in the storage area. If my memory serves me correctly, the boat in the foreground is the "Olympia", owned by William Francis who lived in what is now the Gray Gables. It was later demolished. The only other boatyard that existed in Charlevoix at that time was Roy Ranger's, now the Cross Fisheries.

The picture brought back many childhood memories that are too many to enumerate. I was married at the date indicated that the picture was taken and employed by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in Grand Rapids. I returned to Charlevoix the next year.

Respectfully,
Ralph S. Hamilton

Contamination found at downtown site

But so far, nobody's saying exactly what it is

By L. Scott Swanson

Soil contamination has been found on downtown property which the city is planning to purchase for $365,000 and convert into a parking lot. The property, located between Mason and Antrim Streets, is the former site of the Kusina Motors auto dealership. In December 1991, the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) board agreed to purchase the property.

Terms of the agreement call for a purchase price of $365,000 with a down payment of $75,000 and the remainder to be paid off over seven years on a land contract at nine percent interest. One of the contingencies in the agreement calls for an environmental assessment "showing that the premises is free from environmental contamination and free from any environmental condition which could impose liability to the Purchaser."

The agreement also states, "All reports from such assessments shall be owned solely by the Seller, and shall be made available to the Purchaser on a confidential basis. In the event, however, that the purchase is not consummated, all copies of any such assessment correspondence or reports which are in the possession of the Purchaser shall be given to the Seller and none shall be retained by the Purchaser." Additionally, the contract says that should the sale not go through, all environmental assessment results will be kept confidential.

In recent months, the building facing Mason Street and the building directly behind it have been torn down. Soil has been tested and a portion of the topsoil has been hauled away. Two wells have also been installed near Mason Street.

Soil contamination has been found at this site between Mason and Antrim Streets. The contamination has been termed minor, but nobody has yet said exactly what was found. The city has an agreement to purchase the property for $365,000 once it has an environmentally clean bill of health.

Numbers down at Fisherman's Island State Park in 1992

Bad weather keeps people out of parks

Like other state parks throughout Michigan, Fisherman's Island State Park experienced a drop in use this summer due to bad weather. Total visitation to the park was down 15 percent from 1991 while the total number of camper nights was down 10.2 percent according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Fisherman's Island State Park is located just south of Charlevoix on the Lake Michigan shoreline in an area local people refer to as Bells Bay. The park contains 90 campsites and has toilets, water wells, picnic tables and fire circles, but does not have electricity. The lack of electricity makes it more primitive than many other state parks. The park is an excellent place to watch Lake Michigan sunsets and has a swimming beach which attracts people who use the park during the day, but do not camp. It is this type of day use which dropped most significantly due to the summer's often dreary weather.

The park is one of a cluster of four area state parks managed out of Young State Park on the Lake Charlevoix shoreline, between Boyne City and Charlevoix. Gary Ellenwood is the park manager of Young State Park and also oversees Camping activity at Fisherman's Island State Park this past summer was down 10.2 percent from 1991. Activity at state parks throughout Michigan was down this year, presumably because of poor weather.

...park use off in '92

operations at Fisherman's Island, Petoskey and Burt Lake state parks.

All four parks in the cluster experienced a drop in use from 1991. Young State experienced the smallest decrease in the number of camper nights at 4.5 percent. Fisherman's Island was next lowest off 10.2 percent (down to 5,426 camper nights as compared to 6,083 camper nights in 1991). Burt Lake was off 15.2 percent and Petoskey State Park down 17.5 percent.

Ellenwood noted that 1991 was a banner year, therefore the drop might seem steeper than it would if comparisons were made over a longer period of time. Although State Park camping fees were raised from $6 per night to $7 per night between 1991 and 1992, Ellenwood said he feels the drop in usage was almost certainly attributable to the weather, not the price change. Further evidence in support of that view is that the drop in day use was more dramatic than the drop in camper nights.

"I don't think we had any complaints on price," he noted.

Although Young State and Fisherman's Island did experience a drop in camper use, the drop at those parks was less pronounced than the drop at Petoskey and Burt Lake. Ellenwood speculated that the reason for that may be that over the years Young State and Fisherman's Island parks have built a clientele of people who return to the parks year after year.

Fisherman's Island park has always been popular with local people and in recent years it has become a destination park for campers who prefer a park that has a more natural setting, Ellenwood explained.

Although in past years, there have been occasional problems with rowdiness in Fisherman's Island State Park, Ellenwood said that situation has improved quite a bit in recent years. He said that during the past summer there were very few problems.

"I think it serves a real good clientele now," he said.

Although there has been talk in Lansing of transferring some state parks from state to county management, Ellenwood said he has never heard that mentioned as a possibility for Fisherman's Island. He said he thinks the state views that park as a nice resource.

Top: Although use of Fisherman's Island State Park was down from last year, DNR officials say the park is still considered to be a valuable resource to the state.

Letters to the editor

Firemen should know where things are located

Editor,

Recently some local citizens have mentioned to me various incidents occurring over the past 2-3 months in which mistakes have been made by the Fire Department in responding to emergency situations. If these incidents did indeed occur, I believe it should be a matter of some concern to all those served by the Charlevoix City Fire Department.

To begin with, I understand a call came in from Paul Stephan for an emergency at the Pine River "Building." The ambulance proceeded, of course, to the Pine River Building near the bridge. (As a matter of fact, I understand they asked for the bridge to remain down which wouldn't be necessary, of course, if you knew where the Pine River Building is). Perhaps understandable, since the new fire chief and firefighter are both from out-of-town. It is my belief, however, that most local people would know that Paul Stephan works at Pine River Place and would have answered the call correctly without delay. If you were the one awaiting the ambulance, I think you'd be a bit upset to know the delay was caused by misdirection. Shouldn't the one taking the call ask for both an address and a cross street for reference? If this were one isolated incident, I would not consider that out-of-line necessarily. But I also have been told...

that an ambulance responded to a call on Sequanota Road, out of the jurisdiction of the Charlevoix Fire Department by some 2 plus miles.

that in June the fire chief went beyond a turn to an accident scene and had to back up.

that at Nanny's Restaurant fire, the new firefighter turned right off M66 onto Marion Center Road, mistaking that road for Stover and driving past the cemetery before realizing his mistake and turning around. He was searching for the corner of Stover and Ferry, but on the way to a fire is hardly the time to start looking!

I don't know exactly where the fire at Nanny's originated, but I would hate to think that some day we might have a motel fire in town and find the firemen at the scene in gear...waiting for the truck to arrive! What a terrible tragedy could happen. I pray it won't.

I understand, too, that in the same incident two vehicles would not start due to low batteries. With additional help now hired by the Council, aren't these emergency vehicles checked for gas and oil every day and started up to assure that they are ready to go? If not, why not?

It is obvious that some of these mistakes are caused by a lack of knowledge on the part of our new additions to the Fire Department about the area served by the Department. Perhaps the City Manager and City Council should have anticipated such problems when they chose to hire out-of-town people.

Mr. Carver and Mr. Lundstrom, get with it! It may be your jobs, but it's our lives! You should study and learn this area — where the major roads and intersections are, the locations of businesses, schools, churches, etc. Consult the maps of Charlevoix and surrounding townships. Get out and drive the area and look! People who call in emergencies are often nervous, sometimes downright panicky, so help them by having a first-hand knowledge of the territory, yourselves.

If I have an emergency at my home, I wouldn't want you going to the north side to town...or to the next street over...or to Horton Bay, instead of the Horton home. And I certainly wouldn't want to learn that trucks were out of gas or wouldn't start due to low batteries!

I will end with a reminder from Meredith Willson who wrote "The Music Man." Remember Charlie Cowell, the anvil salesman, and his traveling companions on the train? They clamored loudly, "Ya gotta know the territory!"

Sincerely,
Rosemary Horton

Local relief effort praised

Editor,

I would like to commend Earl Muma of the Charlevoix County Emergency Services Department for organizing the Hurricane Andrew relief in Charlevoix County so quickly and efficiently. Also to be commended is Doug Way of Way Transportation in Charlevoix for supplying the truck and transporting the supplies to the victims. These men and their families put in a lot of hours and hard work out of generosity and concern for others.

All the generous people in Northern Michigan who donated food, clothing, supplies, money and work, and other individuals, who helped like Earl and Doug in the relief efforts also deserve the highest praises.

Fantastic job Northern Michigan! Sincerely,

Senior citizens defined

Editor,

A TALK BEFORE THE KIWA NIS CLUB

The other day a youngster asked me, who is a senior citizen? Who is one? A senior citizen is one who was here before the pill, and the population explosion. We were here before television, penicillin, polio shots, and antibiotics and fridges and hula-hoops, before frozen food, Nylon, Dacron, Xerox, Kinsey, radio, fluorescent lights, credit cards and ball point pens. For us time-sharing meant togetherness, not computers. A chip meant a piece of wood. Hardware meant hardware and software wasn't even a word. Co-eds never wore slacks. We were here before pantyhose, drip-dry clothes, before ice-makers, dishwashers, clothes dryers, freezers and electric blankets, before men wore long hair and women wore tuxedos. We were here before Leonard Bernstein, Elvis Presley, Yogurt and Ann Landers. Plastic and the 40-hour week and minimum wage. We got married and lived together... how quaint can you be? Closets were for clothes, not coming out of and bunnies were small rabbits, and rabbits were not Volkswagens. We were before Grandma Moses and Frank Sinatra and cup-sized bras. Girls wore Peter Pan collars and thought cleavage was what the butcher did. We were before Batman, Super-man, Rudolph the Red nosed Reindeer, and Snoopy, vitamin pills, disposable diapers and the Jefferson Memorial. We have seen five states join the union, before Boy George, Chiquita, Pizza, Cheerios, instant coffee, and decaffeinated everything and McDonalds were unheard of. We thought fast food was what you ate during lent. We were before radios, tape recorders, electric typewriters and disco dancing, and that is not all bad. In our day cigarette smoking was fashionable, and grass was for mowing. Coke was a refreshing drink and pot was what you cooked in. If we had been asked what CIA *MS *NATO *UFO *NFL *JEK *ERA or IUD was we would have said alphabet soup. We saw the rise to the automobile and airplane, have seen Halley's comet twice, weathered two world wars and saw a man land on the moon... we are today's senior citizens, a hardy bunch, and when you think of how our world has changed... Whew!

New Federal clean air law complicates refrigerator disposal

By L. Scott Swanson

It's kind of the home appliance version of being embalmed. Due to federal clean air regulations which went into effect July 1, refrigerators, freezers, air conditioners and any other devices containing ozone depleting chlorofluorocarbon (CFC) or hydrochlorofluorocarbon (HCFC) substances such as freon must be drained prior to disposal.

The city has an agreement with Waste Management Incorporated (WMI) for the disposal of appliances and other items. The city pays waste management a fee each year and for that fee, people living within the city can put such items out by the road and the waste company will pick them up and dispose of them. However, due to the federal law, items containing CFCs and HCFCs now must be tagged before WMI can pick them up.

WMI sent the city a letter in late June explaining the ramifications of the new requirement. "Due to this requirement we will no longer be able to collect refrigerators or air conditioners, or any other refrigerant units unless the CFC's/HCFC's have been removed. This can be done by licensed personnel in the refrigeration industry such as a heating and cooling repairman or an appliance repairman, possibly a scrap dealer. Once these materials have been removed, they will tag the item authorizing the disposal of the unit. Once this has been completed, we will be able to collect and dispose of the unit.

City Hall has received very few calls about the new law. Ken Rogers of WMI also said the transition is going fairly well. "It's like anything else," he said. "It's just a matter of getting people trained."

Rogers said that since the law has gone into effect, WMI has collected between 20 and 30 refrigerators from the Charlevoix area. He estimated that in an average year between 50 and 100 old refrigerators are collected from Charlevoix. Browe Electric of Charlevoix is one area business which is draining CFCs and HCFCs from cooling devices. When asked about demand for refrigerator drainage since July 1, Ted Browe of Browe Electric said he had a bunch of requests right after July 1, but since that time demand has dropped off to a steady level.

The length of time it takes to drain the CFCs varies from one refrigerator to the next depending on things such as the size of the unit and the availability of a drainage valve. For a small refrigerator, it might take an hour, Browe said an average price for drainage would be around $35.

The machinery required to drain a refrigerator is fairly expensive, costing $2,000 to $2,400 or more depending on the unit.

Once the CFCs are drained and captured they either have to be taken to a hazardous waste disposal site or processed for reuse. Browe said that most refrigerators contain between 10 and 15 ounces of freon.

New federal laws have made it more difficult to dispose of old refrigerators. The refrigerators now must be drained of freon, before waste haulers can pick them up.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

Did you get to see the beautiful white biplane that was offering rides out at the Charlevoix Airport in recent weeks? The thought of an open cockpit, blue skies, and the wind rushing through my hair was nice to imagine. I would like to have made a flight.

It reminded me of a story that I read from long ago. Back in the thirties, barnstorming by young dashing biplane pilots was popular. They would land in small towns all across the midwest offering rides to awed folks. It seems a farmer and his wife were caught up in the spell of it all and went out to the airfield determined to make a flight.

When the young ace told the old couple what the trip would cost, they balked at the high price. Knowing that it would be easier to attract customers if he were up in the air flying, he made them an offer they couldn't refuse. "I'll take you up for a ride and it won't cost you one penny if you will promise me one thing. Regardless of what I do while we are in the air, you won't say one single word." The prospect of getting the flight for free delighted the couple and they readily agreed.

The engine was started. The young pilot lofted his charges heavenward and almost immediately began putting his plane through a series of gut wrenching loops, turns, stalls and dives. Not a word was heard from his passengers in the back seat. The pilot was truly impressed at their endurance and after awhile, even he was tired and brought the plane down for a landing.

He was out of the cockpit first to help his passengers down. "I've got to hand it to you folks. You really took everything I could dish out."

"Well," the old guy replied as he heaved himself out on the wing, "there was one time that I almost said something."

"When was that?"

"When the old lady fell out of the plane."

Now there are bargains in life and then there are bargains. Do you know what I mean? The greatest bargain of all revolves around a verse in the Bible that reads, "In while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." There are not strings or conditions of any kind attached to the gift of salvation that God offered to us through His Son. We simply have to be willing to repent and believe. Life may deal you some heart wrenching twists but God, through His Son, knows how to see you safely through. Salvation truly is an offer that none of us should refuse.

Relief drivers taken to Governor's mansion

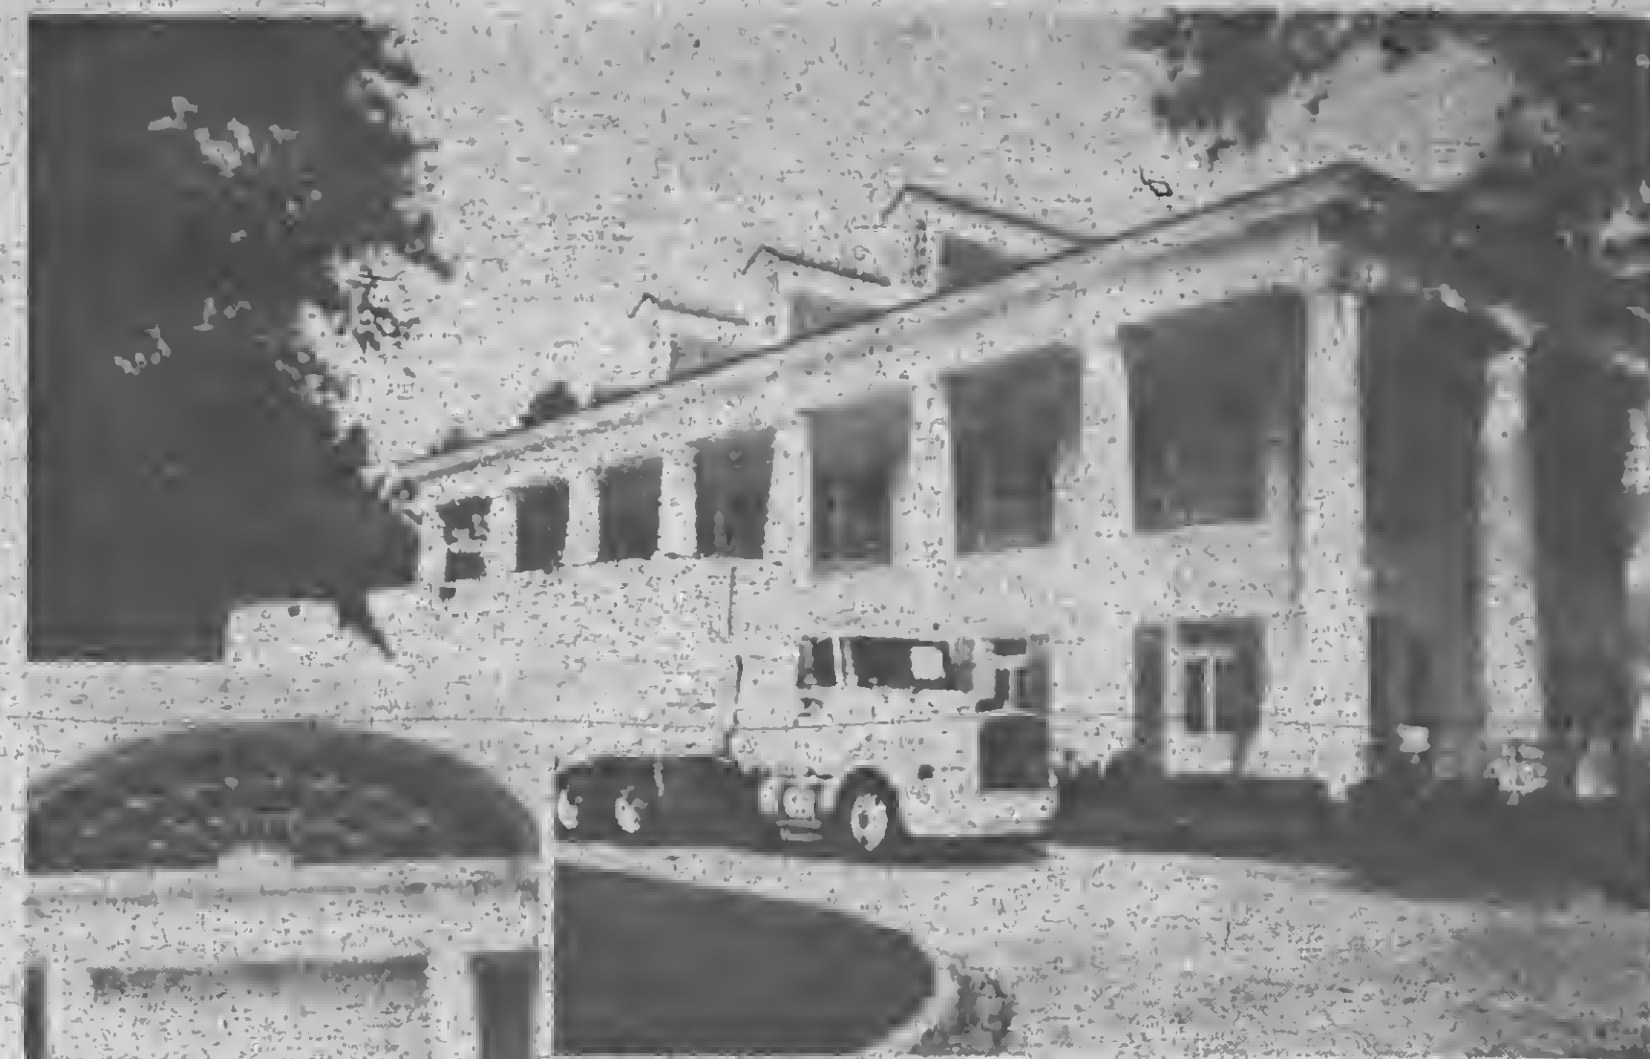

Last week, Doug Way and Earl Muma of Charlevoix delivered a semi trailer filled with goods contributed by Charlevoix people to Louisiana to help victims of Hurricane Andrew. People from Louisiana Governor Edwin Edwards' office heard of the effort and invited Way and Muma to the Governor's mansion in Baton Rouge. (Way and Muma are shown standing at the front door of the mansion.)

Assistant to the Chief of Staff, is shown talking on the speaker phone to the Courier.

"I'd just like to thank the people of Michigan for helping out the people of Louisiana," Cole said.

Cole noted that although things are still far from being back to normal, a real spirit of giving has been evident in the wake of the hurricane and words just can't express the gratitude Louisiana people feel for those who have come forward with assistance.

High school students offered a look at several colleges

The 39th annual College Night will take place at Petoskey High School at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 23. More than fifty representatives from colleges, universities, nursing schools, vocational and business schools, and all of the armed services will be represented.

Thirty area high schools have also been invited. Approximately 1,000 students and parents are expected to attend. Representatives are always pleased by the large number of parents in attendance.

College Night is held early in the fall each year so that graduating seniors will have sufficient time to choose a college and make application for admissions and scholarships.

There will be three 30-minute sessions so students will have time to visit three different college presentations. Or if they wish, they may browse in the cafeteria and receive information from several different schools.

Sharon Hemme, Director of Financial Aid at North Central Michigan College, will be available to explain Federal Aid and the State of Michigan Scholarship and Financial Aid programs. All students who wish to apply for any type of scholarship and financial aid should make this one of their visits.

Junior and senior students are encouraged to attend, but all students as well as the general public are welcome.

The following will have representatives at College Night: Adrian College, Albion College, Alma College, Aquinas College, Baker College, Black Forest Hall, Calvin College, Central Michigan University, Davenport College of Business, DePue Institute, Eastern Michigan University, Ferris State University, Grand Valley State University, Hillsdale College, Hope College, Johnson & Wales University, Kalamazoo College, Lake Superior State University, Lawrence Technological University, Madonna University, Michigan State University, Michigan Technological University, North Central Michigan College, Northern Michigan University, Northwestern College of Diesel, Northwood Institute, Oakland University, Olivet College, Saginaw Valley State University, Sienna Heights College, Spring Arbor College, University of Michigan, Western Michigan University, and the U.S. Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines.

The program is coordinated by Onalee Lark, guidance counselor at Petoskey High School. For further information call 616-348-0083.

Workshop's goal is helping parents talk with their kids

In a recent nationwide poll, young people were asked to choose from a list of things that would make their home life better. Leading the list were: Talking openly with parents and getting along better with brothers and sisters.

A group workshop for parents, youth leaders, teachers and others is being planned by the Charlevoix County cooperative Extension Service, Extension Home Economist Program.

"How To Talk So Kids Will Listen" is based on the principles in the book "How To Talk So Kids Will Listen and Listen So Kids Will Talk" and has been used across the nation - in schools, homes, churches and industry - to open lines of communication with and between children.

Parents are on the firing line every day, confronted by problems. Yet, most parents have had little or no preparation for the job before them. It seems somehow that the arrival of a child is automatically supposed to confer instant wisdom upon a mother or father. Every other occupation from driving a truck to performing surgery, requires months or years of training.

Only for the job of parenting is there the unspoken expectation that love, instinct, and common sense will be enough. Sometimes, it is. More often, the most well-intentioned parents find themselves frustrated, angry, bewildered, guilty, and alone. Like members of any professional group, parents should have the opportunity to get together to share common problems and concerns, and continue training in the skills needed to do their jobs better.

In each of the "How To Talk..." workshops, parents will be introduced to skills that will help them: teach children to understand, identify and communicate their feelings; to engage their children's willing cooperation; to discipline without hurting or alienating; to help their children develop a positive and realistic self-image; and to foster a family atmosphere of love and respect.
